Long Branded 'Rat' in Senate Election Query

Kingfish Testifies On State Machine

Courtroom CrowdCheers as Investigator Hurls Whitewash Charge.

New Orleans, Nov. 13 (AP).—A denunciation of the special United States Senate Committee investigating election of Senator John H. Overton (Democrat), Lousiana, was shouted in open hearing here today by the committee's own investigator, John G. Holland, who charged Chairman Tom Connally (Democrat), Texas, with being "yellow" and the whole committee with "covering up for the rat from Louisiana."

In making the "rat" reference, the investigator turned and glared at Senator Huey P. Long, who sat nearby with a half grin on his face.

Expose Threatened.

Mr. Holland, who for a year had been investigating Louisiana politics, rushed out before the bench on which sat Senator Logan, (Democrat), Kentucky, acting chairman, and Senator Thomas (Democrat), Utah, and shouted that he 'would blow the lid off of this investigation."

Red faced and with arms waving, Mr. Holland shouted defiance and vilification at the committee and Senators Long and Overton as the crowded courtroom cheered and applauded.

"Let him talk," said Senator Logan. "I didn't know he was going crazy, but when he is through the citizens of this State will know why he has not been sent back to Louisiana to continue his investigation."

"Evidence Not Wanted."

"Go on with your ridicule," shouted Mr. Holland. "I am just a punk but for 13 years I have been investigating for the Senate and I uncovered all of the evidence in the Teapot Dome case, and I would do it for this committee but you don't want evidence."

Whirling toward Senator Long, who sat close by, he yelled:

"That rat from Louisianna who sent Senator Howell to his grave!" He was referring to the late Robert B. Howell (Republican), Nebraska, first chairman of the special com-

Nazi Inquiry Opens Behind Locked Doors

4 Secret Witnesses Heard After Dickstein Visits Roosevelt.

Four secret witnesses whose names were withheld by congressional investigators of Nazi propaganda in the United States were heard late yesterday by the House immigration subcommittee headed by Representative Dickstein (Democrat), New York.

The hearing was held secretly after Dickstein and President Roosevelt conferred at the White House.

White House officials stated Mr. Dickstein had been seeking an interview with the President for some time, to present a summary of evidence his committee had gathered relating to activities of the Hitler party in this country.

There was no indication of the President's attitude on material laid before him.

"Inquiry Going Ahead."

Dickstein's only statement was: "We are going ahead with the inquiry. That's all I have to say."

Mr. Dickstein also explained that the regular hearing, which begins this morning, will be heard largely in executive session. It will start out behind closed doors, he said, but after an hour or so will be open to the public.

All committee members refused to divulge the names of yesterday's witnesses, as well as those scheduled to be questioned this morning.

On Saturday, however, Mr. Dickstein told The Washington Post by long-distance telephone from New York, that among the total 200 witnesses called, Victor and Bernard Ridder, brother publishers of the Staats-Zeitung and the New York Journal of Commerce, would be among the first to be questioned.

Suspected Agent Missing.

It had been announced previously that a long list of witnesses would be called to delve into activities of Heinz Spanknoebel and Capt. George Schmidt, formerly in the German army.

Spanknoebel was indicted last week by the New York Federal Grand Jury who found that he was either the agent of the German ministry of propaganda or falsely represented himself as such. He has since disappeared and it is believed he has left the country.

In explaining committee secrecy Mr. Dickstein said committee members were afraid the public might interfere with its attempt to get the "facts" about Nazi propaganda. He predicted the inquiry might last until Congress convenes in January and probably would result in changes in alien laws.

Kidnaper Slain In Police Duel

Two Detectives, Bystander Shot in Peoria Barber Shop Battle.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 13 (AP).—Cornered in a barber shop, Russell Hughes, 35, was shot and killed today by police who sought to question him about bank robberies, counterfeiting and the $400,000 kidnaping syndicate headed by "Handsome Jack" Klutas.

Alfred Jenkins, a bystander, and Police Detective Robert Moran incurred wounds that physicians said might prove fatal as Hughes huddled behind a barber chair and blazed away with pistols in both hands until he fell with seven bullet wounds.

Detective Fred Montgomery Recognized Hughes as he drove past the barber shop in a squad car with Detectives Moran and Jay Dusenberry. Hughes was lounging in the shop doorway.

As the police car stopped, Hughes retreated into the shop. Guns in their hands, the three detectives followed. Hughes began shooting with two guns as they entered.

Moran kept firing despite a bullet wound in the groin. So did Montgomery, although wounded in the shoulder.

Ford's Roosevelt Visit Unconfirmed

WhiteHouse, NRA Officials Without Information.

A report that Henry Ford is considering coming to Washington to see President Roosevelt in an effort to clear up his controversy with the NRA lacked confirmation last night.

NRA officials had no knowledge of the rumor, circulated in Detroit and Washington, nor did the White House have any information. The Associated Press, while stating the report was discussed in some quarters, said the Ford offices in Detroit denied knowledge of such an intention.

Meanwhile, Senator Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, said last night he is expecting to hear shortly from the board's observer at Edgewater, N. J., where striking Ford workers are attempting a settlement. Upon this issue apparently depends the Detroit manufacturer's compliance with the automobile code.

Gold Buyers Told to Shun Bond Market

By Elliott Thurston.

President Roosevelt pressed yesterday toward his goal of the commodity dollar, as advocated by Prof. George F. Warren, after cautioning his manipulators of gold prices to avoid undermining the Government bond market or incurring foreign warfare over currencies.

Whether these objectives can be reconciled is a subject of debate among Administration's advisors but the White House has asked for their united support and after Secretary of the Treasury Woodin had visited the White House yesterday he returned to his office to deny numerous printed reports of Treasury discord over monetary policy and to declare he is "heartily in sympathy" with all of the Roosevelt policies.

After participating in another boosting of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's price for newly mined domestic gold, Chairman Jesse Jones similarly expressed approval of the monetary policy and added: "There has been no change in our program. My own view is that it is having the desired effect. Commodity prices are going up."

Manipulations to Continue.

Others who participated in Sunday's White House conference on monetary policy similarly signified that they were in accord and said the gold manipulations are to continue. How much foreign gold has been bought continues to be a mystery. To reports in London papers that the President was "bluffing," and that foreign market transactions disclosed no buying for the R. F. C. account, through New York banks acting as the R. F. C. buyers, Mr. Jones replied that possibly the American bids for gold were smaller than foreign markets had expected.

Efforts to induce Secretary Woodin to shed more light on the monetary program brought from him disclaimers of expertness, and after indicating he might have a statement to make later he corrected interpretations that he would undertake to issue a statement on gold-buying policy and theory. He was emphatic, however, in denying dissent, though he officially confirmed for the first time the fact that the Treasury had originally challenged the legality of the R. F. C. gold-buying operations. However, he indicated, the Attorney General's subsequent written legal opinion, for which Mr. Roosevelt called, was sufficient to end all further Treasury questioning on that score.

Woodin Expresses Accord.

"I want to deny," he told the press after visiting the White House, "that I opposed any of the President's policies.

"The President has been good enough to talk over with me everything he has done, especially in line with Treasury matters.

"I am in sympathy with all his policies and will back him to the limit. I do not understand why a statement of that kind should be given out in the press. He has been very open-minded about these things.

"I am speaking as the Secretary of the Treasury and for the Treasury Department."

Asked if the Treasury had not raised the legal point, he said the Attorney General's ruling was final and the Treasury was therefore "going along 100 per cent."

The fact is the Treasury presented a written memorandum to the President dissenting from the legal authority claimed for the R. F. C. by its counsel and afterward upheld by the Attorney General's opinion.

At all odds, the White House appeared yesterday to have succeeded in erasing all further signs of intra-Administration conflict, and Mr. Woodin seemed to be echoing White House objections to having officials "talk so much." At least, the Secretary several times emphasized that the talking should be

Tom-Tom Beating Not Hurting NRA, Johnson Asserts

Lousiville, Ky., Nov. 13 (AP).—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the National Recovery Act, said in an address here tonight that the public is "not misled by the tom-tom beating of powerful people whose own purposes are crossed" by statutes such as the NRA.

"From the very beginning," Johnson said in his final address of a tour through the Midwest and Southwest, "there has been grumbling from some very wealthy and powerful interests."

Work Hours Face Further Cut by NRA

Whiteside Hints Slash During Wrangle Over Wholesale Code.

Prospects that a further shortening of hours in NRA codes may be necessary to the recovery program developed yesterday in a statement by Deputy Administrator A. D. Whiteside as the hearing on the master wholesale code was recessed.

Asserting reduction in unemployment this winter is vital, Whiteside declared: "If immediate improvement is not noticed it will probably be necessary—I speak unofficially, giving my own opinion—to reduce the hours of all industries whether they are operating under codes or not."

"The business of the country is on the road of new economics," he continued. "Those who operate sensibly and in cooperation with others must be enabled to operate at a profit."

Johnson Back Today.

Meanwhile, stubborn controversy over the construction code, further protest of price-fixing, and a statement by Senator Dickinson (Republican), Iowa, that he would seek the immediate repeal of the act creating the NRA, were other problems confronting Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson on his return from the Midwest today.

Mr. Whiteside's statement was in line with demands of the American Federation of Labor, which has steadfastly insisted on a 30-hour week. The wholesale code, sponsored by 27 branch associations, provides for a 40-hour week for general employes, which drew the objection of Joel Berrall, representing the Labor Advisory Board. The latter asked that 35 hours be set as a maximum.

Protest to the code, which would govern 169,000 wholesalers employing 1,607,000 persons, also came from the representative of the Consumers Advisory Board, S. S. Heinritz. The board's objection was based on a section permitting price differentials, which he claimed, among other things, would prohibit economies from reaching the consumer and would define by law provisions which should be reached by private bargaining.

Set Own Differentials.

The price differentials would be established between various types of buyers, including direct sales from manufacturers to wholesalers, retailers and consumers. The code authority for any trade division which sells to other groups as well as wholesalers could set the differentials.

While Deputy Whiteside declared "I would very much like to see this provision go further if it were possible to do so" and "this is a lifetime opportunity for wholesalers," the National Association of Manufacturers filed a protest, declaring it would authorize a boycott.

Senator Dickinson, announcing he would be ready to introduce his measure dissolving the NRA as soon

Amoebic Dysentery Strikes in Capital

Woman Stricken by Malady Fatal to 15 in Chicago.

A case of amoebic dysentery, the intestinal disease which has caused 15 deaths in Chicago, was reported to the health department yesterday. The case is that of a woman employe of the Treasury Department, it was learned.

Following the discovery, authorities requested pathological laboratories and doctors throughout the city to keep a close check for any additional cases. The malady is a deceptive one, its symptoms sometimes being mistaken for appendicitis or colitis.

The single case reported should cause no alarm, officials stated, and there is no evidence so far that there are any more in Washington.

Inclusion in Repeal Sought by Hawaii

Honolulu, Nov. 13 (AP).—The Territorial Legislature adopted a resolution today asking Congress to extend repeal of the national prohibition amendment to include Hawaii.

Attorney General Cummings has ruled the Volstead enforcement act will continue to apply in Hawaii unless Congress acts to the contrary.

Home Saving Cost Almost Equals Loans

Less Than 1 Per Cent of Requests Closed in Four Months.

578,000 Apply, 4,864 Get Action; Employes Nearly 14,000

By Felix F. Bruner.

With an army of between 12,000 and 14,000 employes, drawing either fees or salaries, the Home Owners Loan Corporation has actually closed loans on 4,864 pieces of real estate at a cost per loan almost equaling the amount of the loan itself.

The number of loans closed during the four months the organization has been in existence represents slightly more than eight-tenths of 1 per cent of the applications. The cost per loan to the Government was not accurately available, but it was learned on good authority yesterday that it closely approximates the total amount of each loan, the loans averaging $3,024 and totaling $14,240,000.

Applications have been received from $578,000 home owners, involving a total of $1,719,000,000, almost reaching the $2,000,000,000 which the corporation has been authorized by Congress to loan.

In addition to the 4,864 loans already made, a total of 110,000 loans, involving a little more than $300,000,000 have been approved tentatively. Of the loans actually completed, 4,709 have been made on the basis of an exchange of bonds and 115, involving $107,000, have been made in cash.

This is the situation that exists as John H. Fahey takes over the chairmanship of the corporation, which was designed to bring quick relief to home owners whose mortgages were about to be foreclosed. Fahey succeeds William F. Stevenson as head of the organization.

Maintains 257 Offices.

The organization has directors in every State and the District of Columbia. It maintains 257 offices, each with a large group of clerks, appraisers and attorneys. The loans made thus far represent an average of 19 for each office. They are rather generally distributed among the States.

As an indication of the minute dent that the Home Owners Loan Corporation has made in the mortgage situation, it is estimated that the total of urban home mortgages in the United States amounts to $21,000,000,000. Of course, not all of these mortgages are eligible for loans, but the figure is useful for comparison of the problem with the results obtained.

Of the 578,000 applications on file 33,000 have been rejected as not coming within the intent of the act. These rejections amount to $137,000,000.

Status Explained.

Officials of the corporation explain their showing up to this time by saying that the four months or more since the establishment of the first offices in the States has been largely a period of organization and that in the future results will be much more rapid and the cost per loan will decrease speedily as the number of loans increases.

Delay in making loans is a result of the formalities which must be completed before they can be

LaGuardia Refutes Glassford Rumor

Denies Reports of N. Y. Police Appointment.

Mayor-Elect Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York, yesterday denied reports he is considering appointment of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, former Washington chief of police, as police commissioner of New York.

The denial was contained in a radio message from the Liner Pennsylvania to the Associated Press. LaGuardia and Mrs. LaGuardia are en route to Panama.

"No justification for police commissioner story," the message said. "I gave no statement. Said nothing concerning subject. Utterly groundless."

Reports also had stated LaGuardia was considering Gen James E. Fechet, former chief of the Army Air Corps, for the place.

Doctor Lights Up Girl's Lung, Pulls Out Embedded Pin

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP).—A straight pin, its head imbedded in lung tissue, was removed today from the bottom of the right lung of Helen Schweikhart, 16, of Cincinnati, in what physicians called one of the most unusual operations of its kind.

The girl swallowed it October 25 at her home. Efforts to remove it at Cincinnati failed and she was brought to the Presbyterian Hospital here.

Peace Put Up to Berlin; Davis in U. S. to Confer

Britain Says Hands Off; French, Deserted, May Seek Own Pact.

London, Nov. 13 (AP).—Great Britain took the stand today that it is up to Germany to make a move to save the peace of Europe.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald himself confirmed before the House of Commons that Britain is marking time, but warned she is ready to point a finger of blame at any country responsible for a breakdown in peace efforts.

After the Labor party moved a vote of censure, charging the government's course in the disarmament conference at Geneva had not been in conformity with Britain's desire for a disarmanet agreement, the premier said it was still too early to determine what results yesterday's plebiscite and Reichstag elections will have on the arms impasse.

"I feel perfectly certain the House would not wish the British government to say today by what precise Geneva Envoy Back to Get President's Instructions.

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—Norman H. Davis, United States Ambassador at Large, returned from Geneva today to consult with President Roosevelt on the Nation's future course at the disarmament conference.

Optimistic dispite the withdrawal of Germany from the conference, the ambassador said:

"I left our organization intact, with Hugh Wilson, our other delegate, in charge with our complete staff, and I expect to return. When, I do not know, because there are certain important matters to be discussed in Washington."

Mr. Davis said he would remain at his New York home for several days before proceeding to Washington.

Action Held Desirable Before Roosevelt Goes South.

Caution Is Guide On Both Sides

By Kendall Foss.

On that day President Roosevelt is scheduled to depart for Warm Springs, and while it is not necessary that a conclusion to the discussions with Maxim Litvinoff be reached by then, it is nonetheless desirable.

Confidence was expressed at the White House yesterday that the talks would end by that time, although State Department men charged with wading through the mass of material on the subject with Litvinoff appeared doubtful that their task could be accomplished physically in so short a time.

No Set Programs.

Over the week-end the conversations entered an informal stage with meetings taking place on a moment's notice. Henceforth, it was indicated at the State Department, there will be no more programs. Litvinoff holds himself in readiness to come either to the department or to the White House whenever requested; in the intervals much study and drafting goes on.

Despite the blanket of secrecy which still covers the conversations, broken only to report "progress" at the end of virtually every meeting, the general outlines become clearer day by day.

The policy on the American side of the discussion table may be characterized as "if eventually, why not now" when it comes to the points which have got to be settled some time.

Russia Stands Pat.

In negotiations with other nations, the Soviet Union always has insisted on recognition first and discussion afterward. This is good international law, for obviously it is a legal anomaly to seek, for example, to discuss loans made to the Kerensky government with the Soviet representative so long as the Kerensky regime is still the only

Duce Gives Guild System Wide Powers

Delegates Duties of Law Making and Plans Other Reforms.

Rome, Nov. 13 (AP).—Announcement that legislation affecting economic matters will be entrusted to the National Council of Corporations under a new and powerful guild system was made by Premier Mussolini tonight at the end of a council meeting.

Hinting that even further reforms were coming, Il Duce said the Grand Council of Fascists, as the highest consulting party, will be called upon to decide on a "development of political and a constitutional nature which will arise from the establishment of the practical operation of a new system."

The government-controlled press and many speakers before the council meeting advocated the merger of the council with the chamber of deputies, or the total abolition of the chamber.

Premier Mussolini's statement was made in the form of an order of the day which he personally read at the end of the session.

Great public interest has centered in the speech which he promised to make at tomorrow's meeting and in which he will give a detailed explanation of the development.

He made no comment today, but merely read the order, which declared that a new cooperative system, "an instrument under the aegis of the state, will actuate the integral, organic and single discipline of productive forces with a view to the development of wealth and political power and the well-being of the Italian people."

Giuseppe Tassinari, one of Italy's leading agricultural authorities, stressed the particular need of giving the council legislative powers as they concern tariffs and other matters intimately connected with production.

Italy Retreats Anew From Tariff Truce

Geneva, Nov. 13 (AP).—Italy notified the League of Nations today of additional reservations to the International tariff truce, amounting practically to denunciation of the agreement.

Hitler Seeks Federation of Reich States

Would Abolish Boundaries and Other Rights to Centralize Power.

Berlin, Nov. 13 (AP).—A massing of federated states probably will be one of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's first acts when a new Reichstag, with 661 Hitler followers as members, gets under way.

Centralized authority will take the place of states' rights, which Hitler considers have been derived by the usurpation of princes.

During the recent whirlwind Reichstag campaign the chancellor repeatedly sneered at royalty. In his address to workers on November 10, for instance, he said:

"For centuries foreign countries have counted upon having accomplices within Germany. At first it was princes without character who, in cold blood, betrayed their people."

Dynastic considerations, Hitler is said to believe, determined the boundary lines of German Federated States and gave Prussia a dominant position.

Would Abolish Boundaries.

Germany, Hitler holds, should not be divided into states with boundaries, which various ruling houses, often after victorious wars, gave them according to the number of tribes.

East Prussians were very different from the Silesians, Rhinelanders from Holsteiners, and inhabitants of Westphalia from Berlin residents, yet all of them now are citizens of Prussia and until recently even felt themselves more Prussian than German.

That a great change in mentality has gone in this respect may be seen from the fact that on Sunday night at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Hitlerite youths pulled up posts marking the frontiers of Hessia, Prussia, Bavaria and Baden and burned them in huge bonfires.

To Centralize Authority.

The chancellor proposes that Germany in the future shall be administered according to unities, corresponding in the main to German "staemme." Under such a scheme Germany would be divided into 12 or 15 regions, similar to departments in France. These administrative divisions, or "gaue," would take

Welles' Attack Is Laid to King

Senator Believed to Have Demanded Ouster of Cuban Envoy.

Immediate withdrawal of Ambassador Sumner Welles from Cuba was believed to have been urged upon the State Department yesterday by Senator King (Democrat), Utah.

Senator King is understood to have added his belief that the United States should recognize the Grau San Martin government.

Senator King refused to confirm the report last night, but admitted talking with Assistant Secretary of State Caffery "confidentially." He added he had given his views on Cuba and on what course should be pursued "to avoid serious difficulties."

Meanwhile, Representative Sol Bloom, of Brooklyn, N. Y., revealed he had made a personal telephonic plea to President Grau just before dawn last Friday which resulted in the stay of an execution order against Dr. Louis Henriquez, mayor of Battabanax, Cuba, whose family lives in Bloom's district. The prisoner is a former American citizen, Bloom said.

Seaboard Line to Cut Fares 44 Per Cent Dec. 1

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 13 (AP).—A reduction of 44 per cent in passenger fares will be put into effect by the Seaboard Air Line Railway, it announces, effective December 1, or as soon thereafter as possible.

The announcement states that a one-way rate of 2 cents a mile, good in coaches only, will be established.

Montgomery Proposes Rum Control With 3 Dispensaries

A definite program for control of liquor in Montgomery County with dispensaries located at Silver Spring, Bethesda and Rockville, has been mapped by the Democratic organization and will be presented to the special session of the Maryland Legislature which has been summoned for next week by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

The program, briefly, provides that the suburban section of the county, with the exception of Takoma Park and Kensington, will be allowed to purchase liquor from a county dispensary, while the rural sections beyond Rockville will continue dry. The dispensary is patterned after those operating in Canada and Sweden.

The policy was adopted at a meeting of 100 leaders of the organization in the county and was announced last night by Maj. E. Brooke Lee, president of the Montgomery Government Club.

The Montgomery County Civic Federation last night adopted a resolution urging that sale of liquor be permitted in accordance with whatever laws are enacted by the State Legislature. The federation voted down a resolution which urged that sale of liquor be barred until a referendum had been held.

Maj. Lee's statement said the group felt the organization was required by repeal and the overwhelmingly wet vote of the county to provide a constructive, workable program.

It was pointed out, however, that the 2½-to-1 vote for repeal in the county was not necessarily a vote for any particular system of liquor control or distribution.

It was agreed that return of the saloon was not only impossible un-

Al Smith Sees President Today; It's "Purely Social"

The jaunty brown derby of Alfred Emanuel Smith today will replace the broad-brimmed black head-piece of Maxim Litvinoff on the White House hatrack, as conversations with President Roosevelt turn for a time from recognition of Russia to resumption of diplomatic relations between the Administration and New York City.

While the former New York governor has come only a fraction of the distance traveled by the Soviet emissary, the government of the metropolis he represents has been as widely separated from that in Washington as from here to the Russian steppes.

Al Smith's visit is described at the White House as "purely social," a phrase which would appear to cover a multitude of possibilities. At a moment when recognition of some Democratic organization in New York City is in the air, when Federal patronage finally is being loosed to eager Empire State Democrats, when Tammany is making frantic overtures to "Big Jim" Farley and the latter is blandly ignoring the Tiger chieftains, Al Smith comes to pay his first visit to the White House since Franklin D. Roosevelt moved in.

Here for Catholic U Meet.

Ostensibly, Smith is in town to attend a meeting of the board of trustees of Catholic University, to which he was elected last spring. By chance that board's first meeting falls at a time when the dust of New York City's mayoralty battle has settled, when reorganization of the Democratic machine in that city is in order, and when the Administration's studied aloofness to

Fast Congress Action Assured On Liquor Levy

By Franklyn Waltman, jr.

Speedy action on legislation establishing increased and permanent taxes on liquor when Congress convenes in January was promised to President Roosevelt yesterday by ranking members of the House and Senate committees studying the problem. At the same time, the President said his interdepartmental committee will be ready with recommendations early next month.

Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, on leaving the White House said rates of taxation had not been discussed by President Roosevelt. Harrison proposed to suggest a joint meeting of the House Ways and Means committee and the Senate Finance committee to expedite action on liquor taxes.

The finance chairman expressed the belief that it would be unwise at this time to revise the Hawley-Smoot tariff rates on imported liquor, although he said he believed the tariff of $1 a gallon on beer was too high and should be reduced—news that should cheer those who like German beer.

Senator Harrison was alone in his visit to the President. Earlier in the day, Representative Sam Hill (Democrat), Washington, chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee which has been considering changes in the tax laws, led that group to Mr. Roosevelt's office. Mr. Hill said his subcommittee is ready to start hearings as soon as it receives the Administration's recommendations.

Representative Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, chiarman of the full Ways and Means Committee, said hearings will start December 4 on all phases of tax revision, including new rates on liquor. It is planned, however, to make the liquor taxes a separate bill from provisions revising the existing revenue laws.

Sees Revenue Increased.

The Hill subcommittee has been at work for several weeks on changes in the administrative features of the income and corporation tax laws, designed to plug leaks. For the first time, Hill estimated yesterday that revenue under these taxes may be increased between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 annually by tightening the administrative provisions.

Such sums would more than offset the revenue which the Treasury will lose after President Roosevelt next month proclaims the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. This proclamation will terminate the four taxes imposed last spring to pay the debt service charges on the $3,300,000,000 public works program. The four taxes, it has been estimated, would net the Treasury between $221,000,000 and $227,000,000 annually.

Thus if this loss in revenue is more than made up by tightening the administrative features of the revenue laws, the sums obtained from liquor taxes will go far toward making possible repeal of some or all of the excise or "nuisance" taxes imposed several years ago, such as the taxes on theater tickets, checks, automobiles, radios and similar articles. The aim is to get about $500,000,000 annually from liquor taxes.

In approaching the question of Federal finances, however, Congress can not assume that the budget is balanced on the basis of existing revenue and expenditure — even when the dual system of bookkeeping is considered. As of last Friday, the last day for which figures are available, the so-called ordinary budget of the Treasury had a deficit of $37,680,877.

Considering the budget as a whole, including both ordinary expenditures and emergency expenses growing out of the recovery program, the Treasury deficit last Friday was $545,152,739 compared to a deficit of $1,066,257,806 on the corresponding day of last year.

New Taxes Doubted.

Neverless, Mr. Hill appeared confident that, aside from increases in the levies on liquor, no new taxes will be necessary. He said his group will complete its work on revising the revenue laws this week, leaving only the new liquor taxes to be considered before the Ways and Means Committee meets December 4.

Under the tentative plan decided on at the White House for considering the liquor taxes, President Roosevelt will meet again with his interdepartmental committee as soon as it formulates a plan of action—probably before he leaves Friday for Warm Springs, Ga. It is doubtful whether the committee will be ready to report at that time on the tax problem. But the group is expected to have worked out this week a plan of action for the Federal Government after repeal becomes effective and before Congress completes its action.

The President indicated to his callers yesterday that he expects to have a liquor tax program ready by the time he returns from his Southern vacation trip at the end of the month. Meanwhile the interdepartmental committee will confer with members of the Ways and Means Committee.

The plan on Capitol Hill is to have the Ways and Means committee ready to report a bill providing new liquor taxes a few days after Congress convenes. This measure will be rushed through the House under a special rule. The Finance Committee expects to be ready to report to the Senate as soon as the House bill reaches the former body.

Tariff Fight Possible.

In this manner it is possible that the new liquor taxes will become effective by the middle or latter part of January. One obstacle to such speedy progress would be for a fight to develop over tariffs. Mr. Hill pointed out this as a possibility if any effort is made to revise the tariffs on liquor.

Mr. Hill also explained that an effort to open the tariff act for amendment might result in the offering of amendments for tariff changes on commodities other than liquor. Such action, he said, could be avoided in the House by the adoption of a stringent rule outlawing such amendments. But the Senate would be free, he added, to pursue the changing of tariff rates if the House opens the way by making a single revision.

The only discussion of specific liquor tax rates during the day came from Representative Crowther (Republican), New York. He said he believes the levy on whisky, now fixed at $1.10 a gallon, should not be more than $2.20 a gallon. It appears that the leaders on Capitol Hill want the Administration to suggest the rates and that such recommendations will, in general, be followed.

Farmer Asks for Cost Plus, But Basic Figure Is a Puzzle

Proponents Fail to Consider Difference in Soil, Climate and Individual Efficiency; Some Midwest Agrarians Making Money Now.

By Nicholas Roosevelt.

(This is the third of 10 articles written by Mr. Roosevelt, after a month's tour through the Middle Western agricultural States.)

"The Government should raise the prices of farm products and hold them at such a level that the farmer can at least earn the cost of production," one of the sympathizers with the farm strike movement said to me the other day in Des Moines.

"Whose cost of production?" I inquired.

"How will you determine such a figure?"

At first hearing this sounds reasonable anough. The speaker produces an elaborate series of tables showing the supposed cost of production of various farm products in different States. It calls for prices from two to three times those prevailing at present. No allowance is made for differences in soil or for climate variations or for personal efficiency or incompetency or any similar factor. Nor is any thought given to the probable effect on consumption if the purchaser has to pay two or three times the present price of farm products.

Some Making Money.

Government estimates indicate that the farmer's income today is scarcely a third of what it was in 1929. And his overhead in the shape of taxes, interest payments and general running expenses has not declined proportionately. Many a farmer is unable to make both ends meet today. Most farmers have had to retrench on their living expenses—keep the old car running instead of buying a new one, take out the telephone and perhaps the electric lights; stop using the radio; stay at home instead of taking a trip to the fair in Chicago.

But there are farmers in the Middle West today who are making money—not much, it is true, nor are there many of them. But some who did not go heavily in debt or buy land at absurd prices are not "in the red." Many more, with only a small advance in the prices of the principal farm products, would be able to make a living and have a little left over. It goes without saying that all would be better off if farm prices were to return to 1926 levels.

To effect such a return is the declared policy of the present Administration. If successful, not only the farmers but the entire country will profit, for the farmers are an important element in the purchasing power of the country. Their total income in 1929 was estimated at about the same figure as the wages of the country's factory workers. As their standard of living is, in the main, higher than that of most factory workers, and as they are the producers of primary goods on which the entire Nation benefits by their prosperity, it goes without saying that they have no greater claim to special favors. than has any other class in the country.

Methods Reviewed.

In indeavoring to raise prices the Administration has accepted the theory that the country is suffering from overproduction. Leaving aside the question of whether the cause of the depression is overproduction or inadequate distribution and curtailed consumption, it is pertinent to inquire into the methods used by the Administration to curtail production. These fall under three heads: (1) destruction of crops by plowing under, by killing sows, &c.; (2) reduction of future acreage by agreement; 3) purchase of surplus production either for unemployment relief or to be held over for another year.

I discussed these projects with many farmers and others in the Middle West. With the exception of those who got direct bonuses from the crop destruction process, I found dissatisfaction with the first project. It was criticized as being inequitable and as containing within itself the seeds of its own nullification. As it affects only a limited number of farmers it opens the way for those not in the plan to increase their output of the restricted articles in the hope of profiting from the expected increase in prices. The same argument is made against the project for. reducing acreage. Already there are signs that the next year's production of the "reduced" crops will be larger than this year's.

In answer to the question "What would you do in place of this sort of restriction?" two different proposals were brought to my attention which are in reality close kin. The first is that instead of paying farmers not to produce crops the Government buy up the marginal lands where production is costly and uncertain and return them to the public domain. The second is that instead of buying such lands the Government rent them and so take them out of production for a period to be determined by varying crop conditions.

Proposals Contrasted.

The underlying principle behind these proposals is to withdraw from productivity the less efficient lands. This is in sharp contrast to the present philosophy which is based on supporting the incompetent at the expense of the competent—on forcing up prices so that the marginal producer can survive.

Of the third solution for price raising—Government purchase of agricultural surplus—there is no criticism if it is to be used for relief purposes. But for the Government to enter the markets to buy wheat, &c., in large quantities, as was done during the Hoover regime, is to court the same disastrous effect on prices that resulted from that experiment. Unless the Government destroys or disposes of the surplus it buys this surplus will simply hang over the present markets and so tend to depress prices.

"Why not try inflation?" is the inevitable question when the discussion reaches this point.

The obvious answer is that inflation does not raise prices, but simply raises the figure on the slip of paper which happens to represent currency. It may bring in more paper dollars for what the farmer sells, but it also will require more paper dollars for what the farmer buys. The obvious conclusion is that to raise prices artificially is to raise prices fictitiously. What the farmer needs is to have the spread between his income and his outgo diminished. Any project which increases the outgo as much as or more than the income will leave him no better off than he is today.

Editor's note—In his next article Mr. Roosevelt will discuss the role of economic nationalism in relation to improvement of the farmers' position.

Senators Hunt R.F.C. Leaders' Loan Benefits

Fletcher Group Studies Complaints Against Both Jones and Dawes.

Alleged interest of the chairman and a former president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in at least two R. F. C. loans is being investigated by the Senate Banking Committee.

Following up complaints filed with his committee, Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher decided to call on the corporation for specific data on loans in which Reconstruction Finance Corporation officials might have been interested.

Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, last week was questioned by the subcommittee on a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan to the Midland Mortgage Co. of Texas, it was learned yesterday.

Dawes Loan Questioned.

Jones told the committee his brother was connected with the company, but he had no personal interest in it.

At the same time, Jones was asked to supply the committee with data on the $90,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan to the Central Republic Trust Co. of Chicago, headed by Charles G. Dawes, former president of the corporation.

Pending receipt of information on all loans about which complaints have been filed, Chairman Fletcher delayed calling another formal hearing.

Study Mortgage Loans.

The committee is particularly interested in loans to mortgage companies acting for banks, and will be supplied with a complete list of all such advances. Complaints to the committee charge some mortgage companies were organized for the sole purpose of obtaining loans for banks seeking to avoid publicity.

The corporation also has been asked for details of a $9,500,000 loan to New York City for East Side slum clearance work, the only such loan made by the corporation.

Two Girls Injured By Hit-Run Driver

Both in Serious Condition at Reed Hospital.

Two girls were struck and reported injured seriously last night at Sixteenth and Emerson streets northwest by a hit-and-run motorist.

Janet Keller, of 3809 New Hampshire avenue northwest, and Phyllis Brown, both 17, of 825 Emerson street northwest, were struck as they attempted to cross the street.

The girls were taken to Walter Reed Hospital. Physicians said they suffered possible fractured skulls, concussion of the brain, internal injuries and severe lacerations. Miss Brown also received a fractured wrist. They were later transferred to Garfield Hospital.

Only a meager discription of the hit-and-run machine was obtained by police.

Gold Buyers Told to Avoid Bond Changes done by the President and that too much had been done by others.

Hence, yesterday produced an outward appearance of unanimity behind the monetary policy. Some officials classed as "sound money" men, had previously implied a disregard of foreign sensibilities and of the depressing effect on Government bonds. Until yesterday these officials were not at great pains to conceal their anxiety, especially over the sharp drop in Government bonds last week.

$41.34 Price Goal.

Chairman Jones, Undersecretary of the Treasury Acheson and Henry Morgenthau, jr., continue to meet daily to post the ever higher domestic price, but the figure is said to be Professor Warren's, and the process, as previously disclosed in The Post, is to go on until the domestic figure reaches twice the present statutory rate, or $41.34 an ounce. This is the figure demanded by the Committee for the Nation, which is now issuing much publicity extolling Professor Warren as the "prophet who batted 1,000 per cent."

Likewise the committee is circularizing Frank A. Vanderlip's recent radio address advocating the commodity dollar as "the one feasible defense against dangers of unlimited currency inflation." Mr. Vanderlip is one of the organizers of the Committee for the Nation."

"I believe," he said over the radio, "that the President in tentatively testing the theory (of the commodity dollar) is acting courageously, safely and wisely."

There is reason to suppose that the President has now made clear to his advisers that he is doing just this, and that he has asked them to stand by, without criticisms, until he has given the theory a full trial. It accounts for his simultaneous cautioning to go slowly, in the hope that neither foreign markets nor the bond market will take alarm.

Devaluation Decision Later.

The expert view in Administration circles is that having steadily boosted the R. F. C. posted price to double the statutory rate of $20.67, he will then decide whether to declare a 50 per cent devaluation of the dollar, under the Thomas amendment. This, according to promoters of the theory, is the equivalent of doubling the domestic price and will furnish double the existing gold base for the issuance of currency. Thus, the advocates of the theory vigorously deny that the present course is leading to "greenbacks."

The next question then will be whether gold will be released under a bullion system, or at least to settle international balances, so that its doubled dollar value would take effect, or whether, as some of the Committee for the Nation hold, the fixed gold price will be reflected back in the dollar, even if the dollar can not be exchanged for gold. Finally, the question will arise of applying the commodity-dollar theory, under which the gold price will be raised or lowered—that is, the gold content of the dollar varied—with the idea of keeping the dollar geared at some fixed point (the 1926 price level has been the objective) to the Department of Labor's commodity price index.

Thomas for $41.34 Figure.

Senator Elmer Thomas, congressional inflationist leader, who has called a meeting for Friday for "all schools of thought on monetary reform," also is insisting that "our price of gold must go to double the statutory figure; that is, it must not stop short of $41.34 an ounce."

He would force this doubling of gold prices on all nations of the world. He contends this would support great new issues of currency, and he sees a possibility then of going back to this much-altered gold standard.

Jesse Jones, while declining to say anything further yesterday about gold buying abroad, declared there had been no change in orders to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to act as R. F. C. agent in negotiating purchases through the medium of New York member banks.

The Associated Press reported last night from Paris that the Bank of France had suffered a loss of 750,000,000 francs (about $45,000,000) in its gold reserves for the preceding week and that this "shows the first effects of the Roosevelt gold program." French authorities were said to estimate that so far R. F. C. purchases amounted to about 100,000,000 francs, or about $6,200,000. The rest of the loss, aggregating 2,000,000,000 francs within a month, is ascribed to a flight of capital induced by fear that France will be forced off gold. The American gold-buying policy has accelerated this flight.

Thus evidence of gold buying in France and absence of evidence of gold buying in England suggests that the administration is avoiding the British market but is aiming at the Paris market.

That the President is undeterred in his policy is apparent from yesterday's developments. It was not clear whether the Reserve system had been asked to come to the support of the Government bond market again, but that inference was generally drawn to account for the apparent unconcern exhibited by commodity dollar advocates over previous signals of government bond market weakness.

Inflation Leads Congress Poll, Crisis Nearing

Twice as Many Favor Plan and Indicate Warm Fight in January.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Inflation sentiment appears to have the upper hand in Congress in the light of a poll by the United Press. Indications are that unless Administration measures produce marked results by January, Congress will return in a mood to take the bit in its teeth.

In a poll of the House, 58 per cent of the replies favor inflation and 21 per cent are opposed to it. The remaining 21 per cent are either neutral or are not prepared to take a position.

Among those taking a definite position, inflationists thus outnumbered those opposed by more than 2½ to 1.

These figures, gathered from members covering every State, show a complete cross section.

Thomas Leads Faction.

They confirm the belief of the chief inflationist, Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, that Congress will return in a mood to take matters out of the hands of the Administration and make action mandatory unless present price-raising policies produce a clear-cut result.

Thomas and Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, have invited Senators Pittman, Wheeler, Borah, Harrison and Fletcher to meet with directors of the Committee of the Nation and farm leaders at a monetary conference here Friday.

"There need be no fear of printing press inflation if soundly backed currency, adequate for our needs, is provided," the call for the conference said. The proper place of silver in a broadened metallic base for the currency will be considered, it was announced.

Senators Thomas and Smith said the President's gold policy is "making progress," but that it must be carried further until gold is $41.34, double the statutory price.

President Still Silent.

The President surveyed the results of his gold operations at a long conference with his ranking financial advisers Sunday. All declined to reveal what conclusions were reached.

Mr. Roosevelt is under heavy pressure on both sides of the inflation question. Republican party leaders in conference here recently said business men are refusing to make long-time commitments because of the uncertainty of the Administration's monetary policy.

This criticism is accentuated because of the general knowledge that in some quarters at the Treasury there is a lack of sympathy with the Administration course. Dr. O. M. W. Sprague, Treasury monetary adviser, who quit as adviser to the Bank of England to return to America and help his former pupil, Mr. Roosevelt, deal with the complex money situation, is understood to be out of sympathy with the gold policy. Talk of his resignation has been current lately.

Some Views Quoted.

Typical excerpts from congressional letters are:

For inflation: "The primary cause of the depression was interest on public and private debts. I am and have always been opposed to the financing of self-liquidating Federal projects by the issuance of bonds. The present system of bonding amounts to nothing less than a gigantic fraud practiced upon the people of the United States. There is no good reason why self-liquidating projects can not be financed by the issuance of new currency. Such a plan would entail less expense to the Government, would prevent the bankers from profiteering on National distress, and would provide a practical plan for effecting immediate inflation."

Bonus and silver: "First, I would issue legal tender notes to take up bonus certificates. Second, I would issue silver certificates for the silver produced in the United States, for one year, commencing at the present price of silver and increasing 10 cents per ounce every 30 days until the price reaches $1 an ounce."

Against inflation: "I have observed that many other countries are reaching recovery in a natural manner. The United States will recover if there is not too much tinkering with the currency and too much overnight change in Constitutional provisions."

Ickes Dismisses 2 From Public Works Service

Kreschel Goes Because of State Job; Engineer in Tennessee Fired.

With the simple announcement that he considers it inconsistent for a State official to hold a Federal position, Secretary of Interior Ickes, public works administrator, yesterday revealed he has discharged Lieut. Gov. Nels G. Kreschel of Iowa, as executive secretary of the State Public Works Advisory Committee.

Ickes at the same time made public a telegram sent on November 10 to Harold M. Cooper, chairman of the State Advisory Board, instructing him to notify Kreschel that his services were terminated. He also notified Kreschel that he had sent the message to Cooper.

Officials of the Public Works Administration declined to comment on the discharge of Kreschel, and Ickes would not amplify his statement.

The administrator also announced discharge of Harry S. Berry as State engineer for the Public Works Administration in Tennessee.

Making public certain correspondence concerning Berry, Ickes said, "Loans by the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works are loans the Government expects to be repaid."

Ickes had sent a letter to Berry terminating the engineer's services and calling attention to a circular letter of October 25, which he said Berry had sent out. The circular, according to Ickes, expressed Berry's alleged belief that municipalities asking for loans for projects "will not be expected to carry out their obligation and repay these loans."

Ickes announced appointment of George H. Wells, formerly assistant to Col. H. M. Waite, deputy administrator of public works, to succeed Berry.

Boy Kills Brother Testing New Rifle

Parents' Gift Brings Death in Accident Shot.

Lincoln, Va., Nov. 13 (Spl.). Harlen Poland, 11-year-old son of Frank Poland, was accidentally killed by his brother, Billy, 13, with a .22 calibre rifle near here today.

Parents of the boys had given them the rifle as a present Saturday. This morning the boys were in the yard of their farm home testing their marksmanship. As Billy pulled the trigger Harlen ran in front of him. The shot entered Harlen's back and he ran to the porch, crying "I'm shot, I'm shot."

Dr. J. B. Hackley was called, but the boy died before the physician arrived. Besides the parents seven brothers and sisters survive.

Fate of Rebels Tried in Cuba Held Secret

Havana Quiet, But Rest of Island in State of Turmoil.

Havana, Nov. 13 (AP).—The fate of 34 soldiers accused of participating in a sanguinary rebellion last week remained unannounced today. The verdict of the tribunal trying them was in the hands of Col. Fulgencio Batista, head of the army, and President Ramon Grau San Martin.

The death sentence was asked for three rebel leaders, Sergt. Basilio Avila and Privates Homobono Rodriguez and Alejo Sanchez. They were charged with leading an uprising at Camp Columbia last Tuesday, put down after two days of fighting, and in which more than 150 persons were killed.

Havana was normal tonight, with stores, cafes and theaters open. Throughout the rest of the island, however, there were rumblings of trouble.

Oriente province was said to be in a state of turmoil. It was reliably reported that 600 rebels were operating near the town of Holquin and that the number was increasing.

Insurgents numbering 200 or more were said to be in the field south of Tanamo. Smaller bands were reported near the towns of Media Luna, Yara and Niquero, near Manzanillo on the south coast.

A small railway bridge was dynamited near Navajas in Matanzas province and a number of alleged Communists arrested.

The Uruguayan minister advised the state department tonight that Rafael Iturralde, one of the revolt leaders, had taken refuge in the Uruguay legation.

Twenty-seven prisoners were released from Cabana fortress today, one a woman, Marina Garcia.

Work Hours Face Near Cut by NRA

as Congress convenes, told the Associated Press: "I want the country to get over its headache, the quickest cure I know of."

Cites Oil Price Action.

"If the proposed price-fixing order on gasoline is permitted to go into effect, it will not only saddle high prices on the consumer, but it will mean the destruction of every independent gasoline retailer in this country. In my own State of Iowa it will put literally hundreds of independents out of business and will centralize distribution in the hands of a few big companies who will then have the consumer at their mercy."

Further criticism of the recovery program came from another quarter in a speech by Dr. Alexander Sachs, former head of the planning division of the NRA, who said that higher wages had been overemphasized, while not enough purchasing power was developed by the Federal public works program.

Addressing an audience at Swarthmore College Sunday night, he was quoted by the Associated Press as asserting: "Our maladjustment is not that we are producing too much, but that we haven't developed sufficient buying power. . . .

Holds Plan a Failure.

"Purchasing power was to have been increased by two methods. These were increased wages and through the public works program. It was thought that an increase in sales activity would enable industry to bear the burden of higheer wages, but sufficient purchasing power was not developed to absorb the higher prices."

Meanwhile Col. John P. Hogan, of New York, chairman of a construction league committee, yesterday told the governing board of the Associated General Contractors of America that the league is attempting to transfer to the NRA "the pressure that is being put on us by industry all over the country" to obtain approval of the pending construction code. Both organizations are sponsoring the code, which has drawn protests from the A. F. of L.

"We hear from some people that this movement is going to blow up," he said. "This is not true. Self-regulation of industry is going to persist regardless of whether the NRA goes or not."

NRA Onslaught Forecast.

The contractors' directorate, which is expected to adopt resolutions today declaring that delay in adopting the code is creating uncertainty and the postponement of millions in construction contracts, also heard Col. George B. Walbridge, of Detroit, predict that amendments to the recovery act will be offered "from all sides" when Congress convenes.

"Elmination of the so-called merit clause from numerous codes by the NRA probably will result in bringing the subject to the attention of Congress during the first few days of the session. Many interested employers are determined to find a way to include the provision in all codes, and the collective bargaining provision of the act is bound to be a subject of contention from both industry and labor."

Machinery manufacturers represented by the Solid Fiber Container Manufacturers Association drew plans for what they characterized as "the outstanding battle of codes" concerning clauses limiting the installation of new and additional productive machinery. The association said the clauses are "confiscatory" and members "see ruin to their business and placing in jeopardy positions of thousands of employes and millions of dollars invested in machinery and plants."

New Serum Drives Baccilli Of Tuberculosis to "Suicide"

Shelton, Conn., Nov. 13 (AP).—A serum which applied to tubercle baccilli will create an acid destructive to itself and to tuberculosis in the human body was described tonight by Dr. Stephen J. Maher, international authority on tuberculosis, to a gathering of Connecticut physicians at Laurel Heights Sanatorium.

Dr. Maher said the temptation "to preserve silence on this work until we could say 'here is a cure for tuberculosis' has been very strong.

"We have resisted this temptation because we realized that if we are on the right track the cure will be achieved much sooner if we impart our knowledge to the world. Once sighted, nothing could keep the world from immediately developing the cure, which is the greatest prize in the world."

Dr. Maher said he had not obtained any convincing evidence that the cocci or diplococci have preventive or curative effect on tuberculosis in guinea pigs or rabbits, and they apparently have no harmful effect on either.

Dr. Maher is chairman of the Connecticut Tuberculosis Commission.

Of the title of his paper Dr. Maher said he had first thought it should be: "How to coax tubercle bacilli to commit suicide," but since this was flippant he called it: "The Progeny of the Tubercle Bacilli."

Dr. Maher related experiments with bovine and human tuberculosis germs, the latter from various sanatoria, and how his microscope showed a nonfast-acid cocci and diplococci outnumbering tubercle baccilli in the test flask.

The doctor said on August 3 the blue germs which had appeared in the flask had disintegrated the tuberculosis germ. The contents began to whiten and in three days they were one-quarter curd and three-quarters whey, the tubercle bacilli had disappeared and the flask held an almost pure culture of acid-producing cocci and diplococci.

Cost Keeps Pace With Home Loans

closed. Most of the loans are made on a basis of exchange of bonds for mortgages. In many cases as many as four appraisals of the property involved are made.

The home owner makes a formal application.

The Government investigates to determine whether the loan comes within the provisions of the law.

An appraisal is made by a representative of the corporation to determine whether the mortgages is too high in proportion to the value of the property.

This appraisal is checked, usually twice, by additional appraisers in the employ of the Government.

Report on Character.

A Government representative investigates and reports on the moral character of the person asking for help with a view to determining his willingness to meet his obligations.

If everything is regular up to this point, an inspection is made to determine the title of the property. This usually long and painful job is done by an attorney in the employ of the corporation.

Then, to be sure that the real estate owner is getting a square deal, another appraisal is made by some one outside the corporation organization. This appraisal is made on a fee basis.

If both the owner and the corporation are satisfied up to this point, the owner, usually accompanied by a representative of the corporation, calls on the holder of the mortgage and attempts to persuade him to accept bonds of the Home Owners Loan Corporation in exchange for the mortgage. These bonds are secured by the real estate and their interest is guaranteed by the Government.

If the mortgage holder agrees to accept the bonds, the deal is completed. If he does not, it is possible it will be completed by a cash loan.

Finances Checked.

Another step usually taken is to determine whether the property owner can finance his loan without the financial aid of the corporation. This is done either through a new loan or through agreement with the mortgage holder. To date, 3,200 such settlements, totaling about $10,000,000, have been made.

The mortgage holder, if he himself is in need of money, must find a market for the bonds which he has accepted from the corporation. There has been no great difficulty in disposing of these bonds, but the price has been as low as $85 for a $100 bond.

Confronted with this complicated situation, Chairman Fahey already is taking steps to speed things up, both in the making of loans and in finding a reasonable market for the bonds. A part of this speeding up process is expected to take the form of some changes in the personnel of the organization.

One of the plans already being worked out calls for clearing up $903,000,000 in mortgages held by closed banks in ten States. These banks can borrow up to 80 per cent on the corporation bonds accepted for these mortgages. The loans will be made to the banks by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the proceeds can be used to pay off depositors.

Fahey announced that he would recommend the use of every competent appraiser in America to help speed up the work of the organization.

States Involved.

The $903,000,000 in mortgages are in Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Iowa, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts and California. The plan will be extended to other States as rapidly as investigations can be made.

The plan for finding an active market for the bonds once they are issued will be discussed in a few days at a meeting of private dealers with the Home Loan Board. Fahey said he is not concerned over the low price at which the bonds are selling because they are new to the public and not well understood.

A third plan calls for stimulating the formation of Federal Savings and Loan associations, 16 of which already have been chartered. Fahey pointed out that there are 1,566 counties in the United States without building and loan facilities and that in many other places facilities are inadequate.

Congress set aside $100,000,000 from which the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to buy preferred stock in Federal Savings and Loan associations in amounts not exceeding $100,000 in any one association.

Ingalls Named Welfare Director at Cleveland

Cleveland, Nov. 13 (AP).—David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy under President Hoover and Republican nominee for governor in 1933, today was named welfare director in the cabinet of Harry L. Davis, who takes office tomorrow as mayor.

Davis, former Republican governor of Ohio, succeeds a Democrat, Ray Miller.

mittee, who died shortly after he conducted hearings in New Orleans last February.

Intimidation Charged.

Mr. Holland said he had been intimidated by Chairman Connally, who had come to him in Washington and said:

"You'd better remember I am the chairman of this committee and you had better not do anything I don't tell you to do."

He declared that Senator Logan had told him he would "whip" him if he talked to him as he did Senator Connally. Senator Logan said he had told him he would "fire him."

"You kept me bottled up in Washington for four months," Mr. Holland asserted, and "now Senator Connally is so yellow" he didn't have the courage "to come here today and he hoped to slip into town after we had got down to routine."

"Who kept you tied up in Washington?" asked Senator Logan.

"The committee," replied Mr. Holland.

Senator Logan charged Mr. Holland had not submitted any evidence or any witnesses to him and that he had refused to prepare a digest of testimony with names of witnesses to substantiate it.

Witnesses Withheld.

"I have testimony and as many witnesses as you want, but you don't want them," said Mr. Holland. "I am not going to make suckers out of other witnesses when the committee is not interested."

"Then you admit you haven't submitted anything to this subcommittee?" asked Senator Logan.

"Did it ever occur to you when you were writing letters to Mrs. Hilda Phelps Hammond in Louisiana and that woman in New York you couldn't bluff, that it would have been better to look at the record and see what your chief investigator had?" asked Mr. Holland.

"Why didn't you submit the evidence as you were instructed to do by the committee?" cried Senator Logan.

"This committee came down here to close this case and not to investigate," retorted Mr. Holland.

"We will close this case when and how we please," said Senator Logan. "That will do, Mr. Holland."

Election League Quits.

Prior to Mr. Holland's outburst, the Honest Election League, through its representative, Burt Henry, withdrew from the investigation after submitting a statement in which the league stated it was convinced the present committee had no serious intentions of investigating the Overton election.

Mr. Holland took the floor after Senator Logan told Eward Rightor, counsel for former Senator Edwin Broussard, who filed the original charges, that he had not received a name of a single witness nor a scrap of evidence from any source.

Seymour Weiss, who defied the committee last spring by refusing to answer questions on campaign expenditures, told the committee today he had refused because of the attitude of the committee's former counsel, Gen. Samuel T. Ansell. He said he used cash instead of checks because he paid money out as fast as he took it in and that funds were used for radio, printing, postage, sound trucks, telegraph and telephone bills and general expenses. He said he handled all funds used in the Overton campaign.

Senator Logan brought out through Senator Overton that there was no State law governing expenditures in primary elections.

Overton Own Counsel.

At the start of the hearing, Senator Overton announced that he would represent himself instead of being represented by Senator Long, who had acted as his counsel at the two previous hearings.

The committee adjourned shortly after 6 p. m., with Senator Long on the stand. Mr. Long said he wanted to get back on his State stump-speaking tour, but agreed to return to continue his testimony tomorrow.

After Mr. Weiss concluded his testimony, Senator Long gave a detailed explanation of his method of building up and holding together his political machine, which backed Senator Overton.

Mr. Weiss said he had given money to Representative Numa Montet, candidate for reelection, and Wade Martin, Public Service Commission candidate.

"I think I gave Montet $2,500 at one time and $1,500 at another time," he said. "He came to me crying and sobbing and I called Senator Long and was told to give him some money for the campaign. In all, I think I gave him about $4,000."

Senator Long then took the stand.

Logan—"Did you have any political organization?"

Long—"Yes, the Louisiana Democratic Association. I guess you might call it a political organization."

Logan—"That was your only organization?"

Backed by Country Folk.

Long—"That's the only real organization. The nucleus of my political organization is the country folks. They've always been with me and always will be."

Logan—"Did Senator Broussard have an organization?"

Long—"Yes, but he had less hopes. He had the Honest Election League."

Burt Henry, president of the league, jumped up to call Senator Long a "liar."

Long—"That is a false accusation. If I'd find just one member of the Honest Election League who voted for Overton, I would change my opinion."

Logan—"How did you raise the money for the election?"

Long—"I had a little I put up. I gave $1,000 or $1,500. Gov. O. K. Allen gave something like $2,000. Others chipped in. We got busy, high and low, and got it from the ground up. It was a voluntary contribution from employes. Some gave 10 per cent, some more, and some none. If you spend money to elect a man and he doesn't help, he doesn't stay in long. Some never gave, but they're still on."

Logan—"How much did you spend on the election?"

$25,000 or $30,000 Spent.

Long—"I would say we spent, all told, for all seven candidates, maybe $25,000 or $30,000. Some of the congressmen spent some of their own money."

Logan—"Does your campaign work go on all the time?"

Long—"Day and night. The newspapers tell their lies and we have to get the facts to the people."

The charges were filed originally before the Senate and with the committee by former Senator Broussard several months after he had been defeated by Overton for reelection.

Mr. Broussard did not claim the election, but he charged that the Long political organization dominated the election and practiced fraud and corruption in the naming of Senator Overton as his successor.

He was joined by the Honest Election League, which amplified the charges and produced witnesses at the opening of the hearings last February in New Orleans, when Senator Long was played in opposing testimony as the guiding hand of the election.

Gen. Ansell clashed repeatedly with Mr. Long when the Senator and his political leaders told how campaign money was collected from State employes and how the "other side" was outstripped in running "in dummy candidates" to obtain poll workers.

Olson's Appeal For Arbitration Halts Strikers

Packing Firm's Employes Yield Plant, Return to Their Jobs.

Austin, Minn., Nov. 13 (AP).—Ratification of employes of the George A. Hornel & Co. of a peace plan presented by Gov. Floyd B. Olson today ended the tense situation which followed the taking over of the packing plant by the workers Saturday.

The company and 2,700 employes agreed to present wage and other differences to the State industrial commission. Work was resumed peacefully.

Hurrying here after his emissary reported an impasse in attempted negotiations, the governor spent last night in bringing about acceptance of the arbitration agreement.

National guardsmen in four nearby points had been held in reserve, meanwhile, after local authorities conceded their helplessness.

At a meeting of the workers the governor, pressed into an unusual role on his forty-second birthday anniversary, said:

"If you sign the agreements," he said, "I am assuming you will use arbitration and there will be no demonstration such as Saturday. I am labor's friend, but I can't be in the position of defending labor when it is in illegal possession of property. In other words, I can't be 'put on the spot.' * * * There is no reason, legal or otherwise, why you should be in possession of the plant. No lawyer or politician could think up any argument to condone such an action. * * * If I have to choose between my proper duty and my sympathy I will be obliged to choose duty."

Accused by Woman

Attack Charged To Lawyer by Woman Guest

Wife of Retired Naval Officer Accuses Internal Revenue Attache.

Keith Carlin, 41, of 2008 Sixteenth street northwest, will be arraigned in Police Court today on a charge of assault on Mrs. Marue Frazer, 31, wife of Lieut Comdr. Hugh Carroll Frazer, U. S. N., retired. Carlin is an attorney in the Internal Revenue Bureau and a son of Charles C. Carlin, sr., Alexandria publisher and former member of Congress.

The alleged attack occurred, Mrs. Frazer told police, in Carlin's apartment Sunday morning. She said she had been attending a bridge party at the Mayflower Hotel and had gone from there to Carlin's apartment to meet some of his friends.

According to Mrs. Frazer, four friends of Carlin came in and supper was served. She told police that after supper the friends left and that when she suggested leaving Carlin asked her to stay. It was then, she said, that he struggled with her, tearing her clothes.

Mrs. Frazer and her husband have retained Charles S. Baker, attorney, to represent her. She was said to be under medical care.

Sachs Retirement Confirmed in N. Y.

NRA Chief May Serve as Adviser 2 Weeks More.

Confirming an announcement in The Washington Post about a month ago, the office of Dr. Alexander Sachs in New York told the Associated Press yesterday that Dr. Sachs had resigned as chairman of the Research and Planning Division of the NRA.

At Sachs' office it was stated he is now "spending most of his time in New York." It was indicated that he may serve the Recovery Administration at least two weeks longer in an advisory capacity.

Dr. Stephen Du Bruhl has been acting as head of the Research Division in the absence of Sachs. Sachs himself made no statement, except that he was leaving the matter for Gen. Johnson to decide upon his return.

Two High Teams Seek Vanderbilt Bridge Cup

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—The final knockout round for the classic Vanderbilt Cup, most prized trophy in contract bridge, settled down to a neck and neck affair tonight, with only a slight difference separating the two remaining teams after the first 36 boards. Sixty-four more boards will be played.

At the end of the afternoon session, the team of Frank Rendon, Benjamin Feuer, Phil Abramsohn and Sam Rusinow had the fragile margin of 810 points over L. H. Watson, A. M. Barnes, Richard Frey, and Sam Fry, Jr.

Keech Asks Utility Commission Change as Public Safeguard

Revolutionary changes in the "present impractical set-up" of the Public Utilities Commission were proposed last night by People's Counsel Richard B. Keech.

Mr. Keech told the Stanton Park Citizens Association the procedure at valuation hearings should be changed so that the commission will not be in the position of sponsoring the cause of one side and later passing upon the arguments of the conflicting interests in a quasi-judicial manner.

The speaker explained present custom is for the commission's counsel to present the case of the public when valuations of utilities are determined. He said that could be avoided by authorizing the people's counsel to present valuation statistics to combat those offered by counsel for the utility involved.

"It has been claimed by one, to my knowledge," Mr. Keech declared, "that a commission must act as representative of the rate payers and also in a judicial role. It must be both lawyer and judge—a lawyer for the people and a judge administering the public service commission law.

"It is respectfully submitted that such a thing is impossible."

Keech explained he did not question the honesty of the utilities commissioners, but wished to see the rights of the public safeguarded.

Radio Official Becomes South Carolina Colonel

Herbert L. Pettey, secreatry of the Federal Radio Commission, has been designated as a colonel on the staff of Gov. I. C. Blackwood of South Carolina. Announcement was made by J. T. Clement, unofficial representative here of the South Carolina executive.

Richard S. Roper, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, and Edward A. Nicholas, vice president of the RCA Victor Co., also were appointed colonels on Gov. Blackwood's staff.

Wallace Views All Farm Land Rigidly Ruled

Control of Every Acre to Follow New Policy, Says Secretary.

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP).—A "rational resettlement of America" was pictured today by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as one of the probable results of the new process of limiting crop production.

Addressing the forty-seventh annual convention of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities, Secretary Wallace forecast the complete control, acre by acre, of all American farm land.

"It is clear that we must determine in the immediate future which lands are best suited for the commercial production of the staple crops, which had best be put back into trees, and which should not be used for agriculture at all, but simply for places of recreation and residence," he said.

The acreage of harvested crops in this country next year probably will be between 30,000,000 and 35,000,000 acres under the total of recent years, added the Secretary. This outlook for decreased production, he declared, calls for immediate consideration of acreage allotments for the various crops.

"In changing our pattern of basic crop production," he said, "we have set upon a process which is bound to alter our entire agricultural structure; and I think it may go beyond that and lead in time to a rational resettlement of America. The agricultural adjustment experiment is the opening move of a historic attempt to devise a sensible working policy for our land."

Illegitimate Grandson Wins Fight for Estate

Cleveland, Nov. 13 (AP).—John Fink of Colorado Springs, won a three-year legal battle against 150 relatives of the late Thompson R. Johnson, Cleveland attorney, today when common pleas court granted him the bulk of the estate in the role of illegitimate grandson of Johnson.

The estate was once valued at $1,000,000.

British Probe Soviet Activities in India

London, Nov. 13 (U.P.).—Capt. Anthony Eden, undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, announced in the House of Commons tonight that the British Embassy in Moscow had been asked to report on instructions alleged to have been issued recently by the Third Internationale in Moscow to agents in India for subversive activities.

Wagner Names Neill, Hanna On Mine Board

2 D. C. Men Will Assist in Study of Coal Field Conditions.

Charles O. Neill and Dr. Hugh S. Hanna, both of Washington, were named to a committee yesterday by Chairman Robert F. Wagner, of the National Labor Board, to investigate labor complaints in the anthracite district of Pennsylvania.

Neill will be chairman.

The committee was appointed in accordance with the board's promise to establish a "fact-finding committee to make the fullest investigation on all complaints about conditions and practices" if striking miners would return to work. Forty thousand returned to the shafts yesterday.

"The conditions which we laid down seem to have been fulfilled," Wagner said in announcing the appointments. The committee will hold hearings in the anthracite area.

Neill is industrial adviser or personnel director of the Southern Railway. He was impartial umpire in the anthracite industry for 25 years, has represented consumers at NRA code hearings, and is active in the National Catholic Welfare Council.

Dr. Hanna, editor of the Labor Department's Labor Review, formerly was chief examiner of the National War Labor Board.

Mrs. Clephane Is Dead at 97

Was Widow of Pioneer Postmaster and G. O. P. Leader Here.

Mrs. Annie M. Clephane, 97, whose husband was one of the outstanding figures of the early days of the Republican party, died yesterday at her home, 3417 Woodley road, after an illness of two weeks.

Born in Westfield, Mass., Mrs. Clephane married in 1862 in West Haven, Conn.

Her husband, Lewis Clephane, became manager of "National Era" and later Collector of Internal Revenue and postmaster of the city of Washington. He died here in 1897.

Mrs. Clephane is survived by two sons, Walter C. Clephane, prominent Capital attorney, and Lewis P. Clephane, and a daughter, Miss Ella C. Clephane. A third son, Alan O. Clephane, died in 1918.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 11 a. m. Wednesday, conducted by Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of Covenant First Presbyterian Church, and Dr. Albert Evans, associate pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Replies to 3,500,000 questionnaires to various industries, seeking data on the number of jobs created under NRA and on payrolls increased, are still pouring in at Census Bureau. "I SHALL fight for elimination of the pay cuts," Senator Homer T. Bone (Democrat), Washington, declared yesterday.

BAKER.

Representative J. J. Mansfield, of Texas, does not share the views of his colleague, Representative Tom Blanton, who is violently opposing repeal of the Federal pay cuts. Mr. Mansfield yesterday stated he is "in favor of restoration of Government salaries as circumstances permit."

President Roosevelt will return Federal employes to the old scale when he feels commodity prices have reached the old level, in the opinion of Representative Henry E. Stubbs, of California.

"I am in sympathy with the return of the old scale," Mr. Stubbs said, "but because I, too, would be affected, it would be unbecoming of me to express an opinion."

Snow Fences Erected On Richmond Highway

Snow fences are being erected along the Richmond-Washington highway in Fairfax County by the State highway department to prevent drifting snow from blocking the highway.

The fence is erected each fall and removed in the spring, and is placed only at points where snow has a tendency to interfere with traffic.

Smith Here Today To See Roosevelt

affairs in Gotham no longer is necessary.

Quite as completely as President Roosevelt, Al Smith kept aloof from the recent bitter three-cornered mayoralty fight, which saw Tammany's hold on New York City smashed in a rambunctious Fusion victory. And immediately after that battle it became apparent that talk of Postmaster General Farley's having lost prestige through his luke-warm support of the candidacy of Joseph V. McKee was merely Tammany's "sound and fury." With untold Federal patronage at his disposal, "Big Jim" could afford to smile at the clamor raised by John F. Curry, sachem of the wigwam, demanding that Farley be read out of the chairmanship of the Democratic party.

Allied With Powerful.

Among Farley's answers to Curry's outburst was the appointment last week-end of William B. Riley as collector of internal revenue for the Albany district, marking a definite alliance between "Big Jim" and the O'Connell brothers, Albany County Democratic leaders, who broke with Tammany to follow Farley several months ago. Immediately following announcement of this appointment, friends of Curry hurriedly sought a reconciliation.

In the absence of Farley yesterday—he is returning today, simultaneously with the arrival of Al Smith—it was impossible to ascertain here what would be the reaction to these Tammany overtures. There was good reason to believe that Smith's visit to the White House—"just a personal one, as far as I know," the former governor said last night—may hold the answer to this and other questions concerning the Administration's renewal of relations with New York City.

Reorganization Indicated.

The aloofness of Roosevelt and Smith and the indifferent support accorded McKee by Farley definitely wrecked Tammany's hold on New York, but had the effect of electing a Republican—Fiorello H. LaGuardia. And there is no suggestion anywhere that the Democrats mean to leave that all-important metropolis long under an unimpeded Republican regime.

Reorganization of the New York City Democratic set-up is indicated. A trade agreement between the Roosevelt-Farley and Smith forces in that city, with what they decide to leave to the Tammany machine perforce going along, undoubtedly could heal the present Democratic breach to an extent where the city would be back on the Democratic side of the fence in 1936, if not, indeed, in 1934.

It is not unreasonable to suppose, therefore, that when Al Smith tilts back his chair and tilts up his cigar in the President's study today, for their "purely personal" chat, one of the questions Mr. Roosevelt may ask will be:

"By the way, Al, how are things up in New York City?"

Arlington Mass Meeting Backs Sewer Bonds

Indorsement of the proposed $2,500,000 bond issue for sewers, to be voted on next Tuesday, was given last night by the Arlington County Board in a mass meeting at the Washington-Lee High School.

Allen B. McDaniel, chief engineer in charge of plans and specifications, said funds would be spent under Government supervision and the work will be inspected by the Federal agents. He declared passage of the issue would mean improved health conditions, relief to unemployment and an increase in property values.

Maj. Richard Messer, chief engineer of the State Health Department, told the audience that "if you don't approve the issue next Tuesday, you will five years from now and you will pay 7 per cent for the money instead of 4 per cent, which is now asked by the Government." Other speakers were County Manager Roy S. Braden, Monroe H. Stockett, Edmund D. Campbell and Mrs. C. M. Rogers. Dr. Stacy Noland, chairman of the citizens committee, presided.

After the meeting George E. H. Goodner, president of the Thrifton Village Improvement League, said he and his committee, which has made a study of the issue and opposes it, had been refused a part in the discussion. He said he had been barred from the meeting by Harry A. Fellows, chairman of the county board. An opposition mass meeting will be held Friday at 8 p. m. in the Washington-Lee High School, he announced.

Coroner's Jury Probes Wife's Death by Shot

Killed Self, Mate Insists; Neighbor Will Be Chief Witness Today.

The fatal shooting of Mrs. Nellie E. Bishop, 33, 21 Bates street northwest, in her apartment, early Sunday morning will be investigated by a coroner's jury at 11:30 a. m. today.

Earl E. Bishop, 32, her husband, was held by police.

Last night Bishop insisted his wife shot herself. He explained a cut on his hand as the result of breaking a glass pane in the door of the apartment. This accounted also for blood on his clothes, he said.

An autopsy was performed Sunday by Acting Coroner A. MacGruder MacDonald.

Mrs. Theresa Schmidt, occupant of the room adjacent to the one in which Mrs. Bishop was killed, is expected to be the prinicpal witness at today's inquest. At home with her small son, Mrs. Schmidt heard the conversation that preceded the shooting, police said.

Cheverly Argues New Light System

Ordinance to Force Weed Cutting Is Passed.

Many citizens have appeared before the Mayor and Town Council of Cheverly, Md., to urge the establishment of a lighting system in the town.

It was decided that the mayor and members of the council, together with citizens, would form a committee to study the situation. A meeting has been called for Wednesday night.

An ordinance providing for the installation of a house-numbering system has been adopted.

Another ordinance has been adopted to compel property owners to cut weeds, underbrush and thickets.

It is provided that an owner may be fined $1 to $25 should he refuse to clean up his premises after five days' notice. In cases where an owner is out of town the municipality may have the work done and charge the cost to him.

Admr. McLean Will Be Buried In Arlington

Fleet Maneuvers Postponed For Commander of Division Three.

Rear Admiral Ridley McLean, commander of Battleship Division Three, who died aboard his flagship, U. S. S. Nevada, Sunday, will be buried in Arlington Cemetery, the Navy Department announced yesterday. Other arrangements have not yet been completed.

The commander maintained a home in Washington at 2121 Kalorama road. He is survived by the widow, who is now at Long Beach, Calif.

Because of Admiral McLean's death, 51 ships of the United States fleet remained at anchor in San Francisco harbor. Scheduled maneuvers were postponed by Admiral David Foot Sellers, fleet commander.

Admiral McLean was born at Pulaski, Tenn., in 1872. He was appointed to the Naval Academy from Tennessee in 1890. During the Spanish-American War he served on the U. S. S. Armeria and the U. S. S. Panther.

He was awarded the Navy Cross for World War service with this citation: "For exceptionally meritorious service in a duty of great responsibility as commanding officer, U. S. S. New Hampshire and as chief of staff to the commander of Battleship Force 1, Atlantic Fleet."

Admiral McLean attended the Naval War College in 1919 and 1920 and the following year completed the Army War College course. He commanded the U. S. S. Arkansas from 1922 to 1924. From 1924 until 1927 he served as diretcor of Naval Communications at the Navy Department. He served as budget officer, Navy Department, until he assumed his last command.

Medalie Quits New York Post November 21

To Resume Law Practice on Retirement as U. S. Prosecutor.

George Z. Medalie, United States Attorney for the Southern New York district, yesterday asked President Roosevelt and Attorney General Cummings to be relieved of his duties by November 21.

Medalie wishes to resume private practice and already has rented offices. His fiftieth birthday falls on November 21.

The Department of Justice declined to tell its choice of a successor to Medalie. Numerous persons have been mentioned for the position with a number of endorsements coming in during the last week for Ferdinand Pecora, Senate banking committee prosecutor.

Appointed By Hoover.

Medalie was appointed by President Hoover in February, 1931. He built up a brilliant record, winning high regard from Attorney General Cummings, who recently urged him to stay in office.

Among those first mentioned as Medalie's successor were Carl Austrian, special counsel in the liquidation of the Bank of the United States, and M. Maldwin Ferwig, counsel to President Roosevelt when Governor of New York, and to Gov. Lehman.

It is no secret that the Department of Justice wants Mr. Roosevelt to name Medalie's successor before the President departs for his Georgia vacation. In view of Medalie's record, the Attorney General was anxious for him to continue in office and said so. At one time he publicly praised Medalie and referred to him as one of the Republicans he would like to see remain in the service.

Pecora's Name Persists.

Pecora's name has persistently featured discussions, and the department admitted several indorsements for the investigator—defeated for New York district attorney on the McKee ticket—had been received. They did not discuss the weight of the indorsements.

Approximately 50 assistant United States attorneys are on the staff of the New York office. It is assumed they will be replaced with Democrats, making the appointment of the attorney an important patronage matter. It was stated at the department that word on the appointment probably would be forthcoming from the White House.

The Justice Department declined to make public Medalie's letter of resignation.

George Miller, Editor Of Detroit News, Quits

Detroit, Nov. 13 (AP).—The resignation of George E. Miller, since 1918 editor of the Detroit News, and appointment of W. S. Gilmore, present managing editor, as his successor, was announced today by W. E. Scripps, president of the News.

The announcement stated that Mr. Miller's resignation would take effect December 1, and that Mr. Gilmore, for the time being, would continue the active management of the editorial department.

Pieces of Eight — One of Blackbeard's Jokes — By Charles B. Driscoll

Blackbeard, the pirate, acting wildly in his cabin, frightened his two dinner guests, Mate Richards and Bo'sun Hands. "Sit still where you are!" he shouted, when the men attempted to rise. "I'm just going to show you lads a trick with pistols my grandma taught me."

The big pirate (whose whiskers grew each day at sea, and were never shaved off during a cruise) was highly amused at the alarm of his men. To increase their fear, he drank a pot of rum that was brought to him scalding hot, smashed dishes on the floor, and shouted meaningless oaths.

Blackbeard put out the light, leaving only a guttering candle in a far corner. He seated himself at the table, crossed the pistols under the table, and grinned insanely at the two frightened men opposite. "Now watch," he said. "Here's grandma's pistol trick!" And fired both weapons.

When the light was up again, Capt. Teach plunged out of the cabin, laughing his mad laughter. Mate Richards lifted Israel Hands to the table. The old boatswain had been hit in the right knee by one of the bullets at close range, and was bleeding badly.

Film Audience Takes Bahama Tour Tonight

Dr. R. W. Miner to Give Post-Travel Guild Lecture.

Pictures of rare tropical fish swimming about colored coral formations of the Bahama Islands and scenes of native life and sports will be shown at the Masonic Auditorium tonight in the second of a series of twenty travel talks sponsored by the Washington Travel Guild in cooperation with The Washington Post.

Dr. Roy Waldo Miner, curator of lesser invertebrates with the American Museum of Natural History, will describe his experiences on five expeditions to Nassau and the Bahamas on which he made the under-water photographs.

The Bahama Islands, one of the oldest British colonies, include nearly 700 islands and islets and 2,000 rocks. The colony has an area of 4,500 miles. Here are beautiful old plantation homes in contrast to uninhabited areas where cattle and donkeys roam wildly; Andros men who fish with bows and arrows, as opposed to the modern night life of Nassau, and, surrounding all, the beauties of a tropic sea with its marine gardens and exotic life.

The purpose of The Washington Post in presenting the lecture series is to acquaint its readers with the various corners of the world from which the daily news is gathered by The Associated Press and other agencies which serve this newspaper.

The lectures will be given at 8:15 o'clock each Tuesday evening, up to and including Tuesday, April 3. Through the camera's eye, Washingtonians may view the natural wonders and native customs of many foreign countries.

Miss Mary G. Whiteman, Washington stylist, will demonstrate appropriate costumes for visitors' wear on living models. Native costumes will be shown in some instances.

An admission charge of 25 cents is made for each lecture to defray part of the expenses. Reserved season tickets for the 19 remaining lectures are available, at a price of $4.75 at the Ober Steamship & Tourist Agency, 1420 H street northwest, or at the Masonic Auditorium box-office on lecture evenings.

Dr. Miner's high standing as an expert on marine life of the Bahamas makes tonight's lecture one of the most informative of the entire series.

Settlement Expected For Mary McCormic

Los Angeles, Nov. 13 (AP).—Trial of the separate maintenance suit of Mary McCormic, opera singer, against Prince Serge Mdivani was postponed today.

Attorneys for both sides announced a settlement is probable, and either the singer's action or her husband's counter divorce suit would be allowed to go by default.

Ship With Stricken Crew Makes Port

Only 4 Out of 18 Sailors Man Swedish Craft.

Rotterdam, Holland, Nov. 13 (AP). Completing a voyage from French Guiana with most of its crew incapacitated by malaria, the 1,400-ton Swedish steamer Elsie made port today.

Its stricken crew was much improved, but they said at one time only 4 of its 18 men were able to man the ship. Not a man was lost, however.

The malaria made its virulent appearance when the sailors, on account of heat, slept on the decks and were stung by mosquitoes.

Germany's Plebiscite.

No one doubted that Chancellor Hitler would obtain a preponderant majority of the votes cast in Sunday's plebiscite. Considering the conditions under which the plebiscite was staged, the surprise is that the chancellor obtained only 93.5 per cent approval of his program.

The German people had no safe alternative to indorsement of the Nazi regime and its policies. They were bombarded for weeks with Nazi propaganda, and no opposition to the Nazi slate of candidates for the Reichstag, or to Hitler's foreign policy, was permitted in public. Even private dissenters from the government's viewpoint were in danger of prison sentences. Newspapers instructed citizens how to vote in favor of the Hitler program. Editors throughout the Reich, under domination of the propaganda ministry, represented failure to vote in favor of the Nazi program as tantamount to treason.

Bands and fanfare summoned the people to the polling places. "Yes" badges were sold at the voting booths, apparently to emphasize the wisdom of casting affirmative ballots. It is reported, also, that the "secret ballots" were deposited in orderly stacks so that recalcitrant voters may be identified from the position of their names on the register which was compiled as the votes were cast. In the face of these restrictions only 6.5 per cent of the voters were bold enough to indicate their disapproval of the Nazi regime.

Without question this is one of the strangest elections in modern times. Why should Hitler and his aids arouse the German people to feverish excitement over an issue that had already been decided? The answer seems to be that the Nazi chieftain was conducting a show for the "enlightment" of the world. His aim has been to manifest to the League of Nations complete unity in the Reich in support of his demands for equality of armaments. Apparently it did not occur to Germany's masters of propaganda that the regimentation of voters, under extreme duress, for the purpose of confirming Chancellor Hitler's policy would not deceive other countries.

While attempting thus to create the appearance of a united front in Germany, the Nazi regime also sought to blindfold the German people as to the real issue confronting the Reich at Geneva. "You are not voting for any government," Chancellor Hitler told the electorate. "You are battling for Germany's position in the world." Nazi spellbinders put forth the theory that Germany is surrounded by hostile nations which are threatening to impose dishonor and ignominy upon that country. Only through support of the Hitler regime, these propagandists asserted, can such foreign conspiracies be frustrated and the rights of the German people preserved.

The real purpose of this plebiscite may have been achieved so far as the mass of the German people are concerned, but it will not fool the rest of the world.

British Trade Improves.

The London Economist reports a "sustained improvement in trade and industry in the United Kingdom" during September, which, it adds, "was not paralleled in the world as a whole." The Economist's monthly index of business activity was only 1 per cent below the average of 1930 and but 4.6 per cent below that of 1929.

The unemployment returns for the end of September also showed improvement, with the percentage of insured unemployed less than in September, 1932. British exports were higher than in September a year ago, railway receipts had increased, and security values had risen 7.3 per cent above the level of last year. The output of steel was the highest for any month since May, 1930, and October was expected to show further advances, while reports from a number of other industries were similarly encouraging.

It is interesting to note that these recent increases in productive activity have not been accompanied by a pronounced rise in prices. According to the Economist index of wholesale prices, the advance during the year has amounted to only 1.8 per cent, while the index of the Board of Trade shows an increase of less than 1 per cent, although in both cases the advance over the low levels of the early spring has been more pronounced. Retail prices also have shown surprising stability from month to month, and in August were estimated to be at the level of the preceding year.

The British record certainly indicates that a rise in domestic prices has not been a condition antecedent to business improvement. Those who are prone to cite the British experience when they wish to make out a case for currency depreciation as a means of raising prices and thereby stimulating business activity should look at the record. Then they would see that the recent improvement which has taken place in Great Britain has been "modest," as the Economist admits, but it has been sustained, and it has not been accompanied by sudden fluctuations in domestic prices. On the contrary, the belief has been widespread that prices would be kept from rising rapidly, thereby enabling business men to plan for the future and to profit by an expansion of the demand for their products, instead of having to forfeit the advantages of increased sales by making heavy additional outlays for labor and raw materials.

Loans to Railroads.

Secretary Ickes has written letters to the governors of several States urging them to speed up their expenditures for public works which are financed in large part by the Public Works Administration. For one reason or another these States are backward in letting contracts which would put men to work. In some instances the States are having difficulties in financing their proportion of the public works funds, and in other States differences have arisen concerning the control of expenditures.

In the meantime, the practical distribution of public works funds for actual employment in connection with railroad needs apparently has not been pushed as rapidly as conditions require. Aside from the $84,000,000 lent to the Pennsylvania Railroad for electrification of the New York-Washington line, only $51,000,000 has been made available to all the railroads of the United States. With this they will purchase 1,000,000 tons of steel rails and 400,000 tons of track fastenings and plates. The money will be expended in 35 States, and should be a direct and effective aid in relieving unemployment.

The railroads, however, could use to advantage vastly larger sums. Roadbeds, rolling stock, and equipment generally should be brought up to date. The average expenditures for such purposes has been very low for several years, during which time the needs have been piling up. Expenditures by the railroads stimulate the capital goods industries in which unemployment is most marked. The use of funds for improvements will promote economies, which can not be said of all public works projects.

Money loaned to the railroads would not be a gift, in whole or in part, as is the case with loans to States or communities. The Railway Age calls attention to the fact that when the railroads were turned back to private control in 1920 the Government loaned them $1,080,000,000, of which all but $40,000,000 has been repaid with interest. Some of the money loaned to the railroads by the R. F. C. during the past year and a half already has been repaid.

Since loans to railroads are repayable, and since expenditures for railroad improvements create an immediate demand for labor in all parts of the country, it would seem that the Public Works Administration has an opportunity to expedite unemployment relief in this field.

Learning to Save Again.

The German savings banks and credit institutions are preaching the virtues of thrift and trying to impress upon the public the importance of saving as a means of increasing the capital resources of the country. Even in pre-war days Germany's domestic capital fund was scanty compared with her long-term capital requirements, but that was due primarily to the fact that the nation was expanding its industries rapidly and profitably.

The post-war scarcity of capital funds has been of quite different origin—the result of a sharp decline in national income, which reduced ability to save, and inflation, which destroyed the incentive to save.

After the mark had been stabilized, excess capital of other countries poured into Germany and for a time public attention was diverted from the unsatisfactory conditions prevailing in the domestic capital market. With the advent of the world depression and the withdrawal of foreign investment support, however, Germany, like other debtor countries, was compelled to fall back upon domestic sources of capital supply. The result has been a keener realization of the necessity of reviving popular interest in saving and encouraging a return to those thrifty habits which were characteristic of pre-war Germany.

It is not surprising that the will to save has been seriously impaired. On the contrary it is amazing that it has survived as well as it has, notwithstanding the wholesale destruction of capital values brought about by the post-war inflation. The collapse of the mark swept away the life savings of millions of Germans and reduced the obligations of the government to worthless bits of paper. The shock to confidence is still felt and acts as a deterrent to saving, apart from the limitations due to actual scarcity of surplus income available for investment.

There are other present-day deterrents to saving, which affect the will to save, not only of Germany but of other nations that have experienced severe losses through currency depreciation. An initial flight into consumable goods from a steadily deteriorating monetary medium, which is justified at first as a protective measure, may persist later when the need for such spending is past. In other words, insecurity of investment encourages extravagant habits which subsequently may be difficult to break. Moreover, the recent emphasis which has been placed upon consumption as a means of stimulating business revival has been preached everywhere—until people are in danger of forgetting that saving, too, stimulates industry because it supplies funds used for the purchase of capital goods of all kinds.

In addition to all these influences, general and specific, which have weakened the will of the Germans to save, mention should be made of the growing dependence upon short-term banking credits as substitutes for long-term capital funds furnished by individuals who actually have "saved" by consuming less and freeing income for investment. As a result of excessive reliance upon short-term credits of this sort, Germany now is burdened with a large floating debt which ultimately will have to be funded in good part, regardless of the rights of creditors to demand speedy payment.

Thus by bitter experience the Germans have learned that thrift is still one of the strongest assets that a nation can possess. Without it, a country can not accumulate the capital needed for industrial replacement and expansion, except by drawing upon the resources of other nations or utilizing short-term credits in dangerous and unsuitable ways. Consequently, the Germans are trying to strengthen the desire for saving among people whose investment morale has been seriously impaired by the post-war collapse of the country's monetary system.

Destructive Insects.

The annual loss caused in the United States by insects is estimated by the Department of Agriculture to reach a total of $2,000,000,000. Without insecticides, according to Dr. Henry G. Knight, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, it would be impossible to feed the world as society is organized today. Only by concerted war on predatory insects which dispute possession of the earth with man can society be protected against famine and pestilence.

The damage to growing plants caused by insects every year in this country is estimated to average 10 per cent of their value. Dr. Knight places the loss to forest trees alone at $100,000,000 annually. Flies and gnats and their larval forms cause livestock growers an equal loss. The destruction charged to insects in stored fabrics, grains, feed and foodstuffs amounts to another $200,000,000.

Largely through the research of the Department of Agriculture, many improvements in insecticides and fumigants have been perfected. The welfare of the American apple industry is dependent in considerable measure upon lead arsenate, more than 30,000,000 pounds being used annually. Calcium arsenate has proved to be the most effective insecticide in checking the cotton boll weevil. New fumigants have been developed by the department for eradicating insects in stored grain, which avoid the fire hazard connected with the use of carbon disulphide.

Dr. Knight explains that one of the serious problems connected with the general use of insecticides is the possible effect of their residues upon human health. Restrictions as to the arsenic content in products for both domestic use and for export have been met by improved methods of washing fruit, but these methods add to costs and may cause storage losses. Department experts constantly are experimenting to develop more effective insecticides that are harmless to man.

Hitler might just as well have called for a viva voce vote and announced: "The ayes have it."

As a Nazi "secret ballot" can be checked against the voter there appear to be more than 3,000,000 very brave people in Germany who voted "No."

In New York imbibers can stand up for beer, but must sit down for whisky and be carried out before any one thinks it is a saloon.

Having to watch his circumference in proportion to his altitude, Mayor LaGuardia intends to cut out state dinners.

The next revolution may occur in the Montevideo conference if Secretary Hull tries to limit deliberations to the Pan-American highway.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Influenced by movie melodramas and sensational press stories, the public in general has formed a false picture of the really big gangster type. The popular conception of the public enemy is a man of foreign name and appearance, most likely an Italian, with a loud, brutal, domineering personality, a flashy taste for dress that runs to silk shirts in violent colors and diamond stickpins, and a general air of underworld slickness that would warn any person in his right senses of the danger of dealing with such an individual. In reality, the man of that type is much more likely to be the cheap racketeer, or at best the "front" for some more subtle and intelligent criminal.

As a case in point, take Harvey Bailey, who is now safe in the hands of the Federal Government. He is anything but the flashy type of gangster. It has been said of him that he has much more the appearance of a bank president than of a bank robber, and his manner helps to carry out the illusion. His photographs show a face that betrays none of the familiar criminal characteristics. The head is well-shaped, the chin square and strong, the forehead wide. The eyes are set well apart, and have neither the lack-lustre nor the shifty appearance that is so frequently seen in rogues' gallery photographs. Bailey is a tall man, well-built, and his clothes are of sober cut and pattern. His name is straight Anglo-Saxon, and though little is known of his background and early history, he is thought to have been born on a farm in Sullivan County, Mo., where his mother still lives.

Such is the man who blazed a trail of crime across the Middle West, and escaped for years without punishment. He is charged with participation in four of the most notorious episodes in American crime history: The brutal St. Valentine's Day massacre which took place in Chicago in 1929, in which a group of men were lined up against a wall and murdered in cold blood; the Union Station massacre in Kansas City last June, which resulted in the death of five men; the $2,000,000 robbery of the Lincoln Bank & Trust Co. at Lincoln, Nebr., the largest bank robbery in history; and the Urschel kidnaping case, which finally involved him with the forces of the new Federal kidnaping bureau and resulted in his arrest and conviction. Such is the man whom even an experienced criminologist probably would not pick as a criminal type and whom the ordinary layman would take for a solidly respectable citizen.

A Job for Towser.

Letters to the Editor.

"EUROPE IS EUROPE."

Suggests Continental as Well as National Loyalty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What ails Europe anyway? Nationalism is a mighty good thing, but like other good things it's a terror when abused. If Europe is a continent, why doesn't "continental Europe" behave like a continent? If national patriotism is a virtue, why should there not be such a thing as continental patriotism, or at least continental loyalty? Why should each nation jealously keep to itself and bother tourists with its everlasting passports, &c.? Why not have free transit and migration all over Europe, so that races may mingle as they do over here? Because Europe is Europe, and America is America?

Take a case in point. During the World War I happened to know a nice family of foreign extraction. The husband was German and his wife French. Moreover, he was a soldier in the American Army, and both he and his wife were strongly militaristic in sentiment; i. e., they thought boys should aspire to the military life as the most honorable of professions. But a more loving and devoted couple you could not easily find, and the war between Germany and the Allies made absolutely no difference in their happy relations. Nor did it in the least affect the husband's soldierly loyalty to the United States.

If such cases prove anything, they prove that human nature is the same throughout all the nations which maks up contentious Europe. Racial differences can not subdue mother nature. Yet once place a Frenchman or German on his native soil—and what have you? Potential enemies, traditional rivals, enemies to brotherly love and to the common continental mission that should be Europe's.

Sometimes I think that the best foundation for real world peace would be the world-wide development of real continentalism. Can the races and counrties of Europe be made to see that? Or is it too late? J. W.

YES, DOGS LAUGH.

Brief Tribute to Man's Friend and Helper.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A dog is a real friend of man. Dogs can laugh and cry. I have seen one commit suicide, when he was very unhappy, and he had a good reason for being so.

Dogs save many lives. They are unselfish, kind, long-suffering, patient and faithful unto death. A dog is a loyal friend when one is in trouble.

I have received letters from dog lovers that tell me that dogs smile. I know they do, for my Scotch terrier does. We received a letter last week from Mr. Albert Payson Terhune, and his words were these, "Yes, I believe dogs have a laugh, though of course a silent one."

LITHUANIA'S DEBT.

Minister Says No Default Has Occurred in Her Case.

To the Editor of The Post.—Sir: In the issue of your paper of November 8 in the article headed "U. S. Accepts British War Debt Token" there is a paragraph enumerating the nations which made "token payments" last June and the nations which defaulted.

Among those which defaulted, your article mentions also Lithuania. This is incorrect. Lithuania made a part payment on her indebtedness last June and no default is registered against her.

As far as I am aware, this is also the case with Lithuania's sister-nation Latvia, which also erroneously figures as a defaulter in your article. B. K. BALUTIS, Minister of Lithuania.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Hamlet.

This play, as we now have it, was published in 1604. After more than 300 years, no one knows for certain whether or not Hamlet was insane; some say he was, some say he only pretended to be, and the late Dr. Furness said he was neither insane nor did he ever pretend to be. There is also the widest divergence of opinion as to his strength of will; some say he lacked energy and resolution, others say he had these qualities to a high degree. Whether he was really in love with Ophelia or not, is also debatable.

One thing is certain. He is the most interesting college undergraduate in literature; and he is so lovable, so irresistible, that I can not remember any other young man more universally regarded with affection. Whatever else he was, he was certainly a gentleman; Shakespeare associated him with young men of fashion, and apparently he had no difficulty in representing that type on the stage.

No play ever written is more sure of permanence on the stage than Hamlet. Even if it did not contain great poetry, it would still be thrilling in its characters and situations. I have heard Edwin Booth, Forbes Robertson, E. S. Willard, Wilson Barrett, John Barrymore, Walter Hampden, E. H. Sothern; I have heard the play in French and in German; in 1932 it was the most popular play in Paris.

The more one studies it, the more interesting it becomes; but even to the densely ignorant, it is wildly exciting. Years ago, I sat in the top gallery in Birmingham, England, while Wilson Barrett was playing; the workingmen around me had no idea how it was going to end. How I envied them! When Hamlet drew his sword while the King was praying, my neighbor whispered "Now he's going to kill him!" and his disappointment was delightful.

Tomorrow—Keats.

By Robert Quillen.

When our fathers had to endure an evil that seemed unavoidable, they decided it was good for them. Suffering was universal and apparently necessary. Therefore it was ordained of heaven to chasten the spirit and purify the soul.

That doctrine isn't popular now, but it still has supporters.

An article in the November Atlantic says the one thing that redeems life and makes it worth while is "to learn to suffer in patience, in humility, in confidence that suffering is the supreme meaning and purpose of life."

It may be true, but I can't believe it.

If you accept the first part of orthodox theology—that man suffers because of Adam's fall—there is no reason to reject the second part, by which man is redeemed from the original curse.

If sin causes suffering, and God gave His Son to redeem the world from sin, surely it isn't His desire that man should suffer.

And if you reject all theology, and accept the evidence of Nature alone, where do you find proof that suffering is the purpose of life? The wild things observe the laws of Nature, which surely are the laws of God; and though many of them are doomed to suffer, they all have means of protection or escape and evade suffering when they can.

If suffering is the meaning and purpose of life, why are they so well equipped to escape it?

Does the rule apply to man alone? He also does his utmost to avoid hurt. Did Nature give him an instinctive urge to escape the very purpose for which he lives?

There is no evidence that God desires His creatures to suffer.

Children are born blind and maimed and diseased, but they would have no blemish if their parents had obeyed God's laws.

Wars cause untold suffering, but they are an evil easily avoided.

Crime, poverty and disease fill the world with misery, but men could prevent all three if they would.

No suffering man endures is ordained of heaven, for in every instance he invited hurt by wrong living or failed to employ the wit God gave him.

Are men doomed by storms at sea, by cyclones, floods and volcanoes? There is no law that requires them to be within reach of danger; and where danger threatens, they have the God-given intelligence to provide a means of protection.

God didn't make man for the purpose of suffering and then give him the instinct and the brains to avoid it. The idea doesn't make sense. Penalties aren't inevitable if those who obey the rules escape them.

A Warning to Japan.

Houston Post.

An omnious note of warning is the broad interpretation put upon a recent manifesto issued by the Soviet war council to the army at large. The warning, to be heard by all the world for all that Russia cares, is directed at Japan, whose sword rattling of late has made Russia wary.

Most significant of pertinent passages in the manifesto is that passage which says that a more powerful army is needed for defense despite the fact that "the Red army now is stronger and more invincible than ever before."

A glance at comparative figures of the strength of the armies of world powers sustains the Russian claim to its own superior force. Russia certainly has the largest and one of the best equipped armies in the world. Latest available statistics show the Russian army to comprise 848,000 on the active list and 18,000,000 in the trained reserves.

Recall of the Fleet.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

The first reaction to President Roosevelt's recent order that the American fleet be returned from Pacific to Atlantic waters is apparently the reverse of what was expected of it. It is no sooner made than Japanese jingoes become vocal. It is a ruse, they declare, to put a check on the Japanese naval building program; a trap set by the United States for Japan to fall into; nothing must stop the expansionist movement on sea and land. Using the presence of the fleet in the Pacific as an argument for warlike preparations, they now attempt to use the recall of the fleet to further their cause.

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

DEPARTMENT STORE DRINKS.

Now that New York State is to permit department stores to have a retail liquor department with the formal repeal of prohibition, man's ancient aversion to accompanying his wife on a shopping trip is expected to be materially reduced.

• • • •

While Mrs. Jones buys a few things at the ribbon counter, Mr. Jones can shop around for real values among the ales, wines, liquors and cigars.

• • • •

We may yet hear of a distracted little woman calling up the department store at dusk and pleading, "Will you please look around your liquor department and see if my husband is still there?"

• • • •

The New York rules permit a retail liquor department in any department store, provided it is located on the ground floor. This will at least prevent too much singing of "Sweet Adeline" on the escalators.

• • • •

Already a big increase in the Christmas "package" business is assured and it will be a case of turn about being fair play if a husband who has helped carry his wife's packages home all these years now demands that she help him carry his.

Lady shopper—There's a clearance sale there this week, is there not?

Floorwalker—Yes, ma'am. We've marked down all our ryes and scotches for six days only.

Lady shopper—I was just over to Jones'. They are showing some lovely gins there, and in the cutest shapes.

Floorwalker—We have everything here at Smith's that they have at Jones'.

Shopper (to a companion)—I saw the smartest brandies at Johnson's yesterday. Exquisite, I thought.

Companion—Yes, and have you seen those very chic cider brandies now on sale at Smythe's? They come in the most becoming bottles.

Shopper—The trouble with the liquor departments is that just when you get used to certain drinks they change the styles.

And then, too, there is bound to be the following home dialogue in the long winter evenings:

Wife (as her husband stumbles over the rug)—So, you've been down to Smythe's again! You can't fool me.

THAT'S SETTLED NOW.

Just Folks.

By Edgar A. Guest.

Old Inspiration.

Queer old fellow! With his dreams
Still contended here he seems.
Neither loss nor sorrow's tears
Nor the cares of all the years
Have embittered him. He stays,
Finding much in life to praise.
"Oh," says he,
"Sit down with me.
All your troubles let me know.
Time will cure
The hurt, I'm sure.
I went through it years ago."

Up and down and in and out
Bravely still he walks about,
Scattering words of hope and cheer
Just as if he lingered here
To encourage and inspire
All who falter, doubt and tire.
"Yes," he'll say,
"You're sick today,
Stunned and blinded by the blow.
This won't last!
'Twill soon be past.
I went through it years ago."

Queer old fellow, wrinkled, gray,
At the sunset of his day
Looking back at loss and gain,
Joy and grief and peace and pain.
And with understanding deep,
Knowing why men fret and weep,
Saying: "Care
All men must bear.
Look at me, now white as snow;
Time will heal
The hurt you feel.

FAIRY TALES.

People of olden times had little science and less investigation, but they were rich in imagination, and in imagination they flew, owned supernatural servants, and traversed great distances easily, according to the Knickerbocker Press. The legends of wishing-caps, invisible cloaks, magic rugs, seven-leagued boots and genii of the lamp we call fairy tales. None the less, they were precursors of the age of practical magic in which we live.

What is man imagining now?

None of the wonders suggested above, for most of these he has, and many more. The fairy tales of our times mirror a world in which war will be outmoded, where the goods of this world will be so equally distributetd as to make booms and panics impossible, where jobs await all who are willing to work and where nobody toils to the detriment of his health and happiness, where nation has joined with nation in a great family of peoples.

Church Bells Peal, Rejoicing At Hitler Vote

Foreign Reactions Studied by Press as it Hails New, United Nation.

Berlin, Nov. 13 (AP).—Evangelical church bells throughout Germany pealed for 15 minutes tonight, on the order of Reich's Bishop Ludwig Mueller, "in token of gratitude for the unifying result of the plebiscite for the honor and security of the fatherland."

And the overwhelming vote of confidence the German people gave Sunday to Chancellor Hitler's hand-picked Reichstag candidates and to his foreign policy, was the subject of countless editorials of congratulation.

Foreign Reaction Studied.

In his method of thanks to the nation the Chancellor called the vote "unique in history."

The impression Hitler's double-edged victory made abroad was watched closely, and newspapers devoted much space to comment from foreign capitals.

Official circles pointed out that not many European countries have a policy as firm and clear-cut as the Reich, now that it has named 661 men, pledged to Nazi ideals, to the parliament and has indorsed Hitler's stand for "peace with equality" and for absence from international councils so long as "Germany is treated as a second-class nation."

90 Per Cent Favored Hitler.

The fate of other countries, newspapers asserted, hangs on the maneuvering of dissatisfied politicians, but "Germany is safely in one solid block."

The people's verdict, the press added, means a calm, steady foreign policy with which the rest of the world "must reckon henceforth."

In the plebiscite more than 90 per cent of German voters favored the government's policies.

$40,000 Fire Hits Rosslyn

Flames Rage for Three Hours in Waste Paper Company's Plant.

Raging for three hours, a $40,000 fire early last night swept the Washington Waste Paper Co. plant in nearby Rosslyn, Va.

Volunteer companies in Arlington and No. 5 Engine Company of the District Fire Department battled the blaze in the cold rain.

Eight firemen were injured by glass or overcome by smoke. None was seriously affected. It was the second fire at the plant within a year.

The fire was discovered by a passerby shortly after 5 p. m.

Fire Marshal A. C. Schaeffel, of Arlington, who suffered a cut hand, estimated the damage at $40,000.

A wooden storage shed, 100 by 50 feet, was leveled. Fire originated in this structure. Several hundred tons of waste paper was destroyed, while valuable machinery was damaged in the main building, which is of semifireproof construction.

Three freight cars on a siding outside the burning building caught fire. Their waste paper cargo was destroyed and the cars bady damaged.

James Torrance, of the Clarendon Fire Department, was overcome by smoke. He was treated by the Jefferson rescue squad.

Third Political Party Seen by La Follette

San Francisco, Nov. 13 (AP). Growth of a third political party of national strength was forecast today by Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, on his arrival here to lecture on "What Are Progressives Fighting For?"

He hailed the Fiorello LaGuardia mayoral victory in New York as indicative of the tendency toward interest in "individual candidates, and what they stand for—not in parties."

der the Democratic platform, but was not desired by the people of the county. Cognizance of the direct change in the suburban section of the county since the time local option was enacted in 1885 was taken.

It was contended that to deny cafes, clubs and eating houses the opportunity afforded in neighboring communities would tend to reduce the patronage of these establishments in the country and seriously deplete the taxable basis and increase further the tax burden on residents.

A club license would be authorized allowing the retail sale of wine, beer and hard liquor for a $500 annual fee. This only could be issued to a club which prior to repeal had maintained a golf course of nine or more holes and two tennis courts for benefit of a bona fide membership of 50 or more.

The county for years has recognized the importance of the 10 country clubs in its suburban section, and the county police law exempts clubs from search by county police except upon search warrant.

The referendum on local option would be held the fourth Tuesday in April, 1935, provided 30 per cent of the voters of the total area of the county petition for a local option election.

The dry sections will be Laytonsville, Poolesville, Clarksburg, Colesville, Darnestown, Olney, Gaithersburg, Barnesville and Damascus election districts and the Kensington and Takoma Park precincts. Sentiment in this territory is said to be dry.

A Gentleman of the Old School

Senator Hatfield's Attack on the NRA Does the Republicans Credit

By William Harlan Hale.

I have never seen Seantor Henry Hatfield (Republican) of West Virginia. In my lamentable ignorance about the personalities of our legislative mecca, I have never even seen a picture of that statesman.

But I have been reading his periodic statements in regard to the NRA, radicalism, and the recognition of Russia, and from these statements I can draw a very clear picture of what he must look like.

I imagine him, first of all, in a great beaver hat. Then I seem to see a Barry Wall 4-inch collar, with a flowing bow tie. I see a long frock coat, and under it a flowered silk vest which is engirdled by a gold watch chain of fabulous weight. My vision is rounded out by seeing him seated in a great barouche, rolling across the country behind a pair of spanking bays.

Am I right, or—as Philip Barry says—am I right? My sartorial portrait of a gentleman of the old school may not be correct in detail, but there can be no doubt that Senator Hatfield is a member in good standing in that school—probably even a higher officer of it. His latest statement—given out on Sunday—reveals how clearly he has passed all the requirements for membership.

Let us analyze these requirements, as a sort o. study in Americana. The first qualification for admittance is that the candidate should denounce any progressive change in government as "demagogy." That is the one word used by every gentleman of the old school in order to discredit whatever new idea may come along. This is the reason: It is a new idea, and therefore it is untried. Since it is untried, it is an experimental thing—i. e., a theory. A theory, in turn, is the product of thought rather than of practice. That makes it the product of a thinker. And what, in turn, is a thinker? Why, he is a professor—i. e., a demagogue.

The logic is regular, and it is unchangeable. Mr. Hatfield follows perfectly, as if by note. He adds a few touches of local color, however, to declare that he is against "the kind of government that looks upon its citizens as a vast laboratory of guinea pigs, on which the experiments of economic theorists may be performed."

Closely linked to this is the second qualification for membership in the school. Whenever mention is made of an extension of the power of government (especially over business), the inevitable response must be the one exclamation, "Bureaucracy!" Nothing more need be added; no proof offered; the one word itself dismisses the whole subject.

Mr. Hatfield qualifies again. He not only talks about "bureaucracy," but he makes it "luxurious bureaucracy." He does not explain why it must be "luxurious;" probably he means to place it in comparious against the simple and frugal era of the 1920's.

Then, of course, the candidate has got to emphasize the vile and subversive intentions of Moscow. A statement which omitted such references would be a banal failure, from the old-school point of view. Mr. Hatfield obliges by complying to the fullest degree, even loking with grave alarm upon the fact that "the President from his bedside called for dispatches from Moscow."

Another phase that should never be omitted is "American institutions." These are always described as "sacred," or even "priceless," and are always being "assailed" by scoundreds "who would have them perish." I put the words in quotes because they are so distinctive that almost no variants are admitted among them.

Unfortunately, in his latest statement, Senator Hatfield fails to qualify on this point. I detect not one appearance of the phrase—"American institutions." What, indeed! Is the senator not a fully paid-up member of the school, after all?

Saddened by the prospecst, we must look down further through the text. Ah! Here we are: "the teachings of Thomas Jefferson." Mr. Hatfield passes the test, and is admitted!

For whoever heard of a gentleman of the old school who did not invoke the name of Thomas Jefferson to denounce every economic innovation since the year 1800—knwoing very well that our patriotic conscience keeps us from trying to knock down Mr. Jefferson's reputation? His august name was invoked to oppose everything from freeing the slaves to legislating on monopolies to bringing the country out of its latest banking crisis. There is no end to the usefulness of Mr. Jefferson.

Yes, Senator Hatfield is "regular." He follows the old form perfectly. There is not one new turn of language, not one new phrase, not the slightest departure from what was said 20, 30, 50, possibly 100 years ago. He is a credit to the richness of his tradition, and before this spectacle of antiquity, all criticism must be hushed.

Britain Puts Hope of Peace In Europe Up to Germany

means they are going to use the existing unfortunate situation to get an international agreement," Mr. MacDonald said.

"We ask the Germans to come in, not at the end, but now. We want Germany to be its own representative and its own spokesman.

"There must be an international agreement and if failure comes the British government's duty will be to make it clear to the world on whose shoulders the blame for a break must rest."

He reaffirmed British loyalty to the League of Nations as "the only existing machine for international cooperation," and declared that Great Britain could not admit, because Germany had withdrawn, that disarmament work ought not to proceed.

Parley "Greatly Complicated."

"Germany's withdrawal unquestionably has greatly complicated the work of the conference," he said.

"I want to make it clear," he added, "that in these deliberations between governments, no government can compel any other government to accept risks which it believes too great and, in any event, we can not extend our international commitments as the price of what may be asked for in the interests of international agreement."

Meanwhile, a feeling of expectancy was dominant in official circles as a reaction to the indorsement received Sunday at the polls by Chancellor Hitler's German government.

A hopeful view was taken in some circles that Hitler, more firmly entrenched than ever in power, may follow the example of Premier Mussolini of Italy, whose foreign policy became more flexible and conciliatory as he became more solidly established at home.

Another line observers took was that cooperation with Germany was made more difficult because the plebiscite approved Germany's withdrawal from international conferences.

It was pointed out, however, that this is contrary to the Nazi theory of leadership.

Well-informed quarters said that British opinion is still in essentially a fluid state and that, except for isolationists, the entire press is waiting for the government to take the lead in a policy toward Germany.

When the proper time comes, these circles said, the government feels it can crystallize sentiment in the direction it wishes and at present is determined to keep to the middle of the road in Franco-German issues.

Arthur Henderson, in a personal message read to the House of Commons tonight, threatened to quit as president of the world disarmament conference unless governments change their "attitude" regarding arms.

French Consider Nazi Dicker.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Paris, Nov. 13 (U.P.).—The new French government is considering direct negotiations with Nazi Germany if the Geneva arms conference fails utterly, it was indicated in well-informed quarters tonight.

This changed French attitude has become increasingly noticeable since the British have adopted a neutral attitude on questions of arms control and security in continental Europe.

A growing influential opinion in France unquestionably is in favor of Premier Albert Sarraut's negotiating directly with Berlin to discover the exact nature of Germany's desires in the field of foreign policy.

Cabinet Counsels Delay.

The French cabinet remains anxious to shelve foreign negotiations as delicate as this until internal financial and budget problems have been settled. However, recent warnings that France will be isolated in the event she seeks to enforce penalties under the Treaty of Versailles, have had their effect even on the reactionaries in the Sarraut ministry.

Great Britain has remained aloof from all French efforts to get her into a security pact, and London in recent weeks is believed here to have indicated a lessening interest in the apparently futile Geneva arms limitation efforts.

Norman Davis, chief United States delegate to the arms parley, has gone back to America—and left a message that the Americans would return to Geneva only if, and when, purely armament questions are up for discussion again.

France regards herself, therefore, as deserted by her former allies in this crucial moment—and influential persons are urging the government to turn directly to Berlin for a solution.

A foreign office spokesman said today the government was not surprised at the overwhelming vote in Germany yesterday approving Chancellor Adolf Hitler's withdrawal from Geneva.

"While our reaction is not negative," the spokesman said, "it will not change the continuity of France's foreign policy in seeking security and peace with effective guarantees."

The French, furthermore, see the pact of Locarno and the Briand-Kellogg pact outlawing war as crumbling before the realities of Hitler's energetic offensive for arms equality. France is perturbed, observers agree, realizing that the main props of her security on the continent are vanishing.

Geneva Sees New Attacks.

Geneva, Nov. 13 (AP).—The triumph of the German government in Sunday's plebiscite was expected in league circles tonight to fortify the German demand for equality of rights in armaments.

It also was anticipated that as a result of the "triumph" Germany will make further attacks on the post-war Versailles treaty. "Versailles is dead," said one Nazi, who, like most Hitlerites in Switzerland, crossed the frontier to cast his vote on German soil.

Election Held a Farce.

Vienna, Nov. 13 (AP).—Early newspaper editorials were inclined to dismiss the German Reichstag election and plebiscite as a farce today, but several evening papers attempted a more serious analysis of the indorsement given Chancellor Hitler.

The Tagblatt pointed out that Napoleon appealed to the French people for a vote of confidence and attached great importance to it.

The German vote, the paper said, gives Hitler a new Reichstag "which could vote him unlimited power for life."

Rome Sees Hitler Gain.

Rome, Nov. 13 (AP).—Results of the German election were viewed by newspapers and in semiofficial circles today as being sufficient to eliminate any idea that Hitler will withdraw from the stand he has taken on disarmament.

No official comment was made, but the Giornale d'Italia, which usually reflects government opinion accurately, held that with this proof of popular support for his policies Hitler "absolutely can not be expected to leave the position he has assumed."

Polish Press Hostile.

Warsaw, Nov. 13 (AP).—The reaction of the press toward the German election results was unanimously hostile here today. The Gazetta Warszawska said: "The election revealed a unity that may put an end to President Wilson's theory that there are two Germanies, one a people, the other a desire for revenge."

The Kurjer Ilustrovany said: "The election indicates that Germany is an infernal machine menacing the peace of Europe."

Troops Massed To Nip Austrian Fascist Threat

Students Face Death Under New Martial Law For Bombing.

Loeben, Austria, Nov. 13 (AP).—The serious injury of a Fascist home guard by a bomb tossed by students early this evening developed what appears to be the first clear case of violence punishable with death under the Dollfuss martial law in force throughout the nation.

Vienna, Nov. 13 (AP).—The concentration of thousands of Heimwehr troops in Vienna caused some uneasiness among the public today and gave rise to new rumors of an imminent Fascist action—such as, for instance, the occupation of Socialist Vienna's city hall.

Considerable quantities of arms and ammunition were issued to these home guard troops, some of whom were quartered opposite the city hall.

A question regarding how many Heimwehrmen were mobilized brought the reply from police headquarters that "it is not known" and from Heimwehr headqquarters "that is information that can not be made public."

On the other hand, there was no positive indication that the guardsmen planned to do more than prevent Socialists' attempts to celebrate in connection with the tenth anniversary of Karl Zeitz' investiture as burgomaster of Vienna. Police have been ordered to prevent such a demonstration.

The week-end, meanwhile, was comparatively quiet. Authorities took precautions to forestall demonstrations by Nazis or Socialists on Austria's anniversary as a republic. Martial law, with the death penalty threatened, was in force throughout the nation.

Near Seefeld, Tyrol, the Home guard son of a Heimwehr leader, Richard Steidle, narrowly escaped death in a shooting affray.

the President and the Secretary of State regarding disarmament matters. The disarmament negotiations in Geneva have reached the stage where decisions must be made which necessitate consultation between the delegations and their governments. These consultations are already taking place between the delegations of other powers and their governments. I naturally desire to consult with our Government under these conditions.

Asks for Patience.

"Although the present phase of disarmament is one which the European nations must settle, disarmament is a world problem which is of vital concern to all nations. It is difficult and incredibly complex. But its solution would be of such inestimable benefit to mankind that it seems to me the nations can well afford to bring wise perseverance and infinite patience to its accomplishment.

"I can not, of course, decide as to my own future movements until I have consulted with the President and the Secretary of State. To a large extent, perhaps, my plans will be dependent upon decisions to be taken by the European powers conferring in Geneva as to the future course of the disarmament work."

Cites Cut in Navies.

Asked whether he would amplify his formal statement, Mr. Davis replied:

"Nothing is obvious right now, there are so many views on the question of disarmament. Disarmament is a misnomer. The real thing is reduction and limitation. We have done it as to the navies, why not as to the land forces?"

The ambassador was accompanied by Mrs. Davis and Admiral Richard H. Leigh and Commander Theodore Wilkinson, United States' naval experts at the conference. The President Roosevelt, on which the party arrived, was a day and a half late due to storms.

Robert B. Colgate, Soap Magnate's Son, to Wed

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—Robert B. Colgate, of New York, son of Gilbert Colgate, soap manufacturer, and Miss Pamela Comroux, also of this city, obtained a marriage license today. They plan to be married November 23.

Colgate gave his age as 31. Miss Comroux, 28, was born in Twickenham, England.

Soviet, Japan Envoys Clash On Armament

Geneva, Nov. 13 (U.P.).—A clash between Japanese and Soviet Russian delegates to the preliminary arms conference occurred at a session of the armaments control committee today.

Naotake Sato, Japanese delegate, told the committee that his government might not be able to accept international supervision of armaments, especially direct investigation.

Sato said he considered universal application of any system of arms control, as suggested by the former allied powers, France, Great Britain and the United States, would prove "extremely difficult."

The Japanese diplomat proceeded to enter a general reservation, in principle, against arms supervision.

M. Stein, Soviet delegate, sprang to his feet as Sato sat down and declared that, on the contrary, arms control must be universal.

"No single country in the region neighboring the U. S. S. R. should be exempted from such a system," Stein declared.

Stein also insisted that an effective system of control "must be included in our teraty."

Sato then repeated Tokyo's reservation, adding he would have more to say later.

Other delegates maintained that because of the importance of Sato's and Stein's statements, there should be a verbatim report on them and today's session. However, Hugh Wilson, United States delegate, objected successfully.

Prominent German Catholics Indicted

Former Cabinet Members Accused of Fraud.

Duesseldorf, Germany, Nov. 13 (AP). Indictments for alleged fraud have been issued against three former Centrist members of the cabinet and several other prominent Catholics.

Those indicted included former Chancellor Wilhelm Marx and two former ministers of labor, Dr. Heinrich Brauns and Dr. Adam Stegerwald.

While the reason for the indictments was not specified in the public announcement, reliable quarters said the charges were based on alleged irregularities in the conduct of the National Peoples' League for Catholic Germany.

Decision on Soviet Question By Friday Is Roosevelt Aim

one recognized by the United States. The Russians would be legally justified in saying: "Take that up with the Kerensky government—if you can find it. Or recognize us as its successor and then we can talk."

Russians are very fond of precision in their diplomatic dealings, and clearly expected to meet a similar respect for such legalistic distinctions here. Instead, they have run up against American "common sense," which prefers to overlook technicalities and get straight down to realities.

Fortunately for the present negotiations, Soviet diplomacy has always shown itself highly realistic as well as legally precise. It would never dream of sacrificing the main objective—recognition—for the sake of a technicality.

Thoroughness Is Rule.

Debts have been talked; trade possibilities have been explored; propaganda has been discussed. But not only have the American negotiators set out to go through the written heritage of 16 years of nonrecognition, but they are also clearly seeking to profit by other countries' experiences with the U. S. S. R.

Probably no one subject has taken an undue amount of time, but together they present a formidable amount of work.

For instance, the Germans have an agreement with the Soviet Union whereby the Embassy must be notified whenever a German citizen is arrested in Russia and an embassy official must be permitted to see the prisoner.

The British had no such understanding and this resulted in some difficulty at the time of the arrest of the Metro-Vickers men last March. It is a fair guess that this fact has not escaped the notice of the American negotiators.

Propaganda Talked.

Then, too, it has long been a tenet of American policy toward the Soviet Union that the Thrid (Communist) International and the Soviet government are virtually one and the same thing. This is always flatly denied by the Kremlin, but the point probably is receiving attention.

Until this is cleared up, it is a little difficult to reach an understanding on the subject of subversive propaganda within the United States. It is easy to arrive at a mutual hands-off policy as between governments (which includes all official representatives), and it is relatively simple to reach an agreement on subversive activities carried on by citizens of the other country. One can always deport the offender as an undesirable alien without disrupting relations.

What previous administrations have worried about, however, is Third International influence, exerted through undeportable American citizens. This point could lead to quite a lengthy discussion, and the Soviet government could hardly do more than give a verbal undertaking, if that. In point of law, the Soviet government and the Third International are not the same thing, and the one can not be held legally responsible for the other.

Anyhow, the Third International has been pretty inactive of late years and no longer constitutes a serious threat.

Indicative of the wisdom of the Administration in preceding recognition with exhaustive exploration was a statement made yesterday by Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., long an arch foe of recognition.

"I think the President is conducting the conversations ably and conservatively and is taking every precaution for the United States," Mr. Fish said, adding that he was opposed to lending money to Russia.

Pennsylvania Suit Against Arkansas Set

(Associated Press.)

Another interstate controversy was placed on the Supreme Court docket yesterday when Pennsylvania was permitted to sue Arkansas for alleged violation of agreements in selling Pennsylvania's highway notes.

Pennsylvania asserted Arkansas had pledged to continue her gasoline and motor license taxes until the interest was paid and the bonds retired at maturity, but that she had violated the promise by reducing the motor license levy.

Arkansas claimed she had the money to pay the interest on Pennsylvania's notes, but was temporarily prevented from doing so by a court restraining order in another case pending in the Federal District Court in Arkansas.

Woman Faces Trial In Depot Murders

Memphis Suspect Will Be Moved to Kansas City.

Kansas City, Nov. 13 (AP).—W. L. Vandeventer, United States District Attorney, said today that Mrs. E. B. Conner, arrested at Memphis, Tenn., in connection with the Kansas City Union Station killings last summer, would be brought here for trial.

She is charged in a Federal indictment with conspiracy to aid in the release of Frank Nash, Federal convict, at the Union Station here that led to the slaying of four officers and Nash last June 17.

The district attorney said the woman became implicated in the conspiracy through a telephone call made from her home at Hot Springs, Ark., to Kansas City gangsters.

Negro Gets 25 Years For Accidental Killing

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP).—Because the shot he fired at a woman missed her, but pierced the arm and the heart of a woman in an adjoining flat, Albert Miller, Negro, was sentenced to the penitentiary for 25 years today.

The Negro had fired the shot in a quarrel. The bullet went through two windows and killed Mrs. Grace Mead as she sat at the dial of her radio.

Taking Advantage of a Notrump Complex.

Mr. D. C. Burgess has sent me an example of a defensive play which required good card-reading and the employment of his knowledge of the bidding methods and psychology of his oopponents—a type of knowledge which is an important corollary of good card-playing technique.

Mr. Burgess forestalled the criticism I would obviously make on the bidding by condemning is as unsound, and it was through his knowledge of the particular type of unsound bidding the North player was addicted to that he was able to defeat the hand. He knew that the player holding the North cards in this deal had a penchant for notrump, and was prone to bid three notrump as a natural response to any bid his partner might make at three during the course of the contract.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2◇	Pass
3♣	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Against the final contract of three notrump, East opened the Queen of hearts, which Dummy ducked, and Mr. Burgess, sitting West, overtook with the King of hearts to avoid blocking the suit. At this point he could see that the defense cause was practically hopeless if North held the King of clubs, since East could hardly have an entry to the heart suit, even though it could be established. If North did not hold the King of clubs, but had a set-up diamond suit, his only entry could be in the spade suit, and Mr. Burgess felt sure that even this particular North would have preferred a Raise in spades to a notrump contract if holding Q-x-x of spades and no club stopper. North's probable reentry, was, therefore, the Queen of spades only once guarded, and it was necessary for West to void this entry before the diamond suit could be unblocked. Mr. Burgess therefore led the Ten of spades to trick two. This play could hardly lose, because if East held the Queen, the Ace and nine would now be established as a tenace over the Dummy's Knave. Declarer took this trick in Dummy, and led the Ace of diamonds, but when he led a second spade, Mr. Burgess promptly played the Ace, dropping North's Queen and preventing his ever regaining the lead. The heart suit was now cleared, and East and West set the three-notrump contract two tricks.

Tomorrow's Hand.

If South is playing a contract of six spades, against which the heart Knave has been opened, how should he plan to play to fulfill his contract?

North, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

John W. Mackay Luncheon Host At Happy House

Mr. and Mrs. John William Mackay, the latter who was formerly Miss Gwendolyn Rose, of New York and Long Island, were hosts on Sunday at luncheon at their home, Happy House, at Roslyn, Long Island, in compliment to Miss Katherine Blake and Miss Joan Blake, half-sisters of Mr. Mackay. The affair was informal and the guests, who numbered 40, included members of the family and some of the debutante friends of the young women, who will be introduced during the winter.

The Misses Blake are daughters of the late Mrs. Duer Blake and Dr. Joseph A. Blake. They will be presented to society on December 22 in the Ritz-Carlton at a large dance to be given for them by Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien, the former Miss Katherine Mackay; Mrs. Irving Berlin, the former Miss Ellin Mackay, and Mr. John Mackay, who is their coguardian with Miss Molly MacWean.

The debutantes attended Miss Nightingale's School. Miss Katherine Blake, the elder, recently entered Barnard College. They have passed much of their time abroad. Mr. William A. D. Blake is their brother. Their mother, the first Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, was Miss Katherine Duer, of an old Knickerbocker family.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Theo. K. Spencer will be at the Willard Hotel during their stay in Washington. Col. Spencer is stationed at Trenton, N. J.

Mr. Wilkins Takes House for Winter

Closes Rockville Pike Country Home.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wilkins and their daughter, Miss Katherine Wilkins, will move from their country home on the Rockville pike into their house at 1700 Massachusetts avenue today, where they will be for the winter.

Mme. Aimee Rovzar is in New York for a few days. She is stopping at the Hotel New Yorker.

David Bruce And Wife Are Parents of Girl

Baby Is First Grandchild of Ex-Ambassador Andrew Mellon.

Mr. and Mrs. David K. E. Bruce are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter in New York on Saturday. Mrs. Bruce was formerly Miss Ailsa Mellon, daughter of the Former Ambassador to the Court of St. James, Mr. Andrew W. Mellon. Mother and child are doing nicely. The baby is the first grandchild of Mr. Mellon.

Mr. Bruce is the son of former Senator and Mrs. William Cabell Bruce, of Maryland.

The wedding of Miss Mellon and Mr. Bruce took place in 1926, while Mr. Mellon was Secretary of the Treasury, during the Coolidge administration, and was one of the most brilliant affairs seen in Washington in many years. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Pan American Union.

Since their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce have spent much time in Europe.

Local Pen Women Honor Mrs. Gann

Her Book to Be Reviewed at December Meet.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann will be guest of honor at the meeting of the District of Columbia League of American Pen Women to be held at 8 o'clock the evening of December 6. At this time Mrs. Gann's book on her life in Washington will be reviewed.

Mrs. Gann has just returned from Philadelphia, where she was extensively entertained. She was a guest of the Republican Women's League at tea at Hannah Penn House, their headquarters; was given a luncheon and dinner by Mrs. George H. Lorimer and was given a tea at the country club. Mrs. Gann spent several hours at Strawbridge-Clothiers' book shop autographing her books until the edition gave out.

Mrs. and Miss Gill Back From N. Y.

Elizabeth Gill to Visit West Point Soon.

Mrs. Theodore N. Gill, jr., and her debutante daughter, Miss Elizabeth Gill, who have been in New York for a brief visit, will return today to their home in Georgetown. They attended the Princeton-Dartmouth football game in Princeton Saturday.

Miss Gill will accompany her uncle, Mr. Morris Parris, by motor to West Point on Friday, where they will be guests of Lieut. and Mrs. Frederic B. Butler. Lieut. and Mrs. Butler formerly lived in Washington, and Mrs. Butler was secretary to Mrs. Hoover at the White House. They will attend the football game between the Army and Pennsylvania Military College on Saturday.

Col. and Mrs. Goring Bliss entertained at dinner Saturday evening for ten of their friends, with whom they have celebrated Armistice Day for a number of years. The table was decorated with the allied flags and red, white and blue flowers.

Mr. F. W. Pascoe Rutter, of London, England, is passing some time at the Carlton.

Miss Given Honor Guest.

Miss M. E. Given, retired principal of the E. V. Brown School, will be guest of honor at a reception to be held on Tuesday at the All Saints Church.

The citizens of Chevy Chase are taking this opportunity to show Miss Given their appreciation of her 35 years of service to the community.

Hats That Fit Faces Ambition of This Shop

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Hats may be so easily right or wrong that we often fall into a casual way of choosing them. When we find a perfect match for a frock it's hard to resist despite the fact that the shape of contour is not best suited to our face or coiffure. An F street hat shop urges you to talk to its milliner, who for years has specialized in the making of hats to set faces. You may try on various models and if you find one which pleases you, this hat artist will reproduce it for you in any color you like, or with any alteration.

If present hat styles don't suit you you'll find your problems solved by consulting this milliner.

New shipments of clothes are usually interesting. This one includes twin sweaters in all colors and sizes, with a majority of oxford grays. This color is one of the most popular this fall on account of its adaptability to combinations. With an oxford gray sweater you can always count on a colored skirt, be it blue, green, orange or red, to make a smart ensemble.

The shop is featuring a blouse sweater with the round neck, bound with white angora wool, and a cardigan jacket to match, which has slit pockets bound with the white wool. These are reasonably priced and an addition to the wardrobe.

The ordeal of washing gloves is nothing to that of fitting them after they've dried. One stretches and pulls and pokes. No matter how durable, or of what excellent quality, their wearability is considerably lessened by such manipulation.

A shop in G street is selling glove stretchers for 10 cents a pair. After you've washed your gloves you fit them on the stretchers.

In the summertime vases are flower-filled. But in the winter they must be attractive in themselves. New and interesting designs are making them so.

By all means see the seal vase in an E street shop. The base represents the figure of a seal; the upper portion is a glass bulb he's balancing on his nose. This vase could hold ivy to give your rooms a winter trim. The price brings it well within reach of even meager purses.

The handsome, monogrammed linen handkerchief tree of an F street shop needs no boosting. At one glance you see they're built for use, as well as for style. Their bright colors will lend gayety to your costume. They come in blue, olive green, dull red, rust, and tan.

Does your rug need a shampoo? A downtown store has just the thing. You might express surprise that so small an amount of liquid could take care of even one rug. It's a case of a lot of strength in a small dose. With one bottle of the shampoo you can take care of your upholstery and drapes as well. The shampoo is easy to apply, is nonflammable, and neither harsh nor harmful to the hands.

You should liven your house with color, just as you do your clothes. The cloisonnee vases, boxes, ash trays, rose jars and candy dishes which are on display in a downtown department store are ordained for just such purposes. They represent happy combinations of every color in the spectrum, brought out to full advantage by interesting designs. One of the nicest things about them is their range of price, 25 cents to $7.50.

A well-appointed dressing table is one of the most attractive features of a lady's boudoir. A downtown store provides perfume bottle and powder box sets in imitation cut glass. Place these on a mirror base and you'll be enchanted with their light, airy daintiness. They come in rose, crystal, green or blue. If you carry the scheme of things further, there are magnifying mirrors to match.

With the advent of cold weather is sure to come slippery icy steps and any number of skids and bumps. That is unless we adopt the safety-first slogan and purchase some of the stair treads which a G street store is selling so reasonably. There are three types, ranging from 15 cents to 25 cents. With any one of these we can insure ourselves against an uncomfortable number of tumbles and make the welcome sign on our threshold mean more than it has before.

Novelty packages are still interesting. You'll particularly like the new one which has just arrived in a large department store. It contains numerous pastel puffs, lipstick and cleansing tissue, and a hand-painted boudoir purse with a mirror in it. Here's a nice prize or present that will cost you only 50 cents. The dollar size has only puffs and tissues.

Pandora Knew.

By Katherine Smith.

I may have heard too long
Wild Sorrow's song,
Or held a bitter jest
Within my breast
Too tightly, now I know
That healing's slow.

I may have been too swift
To take the gift
Of pain—Pandora knew
How fast it flew
When she had raised the lid—
I'm glad I did!

If Winter Comes, Can Spring Suits Be Far Behind?

French Couturiers Say Not; They're Hard at Work Designing.

Although this is the time of year when most women are giving more thought to fur wraps and greatcoats than to spring costumes, the pacesetters among French couturiers already are giving tantalizing peeps of what to expect in the way of suits and ensembles. The French designers know full well that the fashionably dressed woman begins to consider her spring wardrobe as soon as the excitement of Christmas holidays has died away.

From the Paris midseason showings it is apparent that variety, seconded by amusing and novel touches, is the outstanding trait possessed by the new suits. Some of the jackets are hip length and belted; some are bloused over a belt; others are short and semifitted.

Two of the most interesting types are the pleated choir boy jacket, introduced by Rochas, and a waistcoat under a capelet, sponsored by Mainboucher.

Lanvin uses enormous buttons on her hip-length belted models. Rochas goes her one better by fastening his choir boy jackets with huge aluminum balls. Could anything be more delightfully inconsistent than sparkling, polished aluminum on demure jackets exemplifying the ecclesiastical influence?

Lelong, ordinarily conservative, has decided that this is the time for a bit of daring. He grabs the metal curtain rings from window drapes and blithely sews them to his suits' coats. The bigger and more bizarre the rings, the better for achieving the "jungle" feeling.

Schiaparelli, ingenious creature, is stressing large gold trefoils and big double buckles on her short jackets. She is also playing with the idea of the high standing neckline in back, with deep revers in front. This designer is recommending gay, brightly colored coatlets for white frocks. Treebark crepe usually makes the attractive coatlet.

Mirande has created an ensemble coat to be worn open over a dress with contrasting panel down the front. This is especially attractive in white and navy combination.

Pretty, Blonde Patsy Benton Wears Simple Gowns, Few Jewels and Less Perfume; Is Careful of Curly Hair.

Distinction is an element of that beauty which is socially acceptable. Experts say there are twelve feminine types, and insist that every woman may achieve the charm and distinction peculiarly her own.

In today's article, the eighth in a series describing master beauty types, a Washington debutante, cited as the perfect ingenue, frankly discusses the ways in which she maintains her good looks.

By Elizabeth Young.

A lovely blonde child in chic black, with tiny hat atop soft curls, wearing a swagger-length galyak wrap, moved swiftly across the lobby of the Westchester Apartments, at 4000 Cathedral avenue.

"I hope I haven't kept you waiting," she said, with direct and smiling friendliness. "I have been to church."

She was Miss Patsy Benton, 19-year-old debutante daughter of Mrs. George Marx, designated by national beauty authorities as possessing the shy, eager, expectant charm of the ingenue beauty, who seems untroubled by life's complexities.

Curled up in a chair when she had removed her hat and coat, to reveal a black, ankle-length frock of classic simplicity, with a narrow clerical collar in misty greenish-blue, and wide monk's sleeves falling away from creamy slender forearms, Miss Benton discussed the care she gives her fresh young beauty.

Cleanses Skin With Water.

Three or four times every day, she cleanses her skin, using only warm water to remove soil, and very cold water—"patted on for about 5 minutes"—to close the pores. Several times a week, she uses a mild soap; and, not oftener than once a month, gives herself a "facial" according to a recipe of her own.

"I have to be feeling unusually energetic when I give myself a facial," she smiled. "Then, I wash my face, smear it liberally with a good cream and apply over the cream a face cloth wrung out of very hot water. I continue this application for about five minutes, maybe longer. Then I wipe away the cream with cleansing tissue, and tone the skin with witch hazel. I have found that either soap or cream, regularly used, causes my skin to break out."

Miss Benton's skin has the smooth, rich consistency and color of old ivory. She never uses make-up, other than a creamy tan powder—"darker than you'd think," she said and a lipstick of clear dark red, Frances Denny's "Chariot."

Her hair seems a darker reflection of her ivory skin. It is almost a taupe shade of blond, with bands of silver-gilt running through it, and sunshiny gold where it curls about her ears and the nape of her neck.

Hair Naturally Curly.

Miss Benton wears her hair in a medium-length bob, with a very short part low on the left side, just above the ear, and smoothed down over the crown of the head. In the back, her natural curls are coaxed into a soft upturned roll along the nape of her neck, from which escape small light curls.

The natural curliness and glossy health of her hair, she attributes to the meticulous care her mother has given it since she was an infant. She goes to a hair dresser's shop only to have her hair cut.

"One of my earliest memories is of mother brushing my hair for an hour, every morning. She kept this up until I was quite a big girl. Now, I brush it myself, for 10 or 15 minutes, daily."

Miss Benton learned from her mother that the best way to encourage the curl in naturally wavy hair is to brush it over the face, for an hour each day if possible, then sweep it back with a strong comb, work the waves into place.

Uses Egg Shampoo Fortnightly.

Shampooing her hair not oftener than once a fortnight, Miss Benton uses six to nine eggs, with yolks and whites well beaten. She plasters her locks with a generous application of the egg mixture, allowing it to remain for 5 minutes before rinsing it away with lukewarm water.

"Hot water would boil the egg," she dimplingly cautioned.

She repeats the performance, using the remainder of the egg mixture, and finishes with a cold douche followed by a lemon rinse, using the juice of two large lemons in a half-gallon of lukewarm water. Spraying her hair with cold water after the lemon rinse, she allows it to dry thoroughly before brushing it for half an hour to restore the natural oil.

Experience has taught Miss Benton that a weekly shampoo for blond hair is inadvisable, since it makes the hair too oily; and that regular brushing is the greatest aid to hair cleanliness and hair health, besides making it easier to dress becomingly.

She has wide, direct greenish-gray eyes, and beautiful naturally arched brown brows that lift upward and outward toward their ends. With her coloring, she finds black or white or an unusual shade of aquamarine her best colors for evening. Her evening gowns are always modestly decollete, lower in back than front, and made on simple tailored lines of glossy satin, dull velvet, or fine lace. She wears no jewelry for evening, and perfume only occasionally, touching Guerlain's "L'Heure Bleue" to earlobes and cheeks. Her evening wraps are as simple as her gowns, one being a short white ermine jacet, and another a long one of untrimmed black velvet.

Semitailored spectator sports clothes are Miss Benton's choice for daytime wear. Rust brown, black and blue are her favorite colors, fashioned into simple smart dresses and swagger top coats. She likes the sports type of furs for daytime, and has a reccoon coat and galyak wrap for dressier daytime occasions. Her favorite piece of jewelry is a diamond-studded horse, which she wears constantly. "I think she even wears it to bed," her mother laughed.

Walking and horseback riding are Miss Benton's chief forms of exercises, although she is no daily addict to either. She is 5 feet, 1½ inches tall, and weighs 110 pounds.

"I eat two and a half meals a day," she laughed. "Tomato or orange juice and black coffee for breakfast; sandwiches with chocolate or buttermilk for lunch; and, for dinner, everything! That is, except potatoes. I try to keep away from potatoes, especially mashed potatoes, although I do like french-fried potatoes and sweet potatoes, which I usually eat once a week." She eats candies and desserts in moderation.

Reading Favorite Diversion.

Her favorite diversion is reading. Just now she is discovering Galsworthy, and is half-way through his Forsyte Saga.

Miss Benton was born in Long Beach, Calif., and had lived in Texas and Michigan before coming to Washington five years ago. She is a graduate of Holton Arms School, and, while she has sometimes thought of attempting a career in interior decorating, is chiefly interested just now in having a good time. She will make her debut this winter.

White House Gardens.

In the gardens of the White House are flowers and bushes planted by the hands of the First Ladies from Abigail Adams to Eleanor Roosevelt. It was the first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson who arranged the hodgepodge of planting into the formal gardens so much admired by all visitors to the White House. Mrs. Wilson dared to transplant the Dolly Madison rose bushes and to move some other bushes about, thereby giving more of an ordered air to the gardens. Large violets, the pride of Mrs. Herbert Hoover in the garden of her S street home, were planted by her around the White House. They come up every spring. It was Mrs. Taft who had the flowering cheery trees set in the gardens, and Mrs. Coolidge's idea to have the lawns dotted all over with crocuses and early spring flowers.

While Mrs. Roosevelt has not done any personal planting so far as can be learned yet, she acknowledges that she likes to garden.

Girls Fine Lion Tamers, Says One Who Knows

Hollywood's Wild Animal Trainer Teaches the Art.

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 13 (AP). So you want to train wild animals, do you? All right, come out here and look up Louie Roth, who is the only professor in possibly the only school of its kind in this country.

Louie taught scores to train animals and hundreds have learned how to work with animals under his expert tutelage. Just the other day, three women and three men were graduated from the unusual school Louie operates on the Goebel lion farm near here. Their diplomas certified that they had sufficient confidence and ability to get into a cage with one or a dozen lions, tigers, panthers, bears or pumas, and tell them what to do.

"The average person can learn to 'work' animals in from two to three weeks," Louie said today. "Some can master all the tricks in eight days. Everything depends on the intelligence of the student.

"Men are no more courageous than women the first time they enter a cage full of wild animals," Louie observes. "Some of my best students were girls. My 18-year-old daughter learned rapidly. I taught her a good trick that few others can do; she wrestles with a lion.

"Training animals is easy," says Louie, who directs 90 per cent of the animal sequences in motion pictures. And it sounds simple to hear Louie tell it.

"All you do is talk to the animal until he knows you well enough to not be afraid of you. You can't beat wild animals into submission.

"Animals are just like people. Some are smart and some are dumb. Tigers are not only the smartest, but the most treacherous. Pumas don't catch on quickly, so perhaps they are the most difficult to train. All it requires is patience and kindness to be an animal trainer."

Chapel Presents "Forest Acres."

Leonardtown, Md., Nov. 13 (Spl.). Members of Joy M. E. Chapel at Hollywood, are preparing to present a play for the chapel benefit on December 8.

The play, which is called, "Forest Acres," will be presented at Cedar Point Community Hall. Those taking part are Robert Dean, Miss Margaret Dean, Paul Mosher, Miss Thelma Smith, Miss Rosalie Insley, Mrs. Quirk Meredith, Roger Dean, Mrs. Paul Mosher, Miss Amy Mosher, Mrs. M. B. Crist, Miss Eloise Buckler, Miss Naomi Jones, and Meverell Dean.

Senor Pezet's Llama Rug.

One of the most prized possessions of the family of Senor Pezet, former Ambassador of Peru, is the white llama rug which was loaned for the weddings of Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson and Francis Bowes Sayre and Miss Eleanor Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury William Gibbs McAdoo at the White House during the Wilson Administration. This rug is one of the most valuable llama rugs in the world and its gleaming whiteness fits in with wedding decorations to perfection.

Hold It!—Yes, That Smile

Miss Edith McCartney is a wizard at catching the smiles of those she paints. But the Roosevelt smile is too fast for her. She admits she can't quite keep up with it.

Roosevelt Smile Baffles Painter of Sistie Dall

Miss Edith McCartney, pastel portrait painter, said so yesterday as she pointed out the reasons why her portrait of little Sistie Dall was not all she wanted it to be.

Miss McCartney sat in her N street studio, dressed in a brown artist's smock which blended softly with the tan and brown streaked walls.

She was at work on the portrait of another little girl, Miss Frances Sternhagen, daughter of Judge and Mrs. J. M. Sternhagen of this city.

"Sistie Dall bears a striking resemblance to the President," she said. But that smile! See," she turned the pages of her album to a photo of the portrait. "The eyes, the forehead, the nose, they're all right; but the mouth, it isn't true to Sistie. If it was just a smile, I could have done it. But something of a half smile that suggests a full smile is another matter. And that's what the Roosevelt smile is.

"He was confined to his bed the day of our appointment, but I called and painted him there. When I entered the room he looked up at me and said, 'Please, I don't want my picture painted.'

"'Will it be all right if I paint the blue hydroplane?' It was a new top which lay beside him on the bed. He was delighted at that and sat quite still while I painted away."

Men and children fall into the same category as models, according to Miss McCartney. "They are both unconscious of their appearance, both willing to be painted as they are, and utterly free of affectation. "And," she added with a smile that lighted up her whole face, "they both have to be coerced to pose.

"Women are interesting subjects, yes, but hard to please. They have decided ideas about what the artist should reproduce on canvas and are inclined to prefer a flattering portrait regardless of likeness.

"Children, of course, are the most responsive. After I talk to them a little while they usually become quite friendly and chatty. Before long, I'm able to sense the chiaroscuro of their temperaments. From then on I try to paint them not merely as the eyes see them, but the mind as well."

Miss McCartney has painted Harry, Raphael and Gibby Semmes; Henry, Toby and Peter Strong; Tommy and Jerry Selby; Tope, Eileen and Hal Erwin and many other prominent Washington children.

Secretary McAdoo's Double.

"Send me Secretary McAdoo's double," was an order a local caterer often received when a Washington hostess ordered more waiters for her parties. One of the first people to greet former Secretary of the Treasury William Gibbs McAdoo when he came to Washington last March to take his place in the Senate from California was this waiter, who, with changing administrations had lost something of his prestige as a double but none of his art at serving guests.

What Today Means

"Scorpio."

If November 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 10 a. m., from 4:45 to 5:45 p. m., and from 7 to 8:10 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:20 p. m. and from 9 to 11 p. m.

You will probably do a lot of work on this date that will have to be done over entirely or else greatly modified. Some news will possibly come to you from a considerable distance; it should be of a cheering nature and will restore hope.

The child born on this November 14, once it has fallen into error, will not be the type to soon mend its ways. It will be inclined to be thoroughly satisfied with all that it does and will resent suggestions or advice of any sort.

If November 14 is the date of your birth, you are probably one who likes to attract attention, not in an unhealthy way, however; you like to appear before the public at least in some way, to keep your name before it. You are not a particularly modest person; you do not hesitate to give yourself a pat on the back on occasions or drop a word of praise in your own behalf. It is likely that you have artistic talents along some lines. You have an eye for the beautiful, and if you do not create yourself, you are probably much interested others, beautiful things. More than likely you paint rather well or are well versed in some other form of expression. Many of the people born on this date enjoy making personal appearances before large groups; many of them seek to satisfy this desire by going on the stage and are more than just passing fair. A sense of humor and the ability to "take off" others are valuable attributes possessed by these people.

Born on November 14, you are not quick to asume responsibility although if it is forced on you, you do not shirk your duty. You are quite a "wire puller" and you select your friends very largely for what you can get out of them. You seek good connections and contacts. You are inclined to be sensual; in the matter of eating, principally, you are inclined to go to extremes. You will have many love affairs, and not all of them will take place before marriage; you will love your mate greatly but you will not hesitate to be attentive to others at the same time.

Whit Burnett was the only New York publisher ready to capitalize upon Ivan Bunin's winning the Nobel Prize for literature. A short time ago he had secured from M. Bunin several contributions for Story, the magazine which he and Martha Foley edit, and now he can publish them in quick and timely succession. There was a scramble in the office of Henry Holt until they discovered they had printed "Mitya's Love" in 1926, but no copies were left. Knopf remembered their publication of "The Gentleman From San Francisco" and "The Village" in 1923. But since they had none in stock, new editions were hurriedly ordered. A Nobel winner must be read.

A code for pulp-magazine writers has just been sent to the NRA by the American Fiction Guild.

Hitler likes to publish his works in this country. The John Day Co. have just received the manuscript of all his speeches from the time he came to office last January down to the present. They will publish them in book form soon, with an introduction by Joseph Goebbels.

Lovers of Kipling may join the Kipling Society, share their enthusiasm with other admirers of the Empire bard, and receive the quarterly Kipling Journal. Headquarters of the society are in London, but Carl T. Naumburg, 333 Central Park West, New York, is its secretary for this country.

How the Parti-Colored Live.

Any one who reads Jessie Fauset's new novel will become acutely conscious of the tragedy of that ever-expanding class of outcasts—people without a race.

So white of skin that pure-blooded Negroes shun them, too dark of blood to be acceptable to whites, they must masquerade, fearful and suffering for the sins of their ancestors.

Only a few—such as Quadroon Olivia, the chief character, want to be white, and she is despised. If a single drop of Negro blood courses through their veins, though they be blond of hair, blue of eye, cultured doctors or lawyers, though they move in the best white circles, the majority would be black if they could. The reason, as Grandfather Cary puts it, is that "there is no pride so strong, so complacent, as the pride of the old colored Philadelphian. That bondsman who had been enslaved, as Africans had been enslaved, needed to feel no shame. The burden was on their enslavers. When men rose in less than half a century to positions of independence and of signal success, their children had an ancestry of which they might well be proud."

Out of the woes of these people, Miss Fauset has written the life stories of seven near-whites, looking deep into the hearts and minds of an isolated group of which the world knows little.

A Philadelphian who fought her way through Cornell, the University of Pennsylvania and the Sorbonne, who taught and engaged in editorial work until her "Plum Bun" and "Chinaberry Tree" caused Zona Gale to sponsor her and to hail her as "our foremost Negro fictionist," Miss Fauset knows what she writes of when she deals with Negro life.

She is a novelist of unusual talent. Thus the book is what one would expect—ironic, tragic, sardonically real, topped with a title which is sarcastically bitter "Comedy-American Style."

The book starts and ends with Olivia, a woman who all her life tried to be the Caucasian she imagined herself, until childhood playmates informed her otherwise.

Though Olivia's desire is achived, it brings tragedy to the lives of her husband, her daughter, and two sons. One of the later was so dark that his mother forced him to play the part of a Filipino butler in order to justify his presence when fashionable clubwomen called for tea.

This son commits suicide, the daughter marries a French professor after attending finishing school and being jilted by a black lawyer, and Olivia is exiled by the hate of the family she ruined.

As one of the characters says, "that's why I can't understand a country like this that started out from the beginning to alleviate the natural woes of man, pain, sorrow, poverty, caste and all the rest of it, and then went about adding a special little group of woes for us."

Dollars Skip In and Out.

A narrative, "SAND DOLLARS," by Katherine Ball Ripley; Harcourt Brace, $2.00.

When she was a little girl of 7, Mrs. Ripley used to collect round, flat shells on the Carolina beaches, call them dollars, and skip them out to sea. In this book she is grown up and they are real dollars. But they skip as blithely as ever.

In "Sand in My Shoes," she told the story of the peach orchard she and her husband bought. In this sequel they discover that it can not be made to pay. They move to Charleston and money flows in from his writing. But along comes the boom. After their excited investments go up in the general bonfire they have to begin all over again, and the money, miraculously comes in once more. Those ups and downs outline the story.

Mrs. Ripley has great talent in casting a light and amusing yet thoroughly plausible air over everyday events. The characters in Carolina, New York and Vermont are living, friendly people. We see them whole and clear. Everything happens in so real a manner that you would take Mrs. Ripley for a cousin or aunt writing you of her actual days. After all, they were actual. This is an unadorned chronicle of two very real people and their friends, acquaintances and ways of living. That you will want to share them all is the highest compliment to be paid this straightforward and human little book.

What's in Fashion?

Bulkless Modern Woolies Can't Mar Sheath Figure

Directed by Amos Parrish

Garments of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington in all the better class shops.

New York, Nov. 13—Maybe you're the kind whose pride can keep you warm. But more and more women are depending on the smart, modern winter woolies for protection from the shivers. And then the matter of pride doesn't enter in. Because modern woolies don't affect the sheath silhouette one bit.

It's the way they're cut, for one thing. They fit just like your skin—or at any rate, just like your summer lingerie . . . smooth, close, wrinkleless.

Light and Soft.

And for another thing, since science has discovered that it isn't bulk that keeps one warm but the material and the way it's woven, these woolies are made light and soft. Not a chance to add a fraction of an inch to your girth.

And that brings up the question, "What are the materials in the newest winter woolies?" For it happens that they aren't all made of all-wool, despite their warm, comfortable look and feel.

Wool Mixtures.

Silk-and-wool is a favorite mixture and it's as soft and cozy as a baby's undergarments.

Then for not-so-cold climates there's a mixture of lisle-and-wool. Or even all-lisle, mercerized, which gives a good woolie imitation.

Rabbit's wool-and-silk has a delicious, luxurious feeling and enough warmth to keep you comfortable in sub-zero weather.

These mixtures may contain from 10 to 50 per cent wool, depending on just how much warmth you want.

If you're the kind that's shivery all the time, or have to be out of doors a lot, you'll find the one-piece garments comfortable.

Side Fastenings.

Some of these fasten down the side of the leg. Then there's a newer one which younger outdoor girls like that is shorter in length with a wider pantie bottom. That's the one sketched at the right.

Others prefer two-piece sets consisting of panties or bloomers and vest. They're practical, too, as on less cold days the separate panties can be pulled on over silk underwear when you go out and quickly taken off when you return indoors.

Two-Piece Set.

We've had sketched at the left one of the two-piece sets with the longer length pantie. But for not-so-shivery folk, there are shorter separate panties.

General Was Amazed At Woman Officer

A British mission came to Washington soon after the opening of the World War to observe the condition of defense, training of officers, and what preparations Uncle Sam was making for a possible share in the big conflict.

The visiting general and his staff inquired where the training camps were.

"Training camps, training camps," echoed the young aid. "Oh, yes, you mean the National Service School in Chevy Chase."

"Quite so," agreed the British general.

Out he journeyed to pay a state call on the commandant of the training camp.

On being ushered into the commandant's tent, the general was much amazed to find himself facing a young woman—in khaki, yes, but skirts—and with the proper insignia of her high rank on her shoulders.

It was the famous military encampment known as the National Service School, where women were being trained in Red Cross and other types of relief that fall to the lot of femininity in every war. At the time it was the only training camp in and around Washington. It had the distinction of being included in the official report the mission made to the British War Office, a report which is said to have had much to do with the formation of the celebrated "V. A. D." the British women war service organization.

Rose Lovers Should Plant Gardens Now

Moist Roots and Fertile Loam Will Make Bush Sturdy.

The rose! The name is practically the same in all languages, the flower has been immortalized in literature of all ages and all nations. The favorite simile of poets, the surest medium for conveying messages, the rose reigns supreme, queen of the flowers. It is seen in the gardens of the most wealthy, on the fences of the least pretentious cottages. It garnishes the palaces of kings, and cheers the dark windows of the poor

What is a garden without its roses?

November or early December are the best times to plant roses. Spring planting is successful if done before the buds appear, but losses frequently result if they are planted after the growth starts.

When your plants arrive unpack them immediately, and if the roots are at all dry put them in fresh water for a few hours. Remove all broken twigs, leaves, and tips of branches. Cut the plants back enough so that they will not be whipped by the winter wind. Close pruning should be done in the spring.

Roses grow best in fertile clay loam. If the soil is not good it is a good plan to import a good garden loam to put in the holes in which the roses are placed.

Dig the holes large enough to allow the roots to spread in natural position, and trim the ends of the roots rather than bend them. Set the plants 3 inches deeper than they grew, working fine soil around the roots with the hands until the hole is filled. Tramp the soil firmly. Place a mound of earth around the plants to protect them from winter injury. Fertilizer should be placed on the surface rather than around the roots. Ground bone or manure is excellent for this.

Bench and Bar Bright Career For Women Now

Washington Woman Attorney Sees Them Gaining Ground.

Woman is conquering a more and more important place in the legal profession and on the judge's bench.

Miss Hope K. Thompson, of Washington, attorney who has handled international suits for the Federal Government, gave that as her conviction yesterday.

Miss Thompson's statements were corroborated by those of Judge Edith M. Atkinson, who for eight years presided over the Juvenile Court of Miami, Fla. The two women were interviewed by the Associated Press at the regional convention of Phi Delta Delta legal fraternity in New York City.

"Women judges are preferable to men in juvenile courts for the dependent and neglected," said Judge Atkinson, "but in delinquency courts, both men and woman play equally valuable parts.

"A woman is naturally inclined to give more consideration to small details of the welfare of a child, perhaps, than a man. And sometimes the very destiny of a child may depend on consideration of those seemingly unimportant details."

"Along with sympathy and understanding there must be the ability to be firm with the child in order to give the proper training. The woman must have a sincere desire to administer justice for the sake of the child, who is to be the future citizen."

The blue-gowned Miss Thompson suggested one principle for women attorneys:

"The main thing for them to do is to be genuine.

"Women are naturally altruistic, and in the cause of justice they are willing to be servants of the law for the good of humanity."

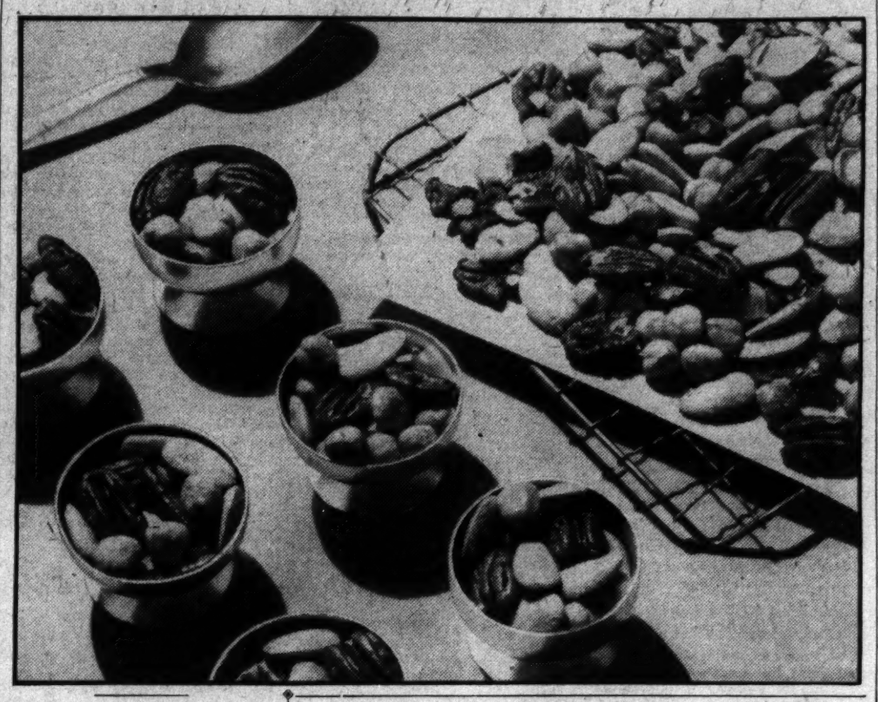
Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 13 (Spl.).—John Bernard Smith, of the Forest High School, has been chosen to represent Spotsylvania County at the Five Point Rally to be held in Richmond on December 1.

With 27 Five Point pupils out of a total enrollment of 54, the Forest Hill School had the highest percentage of Five Pointers in the county for the year 1932-33. For this achievement it won the privilege of sending a representative to the rally.

What's Good to Eat

Nuts Are Always Favored Fare; Help to Dress Up Holiday Menu

By Ann Barrett.



By all means serve nuts. If you do it in a nice way, you'll be popular. Nice means principally to make sure the nuts you serve are crackling-fresh and crisp. Then let them be eaten as is, or make 101 good dishes better still, by sprinkling nuts in, on, or all over.

Nuts are such good harmonizers you hardly need rules. For instance, you might not think nuts and fish would take to each other. But one of the best fish sauces I ever ate was made by browning shredded almonds in plenty of butter. Then just pour over any small fried or broiled fish. One of the nicest salads I know is made simply by chopping raw carrots and blanched almonds, two to one mixture. Serve on crisp lettuce with your favorite dressing. As for smartening up that good, old fashioned standby, scalloped tomatoes, I don't know any way so good as to add a cup or so of crisp, chopped pecans, saving out a few for browning lightly with the crumbs on top.

How to Freshen Nuts.

But first, I'll repeat—be sure nuts are crackling fresh. Never, never take this for granted. Taste 'em! If they've already been fried or roasted but have taken up moisture on their way to you, turn them into a shallow pan and put them in a slow oven (about 325 F.) to dry out and freshen up.

If you've bought your nuts in the shell, aiming to roast or fry them yourself, here are a few tips.

Blanching Nuts.

Harder nuts such as almonds, Brazil nuts, filberts, peanuts are usually blanched first, then browned. The skin rubs off peanuts very easily after they're roasted. But other hard nuts need to be first covered with boiling water, soaked 10 minutes, then plunged into cold water. Then just pinch off the skins. Next, spread them out in one layer on a towel and dry them thoroughly (at least 12 hours). Top of the radiator is good for this.

Frying and Roasting.

When nuts are thoroughly dry, fry each kind separately, like this: Put ½ cup salad or cooking oil in tiny saucepan (maybe 3½ inches across). Heat to about 365 F., or point where it will brown an inch-cube of soft bread in 60 seconds. Fry your nuts only a tablespoon or so at a time. (They brown in about one minute, so this isn't so tedious as it sounds.) If you have a little strainer you can get them in and out of the fat more quickly by using it. Otherwise just skim them out with a slotted or holed spoon. Drain on absorbent paper and sprinkle with salt.

Walnuts and pecans are best roasted, though you may roast all nuts if you wish. Just spread them out in a shallow pan, mix in ½ tablespoon butter and ½ teaspoon salt for each cup of nuts and roast at 325 F. till brown, stirring frequently.

Delicious Nut Cookies.

To top off this nutty yarn, here's a recipe for extra-delicious nut cookies: Cream together 1 cup butter and 2 cups sugar. Add 2 eggs slightly beaten and ½ cup milk. Then stir in 3 cups sifted pastry flour (first mixed with 2 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt). Add 1½ cups finely chopped pecans, hickory nuts or walnuts. Roll very thin, cut, put on greased baking sheet and bake at 375 F., till delicately brown.

The Family Marketer

Heigh-ho! The Fruit Cake Making Time Is Here Again.

"Fruit cakes should be at least a month old," said the market man, "before they are eaten."

The Marketer pondered a moment.

"Then people had better start making them now, shouldn't they?"

"Yes, ma'am. Lots of people have already bought the materials. I have all the stuff that goes into a fruit cake, the citron, candied pineapple, and cherries, currants, all the spices and nuts."

Christmas! Fruit cake! There is still plenty of time to worry about the turkey and plum pudding and all the good things that go with the Christmas feast. Get your fruit cake ready now, and let it wait until the holiday. The longer it waits the better it will taste.

Here is a recipe for the dark fruit cake. And in a day or so, the Marketer will give you a recipe for white fruit cake, wait and see!

Dark Fruit Cake (7 Pounds).

½ pound currents
1 pound seeded raisins
1 pound pitted dates
½ pound candied pineapple
½ pound candied cherries
½ pound almonds, blanched
½ pound shelled pecans
¼ pound citron
¼ pound sliced orange peel
¼ pound sliced lemon peel
½ pound butter or other fat
1 cup sugar
6 eggs
1 ounce (1 square) chocolate
3 cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon soda
1½ teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup grape juice or orange juice
½ cup honey or molasses

Prepare the fruit and nuts, cutting in pieces as desired, put them in a mixing bowl; sift the flour, soda and spices over the fruit and mix with the finger tips until the pieces are coated with flour. Cream the butter; stir in the sugar gradually; then the beaten eggs and melted chocolate. Stir in the flour, fruit and nut mixture alternately with the grape juice and honey.

Fill paper-lined pans to the top with this mixture. Bake large loaves for 4 to 4½ hours in a very slow oven (250 degrees F.). The cakes are improved by setting in a shallow pan of water on the floor of the oven during baking. In the absence of an automatically regulated oven, the cakes should be steamed rather than baked. Tie several layers of waxed or greased paper over the tops of the pans; place on the racks of a steamer; steam for the period indicated for baking; remove the paper covers from the pans; set the pans in a very slow oven (250 degrees F.) for ½ to 1 hour, to dry the surface.

Store when cool in a stone crock or tin box with a tight cover. The cakes should be wrapped in heavy layers of waxed paper and tied with string or fastened with rubber bands.

Dinner for 4 at 66 Cents.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

The British are trying to solve the problem of house heating in cold weather by what is known as the hot panel method. In this country we are disposed to choose between such older methods as heating by open fires, stoves, warm air, hot water and steam. The problem is difficult because it necessarily includes such other problems as humidifying the warm air, cleaning it of physical and chemical impurities and other phases of ventilation.

In this country not much use has been made of heating by electricity. The addition to the methods to be chosen between, offered principally by the British, is a modified method of electrical heating. Resistance wires, coils and plates are imbedded in the side walls and in the ceilings and under the floors.

None of the older systems are altogether satisfactory when it comes to cold floors. In the panel heating method some wires and plates are planted under the floors.

A recent report on the panel method, as applied to the heating of the schoolrooms, showed that it was inefficient, at least in the installation that was studied. While it may have done something worth while in promoting ventilation and increasing the relative comfort of the floor area, it was not a success otherwise.

Not enough heat was supplied to maintain the air of the room at comfortable temperatures. The manufacturers must find a way to introduce more resistance wires in the panels, and the janitors must burn more electricity before the method can succeed in heating a schoolroom or a large office occupied by as many as 40 clerks and stenographers.

Chef Elated At Prospect Of Wine Sauce

(Associated Press.)

The science of using wine in cooking, restoration of which seems imminent in the United States, is set forth by M. Theophile, former sous-chef at the Marguery, Paris.

This art is the essence of several centuries of tradition in French cooking. It is a trial and error method, tested and proven on millions of human subjects.

"It has not been possible," says Theophile, "except when one broke the law, to make any of the fine sauces that must go with many dishes, according to the rules of French cooking.

"Sauce chateau, for example, absolutely requires real vin blanc in its composition. Not only for flavoring, but for the actual blending of its ingredients. Sauce bordelaise needs red wine.

"Sauce Armenonville needs sherry and cognac. Sauce archi-duc must have port wine. Even lobster Newburg, to which Americans are partial, should be made with white wine and cognac, and sole needs white wine. For most sauces wine is absolutely necessary.

"To the fact that wine has not been available, I attribute some of the digestive troubles that since the war have put some people in this country on starvation diets. I am aware that the sylph-like figure has influenced diet among many women.

"But when food is properly digested, I think it does not necessarily make fat. In France where wine is recognized in diet, the French cuisine is based on chemical and physiological laws, as well as designed to bring out appetizing flavors and tastes.

Leesburg to Enjoy Play and Concerts

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 13.—As the winter season approaches, various organizations in Leesburg are planning activities not only as educational projects but as benefits. The Parent-Teacher Association is sponsoring a play, "Page the Prince," which will be given under the direction of J. B. Rogers, director of the First Apple Blossom Festival in Winchester. The cast will be made up of local talent. The performances are scheduled for the nights of December 15 and 16.

Miss Charlott Klein, of St. Margaret's Church, Washington, will give an organ recital in St. James' Episcopal Church, Leesburg, on Monday, November 20, at 8 p. m.

The Loudoun Choral Club is sponsoring a concert to be held Friday, December 8, in the Leesburg High School auditorium. Anton Kasper, well-known Washington violinist, and his daughter will be the leading artists assisting the club.

Cherry Pits Start Orchard at Rapidan

In the years to come when a row of California cherry trees stand proudly in the grounds of the Presidential camp at Rapidan, Va., Mrs. Herbert Hoover may be thanked.

Mrs Hoover was host to the newspaperwomen of the Capital at a luncheon served out of doors. Among the items for dessert was a bowl of huge purple California cherries.

Mrs. Hoover took several and after she ate them said with a laugh: "I'd like to throw the cherry stones behind me in the hope that trees may spring up." With a backward gesture she tossed the stones carelessly on the grass. Instantly every newspaperwoman at the table ate a cherry, took out the stone, and flung it behind her.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Carroll Morgan Works for the Community Chest.

MRS. CARROLL MORGAN.

"I work for the Community Chest because I know that 94 cents out of every dollar raised in the chest campaign goes to the agency for actual work." Mrs. Carroll Morgan, volunteer for the chest ever since its founding, and member of several important agency boards, speaks with conviction when she discusses welfare matters.

Contrasting the old method of raising money by bringing in outside organizations, holding charity balls, selling tags, and other methods, Mrs. Morgan pointed out that there was always an overhead of 15 per cent or more to the old methods of raising funds, and that, in addition, there was scarcely a week in the year when somebody's campaign was not being held.

"I feel," she says, "that it is the duty of every person who has any spare time to do all possible for the thousands of people whose condition is desperate and who are in dire need. I am sure that if we could once get before the public the fact that so little of the money raised by the chest goes for overhead and administration of these funds that the people of Washington would never consent to give by any other method, and if the Chest accomplishes no other purpose, the splendid manner in which it fuses the entire citizenship into one communal whole would be worth every dollar that is subscribed in the campaign."

In addition to her work with the chest, Mrs. Morgan is a member of the board of the Children's Country Home and of Columbia Hospital, and is noted in welfare circles for her gracious interest in all welfare work, and particularly that pertaining to the care of children.

Stocks Loaf, Closing With Small Losses

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—A resumption of dollar decline in the Foreign exchange markets found stocks apathetic today. The market loafed all day, edging slightly higher at times but finishing with irregular and narrow changes. The average net variation of 90 issues at the close was a minor fractional loss. Volume was reduced to 1,091,315 shares.

Some traders may have decided that staples offered more speculative appeal; at any rate, silver was in brisk demand, futures making new highs for the move while bar metal moved up nearly a cent to 43¾ cents per ounce, its best price since April, 1930. Wheat's net improvement was around 1 to 2 cents a bushel; cotton, after rising around a dollar a bale, lost part of its gain.

Foreign Money Rallies.

Foreign currencies promptly resumed the rally they had been following when dealings ceased on Saturday and held or extended their gains after the R. F. C.'s gold purchasing price of $33.45. The London gold market was under Washington's bid. Sterling's orderly advance carried to $5.16½, up 7 cents and a new post-war top for this market.

Improvement shown by U. S. Government bonds was not duplicated in other gilt-edge sections of the investment market.

Firmness of Federals may have reflected willingness of investors to await the elucidation of monetary policy promised by Secretary Woodin; possibly, also, support was forthcoming from important quarters, notably the Federal Reserve.

Little to Choose From.

In stocks there was little to choose from. Rails and utilities seemed to ease more readily than industrials, for many leaders in the last-named category closed higher.

Thus there were fractional gains, mostly minor ones, for U. S. Steel, American Can, Allied Chemical, General Motors, Case, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Socony-Vacuum, Westinghouse and Bethlehem. Patina Mines established another new high; otherwise metals lagged.

Santa Fe Railway and Union Pacific each lost a point. American Telephone was narrow, doubtless in anticipation of a regular dividend declaration at Wednesday's meeting.

Wall Street was left to guess as to what had taken place at Sunday's White House conference, but assumed that various views on monetary matters had probably been expressed.

Secretary Woodin took occasion to deny that the Treasury opposed President Roosevelt's policy, and continuation of the program was said to be planned.

Business news included the cheery word that steel operations had picked up. American Iron & Steel Institute placed current operations at 27.1 per cent of capacity, against 25.2 a week ago. This is the first increase in some time and surprised those who expected the downtrend to continue a while longer; how durable the improvement is remains to be seen.

Governmental Price Fixing

Disrupts Those Readjustments That Keep Our System in Order

By Ralph West Robey.

No one who follows current developments with any care can doubt that we slowly but surely are drifting in the direction of widespread Government price fixing. Already we have stepped over the bounds in two directions. The first of these was in connection with various of the NRA codes; the second in the loans which the Government is offerings farmers on wheat and corn. Having gone this far it is comparatively simple to go the rest of the way and attempt to establish minimum and maximum values for all important commodities. Such a step would be an extremely serious error.

The arguments used for price fixing ordinarly follow two broad lines. On the one side are those who maintain that it is the only feasible method for preventing ruinous price cutting. This school emphasizes that in a time of distress it is possible for unscrupulous individuals to gain control of factories at a mere nominal cost and consequently, because of the small capital upon which interest has to be paid, are able to undercut everyone else in the business. The textile industry frequently is cited as a good example of a field in which such scalping has been profitable in the last few years.

Variation of This Argument Refers to Heavy Fixed Charges.

A variation of this argument is found in those industries where the capital investment, and hence fixed charges, are relatively heavy. Here it is pointed out the hard-pressed owner has every incentive to undersell his competitor because a large proportion of his costs continue more or less the same regardless of whether he is operating at capacity or at only one-quarter of capacity. It is, in other words, not so much a matter of making money as losing as little as possible, and the more that he can be sold at anything above the additional cost involved in their manufacture, the less the loss will be.

The second broad line of argument for price fixing approaches the problem from the opposite angle. Here it is a question of attempting through governmental action to keep the price level in equilibrium. In this connection it is emphasized that some lines of activity can modify their output to changed conditions much more quickly than others with the result that they get out of line with the rest of the economic system. It is held, accordingly, that it is in the interest of a smooth working economic system to have Federal supervision exerted at these points to prevent the development of such disequilibria.

When There Is Wide Cooperation Price Fluctuations Are Checked.

The principal variation of this line of reasoning refers to those industries in which there is a high degree of cooperation. This, it is held, facilitates the making of adjustments and enables the companies concerned to advance their prices more rapidly than the general level of values increase. Further, it is pointed out, such cooperation helps to hold prices high in a declining market because the more hard-pressed units in the industry will not start a price warfare. Both of these conditions, it is the contention of price fixers, could be eliminated to the benefit of society if the Government took a direct hand.

When all is said and done, however, and regardless of how good some of these reasons may be logically, it still remains that a government is not in a position effectively to control prices in a modern economy. This is because the whole price structure is highly interrelated and every change at one point involves adjustments at many other points.

Further, there continually are changes being made because of alterations in public taste, fluctuations in prices, and those thousand and one things that cause us to buy one article in preference to another. If the Government enters the price-fixing field, it cuts directly across these adjustments by which the economic system is kept in smooth working order. It is a task, therefore, which the Federal Administration should shun at all costs.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Cotton goods—demand for upholstery fabrics for spring has been quiet, but the trade is looking for improvement soon because of settlement of labor troubles at many furniture factories.

Dyestuffs—It is reported in the trade that the woolen and worsted industries are continuing to make fair quantities. Demand from the rayon and silk trades is spotty and limited to small quantities.

Paper—Kraft wrapping paper prices remain firm, with quotations higher at some southern mills. Paperboard output continues close to capacity.

Knit goods—Markets show little activity with the exception of heavy underwear in which trade is fairly active.

Floor covering—Markets are said to be showing some improvement as a result of increasing demand for small-sized rugs for holiday stock.

Bond Market Sags Fraction In Lighter Sale

Support for Federal Loans Fails to Aid; Trading, $14,246,000.

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—Further support appeared for United States Government securities today, but elsewhere in the bond market there was an irregular lower trend apparent.

The trading volume, at the same time, contracted to $14,246,000, par value, compared with $19,562,000 last Friday. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans sagged four-tenths of a point.

The Government list seemingly ignored another sharp decline of the dollar in terms of sterling. The source of today's buying of Federals was not clear. Most of the transactions in this group occurred on the stock exchange, whereas, ordinarily, the bulk of this business is done "over the counter." Gains ranged from 8-32 to 24-32 of a point, with the heaviest turnover in the new 4¼s-3¼s and the 3¼s of 1941. In some quarters it was reported that the Federal Reserve System may have taken a hand in supporting the Government section.

Small recoveries were recorded by some issues of American Telephone, Chesapeake & Ohio, North American, Philadelphia Electric, Texas Corporation and Shell Union Oil.

The rails, as a group, were rather heavy. Losses of 1 to around 3 points were suffered by some liens of Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago & North Western, Erie, Hudson & Manhattan, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Pere Marquette, Reading, Frisco, Southern Pacific and Southern.

Bonds of Consolidated Gas, Columbia Gas, Goodrich, Midvale Steel, National Dairy, Pennsylvania Power & Light, Portland General Electric, Postal Telegraph and Public Service were easier.

A number of European obligations responded to a rally in foreign exchange against the dollar. Among these, up 1 to around 3 points, were issues of Dutch East Indies, France, Canada, Poland and the United Kingdom. Bonds of Argentina, Austria, Denmark and Japan drifted lower.

New York Bank Stocks Decline in Past Week

New York, Nov. 13.—The New York City bank stock market registered a decline during the past week, with the result that the group on the average now yields 6.87 per cent. The aggregate value of the 16 leading issues, as compiled by Holt, Rose & Troster, ended the week at $1,141,482,000, compared with $1,219,067,000 at the close of the previous week, a decrease of $77,585,000, or 6.4 per cent.

The current average yield of the 16 stocks of 6.87 per cent compares with a yield of 6.43 per cent reported on November 3. The current market value of the 16 stocks is now 0.84 times their known book value, against 0.90 on November 3. Based upon current figures, the 16 stocks are now quoted at an average of 9.9 times their known earnings, against 10.5 times at the close of the previous week.

U. S. Dollar Drops On Gold's Advance

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today gave the domestic gold price another boost of 13 cents an ounce at $33.45 and the American dollar turned reactionary in foreign exchange markets.

The British pound sterling gained 5½ cents at $5.15½, which compared with the recent post-war peak of $5.16¼ for this currency. French francs were not so boyant, however, although they firmed .03 of a cent at 6.30 cents. Dutch guilders advanced .13 of a cent at 64.80 cents and Belgium belgas and Swiss francs were up .11 and .15 of a cent, respectively. German marks, the Scandinavians, Canadian dollars and Far Eastern funds were moderately higher.

As measured by today's domestic gold rate, the dollar had a theoretical value of about 61.79 cents. In terms of the French gold franc its value was approximately 62.22 cents.

Foreign Markets.

London, Nov. 13 (A.P.).—Uncertainties in regard to foreign exchanges checked business on the stock exchange today. Trading was quiet and prices were irregular. Industrials and home rails were cheerful owing to last month's Board of Trade figures, while transatlantic issues eased with Wall street. The closing was dull.

Paris—Reports of growing opposition in America to President Roosevelt's monetary policy caused a pronounced hesitancy on the bourse. The market was dull with a tendency toward heaviness. Rentes were stronger while most international issues lost ground. The closing was irregular.

Berlin—Stimulated by election results and the decline in the number of foreign sales, the bourse opened more active. Lignite and steel shares were preferred by operators. The closing however, was weaker.

Goods Markets.

New York, Nov. 13 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were firmer today. Moderate selling of gray cloths was reported. Finished goods were in better call. Wool goods are moderately active. Rayon buying is quieter. Silks are being sold in light volume. Burlaps were firm in expectation of a high compensatory tax.

Steel Market.

Blue annealed sheets, hot rolled, 1.90; galvanized sheets, 2.85; black sheets, hot rolled, 2.25; steel bars, 1.75.

Curb Trading Finishes With Mixed Results

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—Trading on the curb exchange was almost dormant today, prices ruling narrowly irregular at the finish. Aside from a mild splurge in oils, traders were inclined toward extreme caution.

Gulf and Humble oils got up around 3 points each, but improvement in other members of the group was confined to fractions. Metals were steady, and Bunker Hill & Sullivan gained 1⅝ points.

Utilities and alcohols were a trifle mixed. Hiram Walker and Electric Bond & Share eased fractionally, but a better tone predominated in Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore. Pan-American Airways gained a minor fraction in moderately active dealings while Aluminum Co. of America closed unchanged.

Early Cotton Advance Cut By Reaction

December Closes at 9.89 as General Market Gains 4 to 9 Points.

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—An early advance in cotton today was followed by partial reactions. After selling up to 10.00 December eased to 9.89 under liquidation and closed at that figure. The general market closed barely steady at net advances of 4 to 9 points.

The opening was 7 to 10 points higher in response to steady Liverpool cables, higher foreign exchange rates and the advance in the domestic gold price. There was some southern selling and profit-taking but offerings were not heavy. Houses with Liverpool and continental connections had buying orders and there was more buying from Wall street sources, but at net advances of about 15 to 19 points the market met more cotton and demand tapered off somewhat after the close of Liverpool.

Offerings Are Taken.

Offerings were absorbed on comparatively moderate reactions around noon, but despite closing firmness of wheat, the lowest prices were reached in the late trading when May sold off to 10.27. Active months showed losses of 10 to 11 points from the early highs. Closing quotations were the lowest for the day.

Early reports from Washington that the plan to loan 4 cents per pound on the option contract cotton were considered a contributing factor on the early advance, but later advices said the details of this plan might be withheld until legal questions involved had been cleared up. This combined with the failure of the early buying to push the market above the 10 cent level for October, may have led to some late reselling.

Reports of a continued firm spot situation and more favorable advices from the domestic goods market had a sustaining influence. Exports today 30,641 making 2,799,177 so far this season. Port receipts 36,274. U. S. port stocks 3,984,446.

Cotton Seed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was firm, closing at 2 to 6 points advance on covering and local buying promoted by the firmness in seed and crude oil, higher hogs and steadier grain and cotton markets. Sales were 32 contracts. Bleachable spot, nominal; December, 4.78; January, 4.92; March, 5.10; May, 5.28. The October consumption estate of 257,000 barrels and the visible supply end of October of 2,771,000 barrels were discounted.

West Virginia Men Fight Prince Plan

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 13 (Spl.).—Fears of business and industrial leaders of the northern territory of West Virginia have been aroused over the possible effects of the Prince railroad consolidation plan and they are taking steps to lodge formal protest against certain phases of it.

For the purpose of getting a clear understanding of the situation as it would affect the northern West Virginia area, trade bodies, service clubs, civic organizations and other bodies have been called into a mass meeting here November 17 by the Clarksburg Chamber of Commerce. John J. Cornwell, former governor of the State and now general counsel for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, will analyze the Prince plan at this time.

The general public is invited to attend the meeting.

Steel Leaders See Progress In Revival Plan

Mills Expect Rapid Rise in Spite of Lower Capacity Run.

Cleveland, Nov. 13.—This week completes the 90-day trial period set for the steel industry's code, with the steelworks operating rate about 24 per cent, compared with 51 per cent when the President signed that document, states the magazine Steel.

Despite this loss, however, steelmakers are convinced real progress has been made and that the groundwork has been laid for a more rapid rise when present seasonal influences have run their course. The rate of decline is slower. A year ago at this time the rate was 20 per cent and falling to a year-end low of 12 per cent.

Steadying factors are more apparent this year and may overcome much of the seasonal inertia. With stocks in general consumers' hands still heavy, only moderte buying is expected for actual requirements over the remainder of the year. First specifications for new automobile models are being released, and as the month progresses they will provide better mill schedules.

Rail Buying Improves.

Railroad buying is beginning to assume larger proportions. Coordinator Eastman's announcement that most of the 844,000 tons of Government-financed rails should be allocated within two weeks may lead to early rolling of a substantial portion.

The Pennsylvania is taking bids, as a formality, November 23 on 100,000 tons of rails and 57,000 tons of accessories. New York, New Haven & Hartford has announced its intention to take 35,000 tons of rails and track fastenings; Boston & Maine, 30,000 tons; Rock Island, 26,400 tons, and Maine Central, 10,000 tons.

The Pennsylvania also is to proceed immediately with construction of 500 automobile box cars, starting its program for 7,028 new freight cars. Award of freight cars in October increased to 514 from 23 in September; for the first 10 months, awards of 1,611 compare with 1,687 last year, and 30,797 in 1930.

New Construction Scope.

New construction projects are restricted almost entirely to public works, interspersed with a few breweries. The number of Federal aid jobs coming out for bids is increasing steadily, but steel awards so far are comparatively small; for the week they were down to 7,055 tons.

Strikes in Eastern shipyards are interfering with plate orders and fabrication. For nine Coast Guard patrol boats 1,350 tons of plates have been awarded, and for 48 pontoons and pipe for Government work at Memphis, Tenn., 1,150 tons. Award of 6,550 tons of iron and steel pipe has been made for Cleveland water mains. Los Angeles has placed 2,915 tons of cast pipe.

Iron and steel producers are cognizant of a strong feeling at Washington against further price advances on heavy materials, and are not disposed to take a contrary attitude. Some interests, especially pig iron sellers, are preparing to open books for first quarter December 1, which will require them to file prices November 20. Eastern iron producers are contemplating an advance, though in other districts it is believed the present state of the market will not support a general increase, either in iron or steel. Cast pipe prices have been raised $5 a ton.

Pig Iron Shipments.

Pig iron shipments this month are moderately ahead of those in the comparable period in October, due to melters' intentions to take out practically all fourth quarter tonnage. Demand for scrap is quiet, and prices easier.

Discontinuing its monthly report of unfilled tonnage, obviously because under code restrictions against selling ahead it no longer accurately reflects demand, the United States Steel Corporation, is issuing instead a report on actual shipments, the October tonnage being 512,897 tons, down only 18 per cent from the July peak.

October was the third consecutive month of the decline in steel ingot production, the daily average—81,225 gross tons—being 8.6 per cent below September, and lowest since May. Total output for the month was 2,111,842 tons; and for the ten months this year, 19,516,437 tons, 71 per cent more than in the period last year.

Steelworks operations in the past week in the Detroit district dropped 18 points to 37 per cent; Youngstown, 11 to 21; New England, 5 to 75; Birmingham, 5 to 20; Chicago, 2 to 29; Pittsburgh, 2 to 23; eastern Pennsylvania, ½ point to 18½. They remained unchanged at 38 per cent at Wheeling, and 21 at Buffalo. Cleveland advanced 10 to 46. The national average was 24 per cent, down 1 point.

Steel's iron and steel composite remains $31.59; finished steel, $49.20; while the scrap composite is off 42 cents to $9.62.

Bankers' Acceptance Yield Rates Advanced

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—Yield rates on longer term bankers' acceptances were raised ⅛ of 1 per cent today. A similar advance was made last week on short-term paper.

The revision served to bring yields in closer alignment with those on short-term Government securities, which were increased by recent price declines. The new rates are ¾ of 1 per cent bid, ⅝ asked for four-months' bills, 1 per cent bid, ⅞ asked for five and six months

Country's Wheat Acreage Increases.

Tulia, Tex., Nov. 13 (AP).—Every wheat farm in Swisher County has been rented and the limit of acreage sown, grain men reported. Despite the Government's curtailment program, they estimated a larger total acreage in wheat than ever before.

Transactions on N. Y. Curb Market

Film Makers Ahead of Schedule—Local Amateurs Applauded—Jean Harlow's Next

Twelve Films Ready for the Warner Houses

With great jubilation, the West Coast studios of Warner Brothers and First National have wired General Manager John J. Payette, of the local Warner interests, that not only are they keeping abreast of the season's release schedules laid down during the summer, but already are 12 finished pictures ahead.

This product, naturally, will be made available to Washington filmgoers on the screen of either Warner's Earle or Metropolitan.

First on the list of completed pictures is "College Coach," current at the Earle, which the Capital is viewing among the first cities in the country.

Coming immediately in the wake of "College Coach" is "Havana Widows," a gay comedy, in which Joan Blondell and Glenda Farrell appear as two touring American golddiggers. This will open at the Earle on Friday.

Prominent among the remaining features are Ruth Chatterton's "Female," in which she assumes the role of a big business executive and is supported by George Brent, Johnny Mack Brown, Ruth Donnelly and a cast that is described as of superlative capabilities down to the least important role it embraces, and Paul Muni's first picture since "A Fugitive," bearing the title of "The World Changes." This thoughtful subject traces the history of an American family from the pioneer days of 1856 to the present. Twenty-seven screen players of note have been assembled for the principal roles, led by Mary Astor, Jean Muir, Margaret Lindsay, Donald Cook and Guy Kibbee.

Kay Francis' Next.

Then will come "The House on 56th Street," a sprightly love story of those gay '90s when the Floradora Sextette was the talk of Broadway and points west, starring Kay Francis, with Gene Raymond in support.

"Bedside" is another title that is being given much attention as a starring vehicle for Warren William and the medium of the screen debut of Kathryn Sergava, beautiful new Russian contract actress. This will be closely followed by "Convention City," a comedy riot, with seven stars and fourteen supporting players. It is a Peter Milne story and deals with Atlantic City conclaves as they are known along the Boardwalk, with Joan Blondell, Dick Powell, Adolphe Menjou, Mary Astor, Ruth Donnelly, Guy Kibbee, Frank McHugh, Hugh Herbert, Patricia Ellis and many others providing the high-power amusement.

And Jimmy Cagney!

"Lady Killer," the keenly laughable tale of a wisecracking New Yorker who crashes the gates of Hollywood with results that are as diverting as they are unexpected. Mae Clarke is the leading woman in this, just as she was with James Cagney, the star, in "Public Enemy."

The thrill of police work is reflected in "From Headquarters," starring George Brent and Margaret Lindsay and featuring Hobart Cavanaugh, Eugene Pallette, Robert Barrat, Henry O'Neill and Kenneth Thomson.

"The Big Shakedown," with Ricardo Cortez, Glenda Farrell and Allen Jenkins is another popular title that will be followed in due course by the rest of the dozen and many more now in work.

Marguerite De La Motte, one of the foremost of the brunettes who decorated the screen in the old days of the silent pictures, is returning to the screen, after a four-year absence. Miss De La Motte, it will be recalled, was leading woman in more than one of the Douglas Fairbanks films when the senior of the name was in his heyday. Miss De La Motte recently abandoned a vaudeville tour in the East to resume her screen work on the Coast last Friday in "Woman's Man," in which she portrays, of all things, a movie star!

A Triumvirate of Events.

Loew's Palace Theater is in the throes of as unusual an observance as is apt to be found in the annals of any playhouse—a triple anniversary celebration of both local and national significance.

This week the Palace pauses to pay heed to the fifteenth year of its purveyance of popular screen and stage entertainment to the amusement-seekers of the National Capital. Along with Tom Moore's Rialto and Harry M. Crandall's Metropolitan, the Palace threw open its doors in the early winter of 1918—all three houses were formally dedicated within the brief period of a single month—and up to two years ago, when Loew's, Inc., took over the operation of the then Fox Theater, was a leader in the presentation of elaborate stage shows in addition to its screen programs.

Enter "Angie."

But even back in the dim days before the establishment of the Palace at Thirteenth and F the occasion for one of the other celebrations had its genesis. Angie Ratto went to work for Loew's.

"Angie" Ratto, as you must know by now, unless you just got off the train, is, more formally, Signor Orangelo Ratto, manager of the Palace. It was just 19 years ago last Friday that "Angie" went to work for Loew's in Washington and he has been on the job ever since, greeting strangers, smiling his way further into the affection and esteem of those who have known him all these years and, incidentally, doing a quiet but eminently efficient job of winning converts to the notion that among Loew's primary projects is the promotion of creature comfort as well as mental relaxation for all discriminating pleasure seekers.

"Angie" is a pretty grand person, as almost anybody will tell you, and deserves all the congratulations and good wishes that are being showered upon him this week. Long may he wave—standing crowds to their seats and greetings to his host of friends.

Marie's Birthday Film.

The third anniversary, and one that gives the present seven-day period something of the aspect of a national observance, is the advent on Friday of Marie Dressler's birthday film, "Christopher Bean," released as part of the celebration of her recent sixty-second birthday, the occasion of the greatest birthday party Hollywood has ever seen—an event that was participated in, to some extent, by all of the contestants in the recent Marie Dressler poem contest, conducted by The Post in conjunction with the Loew Theaters in Washington.

If the Loew organization survives all this gayety, it deserves something substantial in the way of reward for valiant service and unusual powers of endurance!

A bulletin from Mr. Ray Henderson, the scholarly stentor for the Katharine Cornell-Guthrie McClintic enterprises, conveys the glad word that although she underwent a serious operation, following several weeks' illness, 10 days ago in New York, Tallulah Bankhead is progressing so satisfactorily in the direction of complete recovery that Mr. McClintic still has high hopes of presenting her in "Jezebel" in New York on December 12. "Jezebel" is a new play of the South by Owen Davis that has been hanging fire all season.

Columbia Players' Plans.

The Columbia Players, one of Washington's most productive acting groups, is to be commended, it seems to this column, for its sound business sense and artistic integrity.

Faced with the necessity of choosing between plays and place, so to speak, it has cast its fortunes wholly on a decision in favor of worthy vehicles for the unquestioned talents of its members.

By sacrificing something in the matter of worthiness of plays and importance of authorship, the Columbia Players could have continued in their old environs in the face of sharply tilted rentals and other already sufficiently high costs. They chose, rather, to seek new and less expensive market places for their wares, which they determined to keep upon the high plane they had set for themselves prior to the obtrusion of the economic difficulties.

Pierce Hall, the convenient and attractive little theater at Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest—where our contemporary, Mr. Eddie Melcher, of the Star, gave his "Little White Mice" its baptism of fire—will house the Columbia Players' five-play subscription season this year.

The season, by the way, opens this Wednesday and Thursday, November 15 and 16, with Frederic Lonsdale's delightful comedy, "On Approval."

Other Productions.

The other plays and the dates of their presentation are "Icebound," Owen Davis' Pulitzer Prize winner, December 12 and 13; "Second Act Curtain," a new play with a Washington newspaper background, written by Dorothea Lewis, of this department's reviewing staff and an officer and active member of the Players, February 6 and 7; "The First Mrs. Fraser," St. John Ervine's justly famous comedy-drama, April 17 and 18, and Benn Levy's "The Devil Passes," and an "idea play" of rare quality seen at the National last season with Diana Wynyard, Basil Rathbone, Arthur Byron, Robert Loraine, Cecilia Loftus and others of note in the cast.

"On Approval," in passing, is one of the theater's very few successful four-character plays. The entire burden of the play is carried by Marie, George, Helen and Richard, the first two being too busy trying to decide whether they approve of the latter two to realize that the latter two do not approve of them!

The piece will be played by Eileen Fowler, Dorothea Lewis, Robert M. Miller and S. Allen Foster.

Subscription tickets, one is led to believe, may still be obtained from Iva Holland, 1715 West Virginia avenue; from any Player, or at the box office opening night. Single reserved seats will be 75 cents plus Government tax, adding up to the modest total of 83 cents.

Reverting momentarily to the three-ply anniversary celebration at Loew's Palace, that triple observance will reach its culmination Thursday night, when a special midnight preview will be accorded "Christopher Bean," the new Marie Dressler-Lionel Barrymore vehicle. This will be strictly a public occasion, and seats will not be reserved, nor will the price scales be advanced. Tickets, however, may be purchased in advance, beginning tomorrow at the Palace box office and in many of the leading hotels and drug stores.

Yesterday at noon, Jean Harlow's latest picture, "Blonde Bombshell" was screened for the edification of the local press and proved itself aptly named by attempting to approximate a bombshell's explosiveness throughout its entire action.

There have been many high-power pictures from time to time, but never within the memory of those now living has any cinema subject striven so incessantly for the high speed and high voltage of screeching colloquies and flurried action as this pin-wheel travesty on the frenzied art of making pictures!

With Jean Harlow, Lee Tracy, Una Merkel, Frank Morgan and Pat O'Brien—and there is not what might within reason be termed a mute among that group—sputtering at the top of their lungs and their highest velocity from first flash to last, "Bombshell" becomes more or less of an endurance contest for vocal cords and eardrums.

Movies Kid Themselves.

But despite its perpetual imitation of a verbal tornado, it turns out to be one of the more amusing of the travesties in which Hollywood good-naturedly hurls its own quivering carcass full of barbed lampoons. The whole thing is a gorgeous, if over-noisy, burlesque of stellar temperament, studio press agents' methods and the phony nature of the whole celluloid insitution as it flourishes on the West Coast.

It is about as pretentious a thing as Jean Harlow has been called upon to shoulder individually, up to now, although many will hark back and conclude that it shows her to no better advantage than was done, say, in "Red-Headed Woman."

Racy Dialogue.

The dialogue is peppered with racy lines and there is a beautiful burlesque, for a moment or two, of the "world's greatest movie gossip writer" whose chatter appears daily in a string of cross-country rags.

Of one thing you may assured: When "Bombshell" opens locally it will be no place to go to take a nap!

Or aren't you sleeping so well, anyhow, what with the soft dollar and all?

Once more the artist has sketched a few interesting facts about some of the notable players who will soon be seen locally in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of "The Late Christopher Bean," known to the cinema a little more curtly as "Christopher Bean." It was written by Sidney Howard, and is to be seen at Loew's Palace.

With or without the exotic and smoulderingly emotional presence of Pola Negri—and last night at the National it was without the insinuating allurements of the temperamental and truant Polish star—"A Trip to Pressburg" is, at best, a recrudescence of an overworked trick of the days when the cinema and its methods of story telling were bright with a shiny newness and the mechanical novelty of its form was deemed more important than any brilliance of dialogue or worthiness of theme.

The play is unfolded inversely, after the fashion of a motion picture cutback, as was so effectively done years ago in Elmer Rice's "On Trial," and has been so many times repeated since.

The prologue establishes a situation as it existed in Vienna on a Thursday morning at 5 o'clock, in the year 1904. The major movement of the three acts and six scenes thereupon reverts to the preceding Monday and, by the relation of a largely disjointed succession of episodes, alternating for the most part between the bar of a Vienna cafe and the clandestine rendezvous of a pseudo-romance between a fascinated young bank clerk and a fading practitioner of the oldest profession, pausing briefly in Vienna en route to a secure oblivion in the segregated district of a neighboring town, gradually brings the story back to its starting point on Thursday morning.

Homicidal Climax.

Thus is divulged a charade predicated somewhat upon the thesis of Bourdet's "The Sex Fable," without the Gallic humor and biting satire of that frankly expository work. Perhaps it was the purpose to make up in cumulative melodramatic climax what "A Trip to Pressburg" lacks in penetrating writing, humor and finesse. That has been achieved with preeminent skill. The youth of the story not only murders his inamorata, upon whom he has showered the luxuries purchased with funds he has stolen from the bank, but tops off a large evening of homicide by discreetly committing suicide in the hotel room where their last night together was spent.

The thematic beauty of the drama is lent a further gossamer charm by the slightly bizarre touch of whimsy that makes the middle-aged object of the youth's infatuation the former dishonered wife of his older brother, upon whose bounty he largely lives!

Occasional Suspense.

It would be something less than simple justice to say that the three acts of "A Trip to Pressburg" have not been contrived with some occasional show of cleverness, dramatic incident and suspense. These elements are present, but not in such proportion as to place this outmoded play among the season's sure aspirants for rating among the hits.

Last night the role of the "Countess," garbed practically throughout the action in the flaming scarlet that symbolizes the character of her profession, was played with remarkable smoothness and effect, considering the brief period of her preparation, by Beth Elliott, who was greeted at the fall of the final curtain by a hearty manifestation of the large audience's appreciation of the handicap under which she had performed so capably.

In the opposite role, Richard Whorf, as Carl, the young clerk intent on seeing life, contributed an especially natural and moving performance. There is that about him, one heard suggested in last night's audience, which at times suggests the cleancut, youthful ebullience, intelligence and charm of Ramon Novarro.

Capable Support.

Of the many others in the cast who deserve credit for lending the play such color and warmth as it possessed, mention may not well be omitted of Eduardo Ciannelli, as Max, the actor-bartender, remembered for such excellent work in both the stage and screen versions of Robert Emmett Sherwood's "Reunion in Vienna"; Clarence Derwent, as Franz, Carl's older brother, and Percy Ames, as the aged Director-General, who haunted the cafe in a futile quest for the lost romance of his youth. Less important roles were done justice by Florence Edney, as a slovenly boarding house keeper, and Harold Johnsrud, as Schminke, the embryonic movie producer.

The play is massively and picturesquely staged and the scenes are changed with remarkable alacrity. The action requires scarcely more than two hours, which, however, is quite enough. Whether Miss Negri will appear here later in the week is not known at time of writing, Monday midnight.

Opera Tickets Smash Record In Fast Selling

Post Readers Take Nearly 1,000 in Day, With Supply Waning.

Nearly 1,000 tickets for The Washington Post's Grand Opera Week were sold yesterday in the largest Monday seat turnover since the ticket sales began.

From early morning before the Stieff Piano Store, 1340 G street northwest, ticket sales agency, opened for business until late in the evening old and young, rich and poor came with their copies of The Washington Post and left with the half-priced tickets The Post has reserved for its readers.

The sales total to date was estimated at 18,000 by officials of the International Opera Company, which is presenting a series of popular-priced grand opera at the Washington Auditorium beginning Sunday night.

Sets Advance Record.

According to one opera company official, it is the "biggest advance sale in the history of popular grand opera."

A complete sell-out of seats for the opening night performance of "Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria Rusticana," Monday night's offering of "Carmen," and "Aida," on Thursday night, is certain, it was said.

Although an adequate number of choice seats remain for "La Gioconde" Tuesday night, "Rigoletto" Wednesday, "La Traviata" Friday, "Il Trovatore" Saturday and "Faust" Sunday, opera company officials predicted that these, too, would be sold within a week.

Enjoyed Over Radio.

Public approval of the quality of operatic talent to be presented, based on the performance of some of the International's stars in a concert broadcast from Station WMAL Sunday night, was given by Maurice Frank, opera company director, as the cause for increased rate of seat sales.

By arrangement with International, The Post has set aside 3,000 seats for each opera to be sold its readers at half the regular prices. Opera company prices range up to 99 cents. A copy of The Post or a portion of it mailed with seat orders is asked for reader identification.

Two Clews Fail In Hart Kidnaping

Mystery Shrouds Abduction of California Youth.

San Jose, Calif., Nov. 13 (AP).—What authorities had regarded as two clews to the apparent kidnaping of Brooke Hart, 22, son of a wealthy San Jose merchant, vanished today, leaving the case as much of a mystery as it was last Thursday night when the youth disappeared.

Disclosure was made that the Hart family had received a telegram from Sacramento suggesting $20,000 be offered as a compromise ransom to meet the original demand for $40,000 upon Alexander Hart, the father, a few hours after the boy disappeared.

Check-up revealed the telegram was sent by James Nealis, a friend of the Hart family, who said he believed such an offer would cause return of the youth.

The second clew exploded in Oakland, where police arrested Burr W. Poole, printer, who admitted writing the note and making the telephone calls. He said he had been drinking and thought it would be "a good joke."

Buy-in-District Group Cites Benefits to Trade

The story of how nearly $500,000 of Washington earned money formerly expended out of town has been returned to the District in the last three months will be related at a dinner meeting of the Buy-in-Washington, Inc., in the Hamilton Hotel tomorrow night.

William A. Edelblut, president of the organization, said he was anxious for nonmembers to attend, so they may hear what is being done in their behalf. Ross P. Andrews will preside. An open discussion will follow the speeches.

Col. Grant, J. L. Proctor, Vice Presidents.

John W. Holcombe last night was elected president of the Kalorama Citizens Association at its first fall meeting.

Col. U. S. Grant 3d and John L. Proctor were named first and second vice presidents, respectively. John L. Haynes was chosen secretary and George W. Hodgkins, treasurer. Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley and Mr. Haynes were named delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

A resolution was adopted asking traffic officials to install a traffic light, or some other protection for pedestrians, at the intersection of Columbia road and Ontario place northwest.

Workers Told Chest Success Is Up to Them

Group Solicitation Unit Hears Campaign Plans at Luncheon.

Responsibility of meeting the Capital's need for charity was squarely put to workers in the group solicitation unit of the Community Chest drive at an opening dinner last night by Frank J. Hogan, general chairman of the drive.

Replying to the challenge of the Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, that "the conscience of this city was born the day the Community Chest was formulated," Mr. Hogan pledged the group that the drive would not fail to raise the $1,945,000 asked for the 60 associated charities.

H. L. Rust, jr., general vice chairman of the campaign, and Elwood Street, acting as chairman in the absence of Walter B. Clarkson, also spoke.

Street introduced the chairman and vice chairman of the group solicitation unit's subdivisions. They follow: Area 1, S. Percy Thompson, chairman; Robert B. Swope, vice chairman; area 2, John Saul, chairman; James C. Wilkes and Robert J. Cottrell, vice chairman; area 3, William W. Everett, chairman; Charles T. Clagett, vice chairman; area 4, William Montgomery, chairman; John C. Koons, vice chairman; area 5, Lanier P. McLachlen, chairman, Nelson B. O'Neal, vice chairman; area 6, the Rev. Albert H. Lucas, chairman.

Senator Bone Backs U. S. Pay Raise Drive

Notice of intention to support restoration of the 15 per cent Federal pay cut was sent to E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, yesterday by Senator Bone (Democrat), Washington.

Mr. Babcock said his survey showed more than 100 members of Congress wish the wage reduction returned. He reiterated early victory in the fight seemed assured.

Nudists in Florida Give Police Puzzle

Ask Officials to Rule What Women Must Wear.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Nov. 13 (U.P.).—The St. Petersburg Nudist Society today asked city officials what police would do if women should appear on the beaches clad only in bathing trunks.

Such a practice for male bathers is not illegal, the society pointed out in asking for a definite line to be drawn between decency and indecent exposure on the beach.

The city officials asked for time to search out precedents before making a decision.

Pinchot Wants State Rum Law

Would Use Profits to Help Unemployment Relief, Schools, Aged.

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 13 (AP).—Gov. Pinchot today asked the Legislature, in special session, to control the sale of liquor through State-operated stores and to apply the profits to unemployment relief, emergency aid to schools and old-age assistance.

The Governor estimated a tax of $2 a proof gallon on all liquor manufactured and in storage before national prohibition repeal would bring in $25,000,000 immediately, and that a tax of $1 on each gallon made after repeal would give the State $25,000,000 annually.

Pinchot bluntly asked the Legislature to "let political considerations go hang, and join with me in a single-minded effort to serve the Commonwealth."

The liquor-control bill, introduced after he spoke, specifically states the measure is designed "to prohibit forever the open saloon." It prohibits bars and makes it unlawful to display or mix drinks in public dining rooms.

Sunday Opening Urged For Mount Vernon

A resolution requesting that Mount Vernon be open for public inspection on Sundays, as on other days, was adopted at a meeting in Chicago of Kiwanis International trustees.

The request, introduced by Edwin F. Hill, of Washington, governor o fthe Capital district, will be presented to the Mount Vernon Ladies Association. The motion was made, Mr. Hill said, to accommodate thousands of Sunday visitors to Washington.

Frog Gets a New Ear Drum From Skin Off Its Own Back

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—A discovery in regeneration, by which a new ear drum was grown in a living frog out of skin from his own or another frog's back, was described to the New York Academy of Sciences tonight.

The frog operation is of much theoretical interest to plastic surgeons and medicine, for the skin which changed into an ear drum was already "adult" when taken from the back. It was described by Prof. Otto M. Helff, of New York University, as probably the first time fully formed skin has been caused to change into another kind of structure.

Although there is not yet any human parallel, the new ear drum is a long advance over previous similar scientific operations. Heretofore missing organs of small animals have been regrown out of tissues taken from some other portion. But this work has been done with embryos.

In this egg state, embryonic skin has even been changed into brain. But scientists believed that after the embryonic stage body structures became "fixed."

"This experiment indicates," Dr. Helff said, "that many fully formed adult structures are possibly not unchangeably 'set' but require constant chemical, hormonal or some other type of regulator to maintain their structure and tissue characteristics."

Age Limits Again Lifted On U. S. Jobs

More Time Also Granted for Indian School Applicants.

New Concession Made by Civil Service Commission.

Again reversing earlier rulings, the Civil Service Commission yesterday lifted age restrictions and extended the time limit for filing of applications in two additional examinations.

The commission increased from 40 to 53 the maximum age for women desiring to teach home economics in Indian reservation senior and junior high schools. The age limit for junior home economics teachers in the Indian Service was raised from 30 to 40. The former post pays $1,860 to $2,000 a year and the latter $1,620.

Instead of closing today, the limit for submitting applications was extended to December 1. Numerous applications are expected from persons previously excluded by age.

After a storm of criticism, the commission last week fixed 53 instead of 40 as the age limit for stenographic and typist applicants, and extended the deadline from November 7 to November 30.

A concession to opponents of the 40-year employment rule was seen in the fixing of 53 as the minimum for two groups as in both cases 50 was the age limit until the ban was announced. The new limits were set after many conferences between commission officials.

Agitation for repeal of the 40-year rule was led by Representative Cochran (Democrat), Missouri. After he protested to President Roosevelt, Secretary Perkins was assigned to study the regulations. The Labor Secretary criticized the 40-year rule as shortsighted.

Cochran was supported by the Board of Trade, the American Federation of Government Employes and numerous members of Congress, including Senators Couzens (Republican), Michigan; Copeland (Democrat), New York, and Capper (Republican), Kansas.

Relief Demand Meets Rebuff

Leaders of Jobless Fail to Obtain Increased Allowances.

"Politicians" in the District Building paid no heed to demands for increased allowances for persons on public relief rolls, leaders of the Washington Unemployed Council told their followers yesterday.

The report was made from the east steps of the District Building to approximately 75, after a committee of three had conferred with George S. Wilson, public welfare director, and had sought payment of rent for all married persons on relief rolls. The committee also demanded a food allowance of $2.50 each week work is not provided.

The gathering was orderly. After 15 minutes of speechmaking a policeman placed his hand on the shoulder of a speaker and clamly shoved him off the steps.

"Scram," commanded a police lieutenant, with a grin. The group dispersed. The demonstrators were headed by Harold Spencer, Mike Dupor and William Monroe. They said there is to be a National gathering here January 12 to 14, and will take the place of hunger marches.

Jury Ends Probe Of Nalley Killing

Six Witnesses Testify in Night Club Murder.

The District grand jury yesterday completed its investigation into the shooting of Joseph Nalley, slain last Tuesday night in the Wunder Bar, Tenth and U streets northwest.

Six witnesses were sent before the jury by Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray.

They were Victor Juliano and Donald K. Wallace, alleged companions of Charles Warring, charged by police with the shooting; Courtney Thomas, 19-year-old club hostess; Millicent Gooch and Lucille Hughes, who allegedly went to the club with Warring, and James J. Noonan, also a companion of Nalley.

Bolling Field Grading Let for $103,600

Corson & Gruman Co., of Washington, has been awarded a $103,600 contract for the grading, storm drainage, paving and seeding in the barracks area at Bolling Field, the War Department announced yesterday.

Another contract of $458,070 for the erection of quarters for 39 company officers at Fort Humphreys, Va., went to the R. B. McDaniel Co., of New Brighton, Pa. Both projects are under the Public works program.

Hospital Patient Missing.

Early Gifts Roll in to Start Post's 1933 Toy, Doll Fund

Mascots' Contribution to Cheer Needy Brings Quick Response.

The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund, organized to bring a Merry Christmas to every needy child in this city, got off to a flying start yesterday.

The announcement that the fund had been started again brought a quick response from readers of The Washington Post. Judging from the telephone calls and personal visitors from well wishers of the fund, Washington is determined to be a city of Santa Claus aids through The Post.

One of the first to contribute was Sandy Peyton Gordon, Orkney terrier, whose gift matched that of Ding-How of Hydegree, mascot of The Junior Post, who opened the 1933 Post Toy Fund.

It was a chorus of barks when Sandy and Ding-How met in this good cause. Ding-How declared: "The more who match me, the better. Any coin pleases me, nickels, dimes, quarters, half dollars, dollars, dollars—silver or gold—it is all one to me."

"Tuffie's" Gift Arrives.

The Santa Claus Lady will see that each gift reaches the right spot. Before the day was over other pets had matched Ding-How.

There was a note of sadness in one of the pets' gifts. It was given in memory of "Tuffie," a Boston bull terrier who lived at Fort Collins, Colo., the pet of Betty and Laura Vincent, daughters of the Rev. and Mrs. Z. T. Vincent. "Tuffie" was an active worker for the Post Toy and Doll Fund last year. He was killed by an automobile one day in the spring. His friends are carrying on in his name.

Perhaps some of those who read this story have lost their pets and would like to put their names on the roll of cheer for little children this Christmas in memory of their animal friends.

Cleaners Will Help.

"Ding-a-ling, ding-a-ling, the telephone in the office of the Santa Claus Lady yesterday brought welcome news for The Post Toy and Doll Fund. The call was from the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners, which did such yeoman service for the fund last year in renovating the toys and dolls little children gave.

The Post Toy Fund will receive used toys and dolls and through the cooperation of the National Association of Dyers and Cleaners and the workshops of social service agencies on Christmas morning the toys will be bright and fresh again.

The Junior Post editor contributed her dollar to The Post Toy and Doll Fund with the glad news that she is asking the thousands of boys and girls who read that little paper every Sunday to bring in toys and dolls and, if possible, to send pennies, nickels and dimes to the fund.

Ministers Hear Talk Upon Alien Problem

William H. Anderson, head of the American Christian Alliance, addressed a meeting of Baptist ministers held yesterday in Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H streets, to consider the stop alien representation movement in Congress.

Anderson pointed out that since representation in the House of Representatives depends on total population, instead of citizenship, there are many nonvoting members of the population counted for representation.

Bank Application Formally Denied

Depositors' Leaders Fail to File Amendments.

Formal decree denying the application of the depositors' committee for a new receiver of the closed Park Savings Bank was signed yesterday by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, District Supreme Court.

The ruling was made last week, at which time a hearing was held to determine the validity of the complaint by the committee. Justice Adkins ruled against supplanting the present receiver, and he gave the committee opportunity to file amended bills to correct defects in the original bill. The amended bills have not yet been filed.

The committee is seeking to attach to stockholders and directors of the bank full liability for a $2,000,000 shortage. The depositors contend that because the bank's charter expired in 1929, the stockholders and directors were copartners and, as such, are liable for the deficiency.

Wardman Sale Foes Defeated In Last Appeal

Supreme Court Refuses Minority Bondholders' Mandamus Plea.

The United States Supreme Court yesterday declined to issue a writ of mandamus that would require Justice F. D. Letts, District Supreme Court, to certify to the District Court of Appeals certain evidence taken in the hearing on the sale of the Ward Real Estate Properties, Inc.

Attorneys for a minority group, holding bonds secured by the Wardman Properties, opposed the sale, and during the trial they noted several exceptions. The exceptions were not filed with Justice Letts within the time limit set by court rules and he declined to permit them to be filed later.

W. Bissell Thomas, attorney for the group, then asked the Court of Appeals to compel Justice Letts to certify the disputed portions of the testimony. That court declined, and the attorney then asked the United States Supreme Court to issue the order.

A rule was served upon Justice Letts October 9, requiring him to show cause why the request for mandamus should not be issued. Justice Letts' reply was simply a chronological survey of the entire case in the lower courts, and upon that the higher court declined to issue the order.

The Wardman Properties were sold under foreclosure at the request of persons holding 74 per cent of the outstanding bonds. They were sold for $2,500,000 subject to prior indebtedness of several million dollars. Default in payments on interest and amortization were charged in the petition for foreclosure.

Closed Bank Pays Second Dividend

Depositors in Commercial To Get $1,850,000.

More than 1,000 persons received second dividend checks from Commercial National Bank yesterday when that institution, in receivership since February 28, began the foregoing payment. The second dividend is 30 per cent and represents a disbursement of $1,850,000. This dividend was made possible by a loan from the Federal Deposit Liquidation Board.

On September 27 the bank began payment of a first dividend of 20 per cent amounting to $1,030,601.70. Its depositors will have received thus far 50 per cent, or $2,880,601.70. Total deposits as of September 26, 1933, were indicated at $6,000,000.

G.W.U. Students Debate Visiting Britons Tonight

"Is Nationalism a Menace to Civilization?" will be the subject of a debate tonight at George Washington University between the local team and a team representing the National Union of Students of England, now touring the United States.

Seymour Mintz and Edgar M. Gerlack will represent George Washington. The British team consists of F. L. Ralphs and L. T. Kitchin. The debate will be held at 8 p. m. in Corcoran Hall, on the campus. Dean Henry Grattan Doyle will preside.

Nurse Saves Child in Flames After Playing With Matches

Girl Seriously Burned Before Negress Beats Out Fire in Clothes.

A 4-year-old girl was painfully burned about her face and body yesterday despite a Negro nurse's valiant attempt to beat out her blazing clothing. The fire resulted from playing with matches.

The girl, Mary Louise Cannon, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cannon, of 812 Eighth street northeast. Her condition was regarded as serious last night at Sibley Hospital, where it was said she had suffered numerous second-degree burns.

The child's parents were away at the time. With her sister, Peggy, 5, and her brother, Mickey, 7, she was amusing herself with a box of matches.

4 D. C. Students Named To Catholic U. Annual

Higher Prices Here Opposed By Cleaners

National Body Presents Schedule Effective November 20.

Following announcement of a tentative price scale of $1 for cleaning men's suits and $1.25 for women's dresses, adopted by the National Association of Cleaners and Dyers to be effective November 20 when the NRA code for that industry goes into effect, consensus yesterday among local cleaning establishments indicated the present price of 75 cents and $1 would allow more business and more profit.

Several local cleaning businesses held that the customer would be the first to complain and that any raise in price above $1 would cut down the volume of business.

No notification has been received of a price change by any establishment, but Samuel Rubenstein, treasurer of the National Association of Cleaners and Dyers, said the new price will be tried out for 60 days, that period being necessary for code authority to collect data to determine whether the scale is fair to the industry.

Wages Increased.

Rubenstein pointed out that the code reduces hours of workers from 54 to 40 hours and increases wages from 20 to 35 per cent.

At the same time, materials also have been advanced and the price change has been ordered to take care of this heavier expense.

The association's board of directors will meet today here to lay plans for effectuating all provisions of the code for the dry cleaning industry, and it is hoped that the code may become operative on Monday, according to a statement given out by N. J. Harkness, managing director.

Prices Not Approved.

"The National code authority itself has not been appointed, and in no case has approval of any price list for any area of the United States been given or any authorized announcement made," Mr. Harkness said.

"Official announcement of the appointment of the board and of National price schedules will be made later in the week after the Administration has approved the recommended scale," he concluded.

Cooper's Bank Plan Hearing Postponed

Attorney's Illness Halts Court Sessions.

Illness of Attorney W. Bissell Thomas yesterday caused a three-day postponement of continued hearings in the suit brought by Col. Wade H. Cooper, president of the United States Savings Bank, to force officers to adopt his plan to reopen the bank.

Justice Jennings Bailey, informed of the illness, agreed to let the case go over until Thursday morning. The plan proposed by Col. Cooper provides for a 65 per cent immediate payment of all claims, with the balance to be paid from incomc of the bank.

Treasury officers oppose this because, they say, it throws the liability off the stockholders onto the depositors.

Low Liquor Taxes Urged for Capital

Board of Trade Group Hits at Bootlegging.

Low license fees and taxes on liquor in the District to curb bootlegger competition were recommended by the Board of Trade liquor-control committee yesterday.

Paul Lesh, lawyer member, declared every effort should be made to do away with speakeasies and other illicit agencies for the sale of strong drink. George W. Offutt, chairman of the committee, said a middle ground must be found between the saloon and prohibition.

"These are two extremes that the Capital must avoid," he said. "We are still in a quandary as to just how liquor may be dispensed best, and for this reason we are anxious to have suggestions from individuals and organizations, so that a cross-section opinion may be obtained to guide us in our ultimate plan."

Two Letters Left By Woman Suicide

Miss Eva McDowell Told of Ill Health.

Discovered on the floor of the kitchen in her gas-filled apartment yesterday, Miss Eva McDowell, 45, of 1466 Columbia road northwest, was declared a suicide in a certificate issued by the coroner's office.

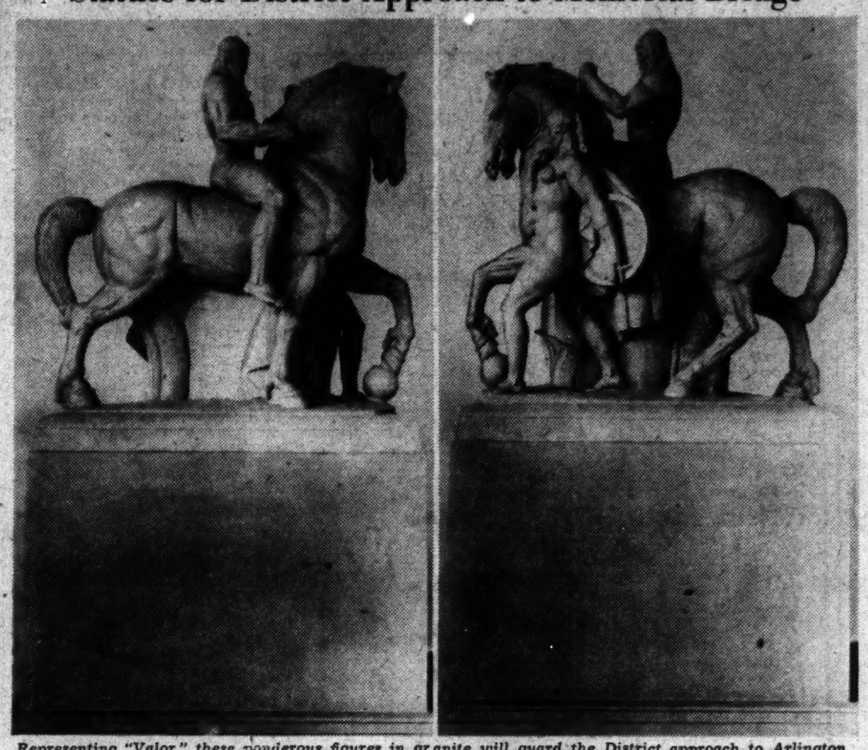
Two unsealed letters contained no hint at suicide, but both mentioned ill health. One was addressed to her employers and asked for several months' leave from work. Miss McDowell roomed at the Columbia road address with Miss Marie Rowley.

Statues for District Approach to Memorial Bridge



Representing "Valor," these ponderous figures in granite will guard the District approach to Arlington Memorial Bridge with the assistance of "Sacrifice." The two groups, the work of Leo Friedlander, of New York, will be about 16 feet high and will rest on 15-foot pedestals, which already are in place. Both the sculptures and pedestals are of Mount Airy (North Carolina) granite. Photos were made from models approved by the Fine Arts Commission and show "Valor" from either side.

Board of Trade Favors Boxing In School Gyms

Application of Columbus U. for Facilities Likely to Be Granted.

Proponents of intercollegiate boxing in local public school gymnasiums received the support yesterday of the Washington Board of Trade.

In conflict with action of the Federation of Citizens Associations and director of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, opposing use of school gymnasiums for college boxing, directors of the trade body approved the activity "by accredited colleges of the District of Columbia under intercollegiate boxing rules."

The board's action was prompted by a request from the Board of Education for an opinion on the application of Columbus University for use of McKinley High School gymnasium for intercollegiate boxing.

The Board of Education will take final action on the application tomorrow. A poll of the board members indicates the majority favors the sport. The board members said, however, they would be guided by desires of the public on the question. For this reason leading civic organizations were asked to express their viewpoints.

A report on the application of Columbia University will be submitted to the board by a committee headed by Henry I. Quinn. The report is expected to recommend that the application be granted.

A voluntary opinion favoring the boxing was given yesterday by Charles H. Houston, newly appointed member of the board. Mr. Houston was absent from the last board meeting.

Favor School Bouts.

A resolution favoring intercollegiate boxing exhibitions in high school auditoriums was adopted by the Parkview Citizens Association at Parkview School last night. The organization also went on record favoring formation of a boys' club in the Tenth precinct.

All officers were renominated. They include F. V. Hale, president; B. J. Kruger, vice president; John S. Cole, secretary, and H. H. Moore, treasurer.

Woman, 77, in Critical Condition From Burns

Miss Mary Whittlesey, 75, who was burned critically when flames from a gas range in her home at 322 E street northwest ignited her clothing Sunday, still was in a grave condition at Casualty Hospital yesterday. Physicians fear her injuries may prove fatal.

Her nephew, Thomas W. Sargent, 34, whose hands and arms were badly burned as he attempted to beat out the flames, was reported in "fair" condition at the same hospital.

Hi, Neighbor!

Police to Get 'CivicMinded' by Attending Meetings.

Citizens' associations hereafter will have as their guests at meetings captains and lieutenants of the precincts in which their districts are located.

The announcement, made yesterday by Maj. Ernest Brown, superintendent of police, indicated that the step was taken to make officers more "civic minded."

Capt. Sidney J. Marks, Eleventh Precinct, began the new program by attending a meeting of the Congress Heights Citizens' Associations last night.

Jack Ahearn Jailed For Court Contempt

Must Serve 10 Months for Dry Law Violation.

Jack Ahearn yesterday went to jail for 10 months because of contempt of District Supreme Court. In addition to the imprisonment, he has been ordered to pay a fine of $1,000.

Ahearn was convicted of contempt of court by Justice Jennings Bailey. The charge was that he disobeyed an injunction which forbade him from violating the prohibition law.

Assistant United States Attorney Harold W. Orcutt proved to Justice Bailey's satisfaction that Ahearn paid little, if any, heed to prohibition and after a three-day trial he was adjudged guilty.

Prompt Action Likely on Civil Service Post

President Expected to Fill Vacancy This Week; Yaden Urged.

Appointment of a Republican Civil Service commissioner may be announced by President Roosevelt before he departs Friday for a Southern vacation, it was reported yesterday.

Several senators have indorsed the outstanding candidate, James G Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations and for many years chief of the examining division of the commission.

Others under consideration include Thomas E. Campbell, commission chairman under President Hoover and former Governor of Arizona; former Representative Guy E. Campbell, Pennsylvania, and William H. McReynolds, former director of the Personnel Classification Board.

A vacancy has existed since the death several months ago of George R. Wales. The post must go to a Republican, as both the incumbents, Chairman Harry B. Mitchell and Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin, are Democrats.

Yaden is a native of Kentucky. He has been a commission employe more than 20 years. As a leader in civic movements and a commission executive, he has been closely associated with numerous members of Congress. He also is said to have strong backing in other quarters.

The President is said to contemplate prompt action on the appointment to forestall possible criticism from Republicans when Congress convenes. He is said to have discussed the vacancy with Postmaster General Farley and other political advisers.

New Relief Bureau To Help Transients

Will Try to Rid City of Depression Drifters.

Relief machinery to rid Washington of depression drifters was launched in Police Court yesterday when two young men convicted of vagrancy were turned over to the Board of Transient Welfare, a branch of the District Board of Public Welfare.

The pair, James C. True, 21, of Apison, Tenn., and James D. Stovall, 21, of Memphis, were arrested for soliciting alms. They were turned over to Adrian M. Mayer, welfare worker attached to Police Court. Their records wil be investigated and they may be returned to their homes by the agency.

Similar bureaus are to be established in Baltimore and Richmond.

The transient bureau at John Marshall place and C street northwest, which will be opened for relief next week, expects an average of 900 applicants per day, Mr. Mayer said.

Klein Explains Gas Company Plant's Value

Engineer Tells of Items Totaling $3,703,000 and Lists Costs.

Explanation of items totaling $3,703,000 which theoretically would be expended above the theoretical cost of reproducing the physical property of the Washington Gas Light Co. was begun by August C. Klein, company witness, at the gas valuation hearings before the Public Utilities Commission yesterday.

Mr. Klein, chief mechanical engineer of the Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation of Boston, assumed the company would be reproduced new over a two-year period under the cost-plus plan on which his company operates.

After allowing for cost of materials, delivery, labor and cost of actual construction the engineer added sums for contingencies, services and profits. Profits ranged from 2.5 per cent on equipment to 15 per cent on structures and 16.3 per cent on mains.

He listed miscellaneous construction costs as including field superintendence and supervision, use and repair of construction equipment, temporary construction, inspection and expediting and clean-up of completed plant. His concern, he testified, employed "expediters" whose duty it was to see that materials were speeded to the scene of construction. He told of an instance in which an "expediter" rode a freight car from the Middle West to Atlanta, to see it was hurried along and arrived at the expected time.

Mr. Klein estimated miscellaneous construction costs would total $244,000. Other items which should be figured in the theoretical reproduction of the company, Mr. Klein listed as engineering, $450,000; legal services, $81,000; interest during construction, $2,463,000; organization expense, $325,000 and taxes during construction, $140,000.

Mr. Klein is expected to complete his direct testimony today. He will take the witness chair at 10 a. m.

Woman Asks $20,000 For Injuries by Truck

Amelia Thomas, 1523 Fifteenth street northwest, yesterday in District Supreme Court, sued Red Star Transportation Co., Inc., Roanoke, Va., for $20,000 damages because of injuries she sustained November 2, when, she alleges, she was struck by one of the company's trucks.

Political Study Club to Meet.

A meeting of the Political Study Club will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at the Washington Club, 1701 K street northwest. Senator King, of Utah, will be the principal speaker.

District Plans Jobs Costing $5,000,000

"Made Work" Program Will Be Discussed With Hopkins.

$2,446,000 for 90-Day Expenditure Planned by Capt. Clark.

"Made work" projects calling for expenditure in Washington of $2,446,000 in the next 90 days were made public yesterday by Capt. Howard F. Clark, Assistant Engineer Commissioner of the District.

The list will be added to the next few days. Estimated costs probably will reach $5,000,000 and provide work for several thousands now on public relief rolls.

Funds are to be asked of Federal relief officials.

George S. Wilson, Director of Public Welfare, and other District officials are to meet today with Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, along with officials of various States and municipalities.

Although specific work programs are not to be submitted for approval at the conference, Capt. Clark is speeding up of plans so that the new work can be launched immediately after approval is given. He estimated the projects listed to date would provide employment for two months for almost 4,000. Most of the money will go for wages.

Federal as well as District work is included in the program. Approximately $800,000 would be spent on highway work.

Other proposed expenditures are: Sewer department, $120,000; water department, $500,000; playgrounds, $80,000; Gallinger Hospital, $183,000; public schools, $150,000; tuberculosis hospital, $5,000; District Training School, $32,000; District Training School for Girls, $30,000; Home for Aged, $61,000; War College, $80,000; Walter Reed Hospital, $40,000; National Training School for Boys, $70,000; Bureau of Standards, $50,000; Arlington Cemetery, $135,000; Navy Yard, $100,000; U. S. Engineers' office, $280,000; National Zoological Park, $45,000; Soldiers' Home, $75,000; improvement of Benning colored school tract, $150,000; improvement of the Children's Tuberculosis sanatorium at Buena Vista, $40,000.

Slum Clearance Session Friday

Sites for District Housing Projects Will Be Discussed.

What is expected to be the most productive meeting to date on slum clearance will be held Friday when the advisory committee headed by Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer will assemble for the first time to discuss the selection of sites for housing demonstrations.

Announcement of the meeting was made yesterday by John Nolen, jr., vice chairman of the executive committee. Senator William H. King, District Committee chairman, who suggested establishment of the advisory group, is expected to attend.

Addresses will be made by Mrs. Mary T. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee; Robert D. Kohn, public works housing director, who is now making a coast-to-coast survey, and Frederic A. Delano, head of the Committee on Reconstruction and Low-Cost Housing, through which authorized projects will be executed.

Sibley Hospital Guild To Hear Miss Bowler

Miss Alida Bowler, of the Children's Bureau, will speak on "Child Labor" at the monthly meeting of the Women's Guild of the Sibley Memorial Hospital Thursday at 10:45 p. m. in Rust Hall.

The Rev. W. F. Atkinson, of the Lincoln Road M. E. Church, will lead the meeting in devotion and Mrs. Atkinson and Miss Kathryn Hand will sing a duet. Luncheon will be served.

Capitol Democrats to Meet.

The Young Democratic Club of Capitol Hill will meet tomorrow night in the caucus room of the Senate office building. Representative O'Malley, of Wisconsin, will speak.

Good morning! Post readers are about to be the first to hear something; tomorrow morning, while official declarations justify increasing prices everywhere, we are going to move the other way! Be here at 9:15 tomorrow morning; you will be grateful for this advance information.

G. W. Seeks First Victory in Four Years Over Tricky Tulsa Team

Coaches Fear Unorthodox Attack

Oklahomans' Brilliant Offensive Play Has Beaten G. W. Thrice.

Volok, Big Lineman Who Plays 4 Positions Is Chief Threat.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S squad was back at hard labor yesterday, working until darkness enveloped the field on a book full of new plays that have been concocted especially for Tulsa, the team's guest at Griffith Stadium Friday night. Tulsa is scheduled to leave Oklahoma City today, arriving here early Thursday morning.

Back in 1930 the Golden Hurricane lashed the Colonials for a 14-6 victory at Oklahoma City, and they've been doing it every year since. It's gotten to be a habit with the Oilmen, a habit that G. W. hopes to break this week.

In 1931 the Westerners invaded Washington for their tiff with the downtown school, winning this time by a 24-7 count. It wasn't a game for fans with shaky nerves. Tulsa did everything with the ball that the rules permit and a number of things which weren't according to the orthodox coaching ethics.

Pass on Own Goal Line.

Standing back on their own goal line with a fourth down and more than 10 yards to go, and G. W. expecting a punt, the Tulsans in that 1931 game pulled a triple pass behind the line that branched off into a long forward pass downfield that netted a touchdown. There are plenty of tricks in their bag again this year, what with laterals on kicks, passes and straight runs from scrimmage.

Tulsa's outstanding ace this season is Bill Volok, who plays four different positions, and from all reports plays them well. Volok is guard, his original place in the line-up; full back, tackle and end. Coach Gus Henderson has constructed plays especially for the big fellow, who tips the Fairbanks at 215 and stands 6 feet 5 inches sans shoes.

Put Two Colonials Out.

Volok has the doubtful distinction of kayoing two G. W. men in last year's game. Frank Blackistone, center, was his first victim, and Tom Dike, Blackistone's substitute, the second. Volok keeps running when he has the ball—unless thrown to the ground—and he steps on whoever or whatever happens to get in his way. Sort of a human steam roller.

G. W. doesn't know how to meet Tulsa's unorthodox style of running the ball, so Coach Pixlee will tempt the fates by stressing solely the attack this week. Pixlee is a disciple of that school of coaching whose maxim is that the other team can't score if your boys have the ball. That's G. W.'s plan of battle, to keep possession of the leather, making touchdowns every now and then for variety.

Sam Byrd, of Yankees, In Pinehurst Tourney

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 13 (AP).—Sam Byrd, New York Yankee outfielder, will play in the Midsouth Open Golf tournament beginning tomorrow as a professional.

The Birmingham (Ala.) athlete, long recognized as the best golfer in baseball and a fine amateur, will team with Billy Burke, of Greenwich, Conn., National Open champion in 1931, in the pro best ball competition.

Byrd said he might compete in some other tournaments of the winter circuit, but had made no definite plans.

Wolgast, Angelmann Fight 10-Round Draw

Paris, Nov. 13 (U.P.).—Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, recognized as world flyweight champion in New York and affiliated States, tonight battled to a 10-round draw with Valentin Angelmann, of France.

Wolgast's title was not at stake, as both entered the ring over the 112-pound limit. Wolgast scaled 114½; Angelmann, 115.

Phillies Acquire Coast Outfielder

Ragland, McLeod, Another and Cash for Oana.

Philadelphia, Nov. 13 (AP).—The Phillies of the National Baseball League today announced a trade with the Portland, Oreg., club which brings Outfielder Henry K. "Prince" Oana, who led the Pacific Coast League in extra base hits last season, to the Phils in exchange for three players and cash.

Frank Ragland, a pitcher, and Jimmy McLeod, infielder, both obtained from the Albany, N. Y., International League Club last year, are two of the players going to Portland. The third man, whose name was not announced, will be sent to the coast in the spring. The amount of cash was not announced.

Oana, a 6-foot, 198-pound ball player, turned in a batting average of .332 in 174 games last year. He played with the San Francisco Seals in 1929, with Globe, in the Arizona State League, in 1930, and went back to San Francisco in 1931. He was traded to Portland at the end of the 1932 season.

Carnegie's Canny Coach —By Pierotti

HE WAS COACHING TIMBER FROM THE DAY HE CAPTAINED THE UNDEFEATED CARNEGIE FRESHMEN OF 1925.
HOWARD HARPSTER
CARNEGIE TECH'S "OWN" FOOTBALL COACH WHO LEADS HIS TEAM AGAINST GEORGETOWN SATURDAY AT GRIFFITH STADIUM.
HOWARD I GOT A DATE, YOU TAKE CARE OF THE TEAM.
OKAY COACH!
IN 1928 HE WAS A UNANIMOUS ALL AMERICA SELECTION. A QUARTER BACK WHO MADE COACHING FROM THE SIDELINES SUPERFLUOUS.
JEP.

Great Star Was Regarded As a Head Coach in Back Field.

HE was a head coach in the back field.

That is what they said of Howard Harpster when he was forward-passing Notre Dame silly in the first and only time the Rambling Irish were ever defeated on their home lot; that was what they said when he crossed up the New York Violets one cold Thanksgiving afternoon as he kept the Gotham gridders back up against their goal line, virtually the entire game through his long-distance spiral booting, and that is what they said when he outsped the speedy Pitt Panthers on a luke-warm Indian summer Saturday in early October.

So they put his name on the honorable-mention list of the countless All-America selections his first year on the varsity team; he placed on the second selections his junior year—Benny Friedman, of Michigan, was the selection that year—and he wound up his senior year on the first team of practically every selection. And Howard Harpster became a Carnegie Tech campus immortal.

Architecture Student.

Harp was enrolled as a student in the school of architecture. The course is five years. Consequently, the Carnegie star's football playing days as far as Tech was concerned, were over in his subsenior year. The following fall, 1929, he acted in the capacity of scout for Carnegie.

Following his graduation in June, 1929, Harpster was signed to coach the fashionable Shadyside Academy of Pittsburgh. And he turned the team from a proverbial doormat to one of the strongest in Western Pennsylvania.

His success was so great that Geneva College signed him to a contract to coach football the following year. As is the case at most institutions, the minority alumni block figured the signing of the former Carnegie star a folly of the powers that be. But Harp showed 'em.

Was Ranked Second.

The same tendencies which made him a constant menace when a Tech player crept out in his first Geneva creation. As a result, when the 1930 season passed Geneva ranked second in the Eastern percentages to Dick Harlow's distinguished Western Maryland machine. Geneva won nine out of ten games, losing only to Bucknell.

The following year, 1931, Harpster's Geneva Club not only won the Tri-State Conference title for the second straight year, but also redeemed its beating at the hoofs of the Bucknell Bison.

Last season, the former Scot star turned out another fine club, losing lone touchdown games to his alma mater and Duquesne University.

$2,500 Event At Kenwood Weighed

Tourney May Be Held in Spring; Capital Open May Be Shifted.

FOLLOWING the success of the the third National Capital Open Golf championship, Kenwood officials, led by Vice President Treasurer Donald Chamberlin, are seriously considering staging a $2,500 tournament in the spring, and changing the month of their fall tournament from November to September.

A number of nationally known pros who participated in the $2,000 event Saturday and Sunday suggested to Kenwood officials that a tournament be held the latter part of April when the golfing gold seekers would be coming this way from the North and South championship at Pinehurst, N. C.

Series Is Suggested.

Efforts are being made to have Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Richmond promote a special series of tournaments in September. A Philadelphia golf club representative is attempting to interest Richmond and Baltimore clubs in the proposition.

Due to the uncertainty of weather during November, Kenwood is exceedingly anxious to move up the dates of its fall classic, but could not hope to attract all the National stars in September unless there were money attractions in other cities falling in line with the dates of the National Capital Open.

Kenwood committees will meet this week to check the financial success of the 1933 National Capital Open. Last year's tournament showed a profit of 50 cents. The previous season's event was conducted at a loss of several hundred dollars.

Pirates' Catcher Wed.

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 13 (AP).—Thomas Padden, Pittsburgh Pirates' catcher, and Teresa Agnes Farmer, both of Manchester, were married today at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church. The couple left on a wedding trip which will include Boston, New York and Washington.

Nothing Wrong With Game —Landis

Interest Is Still as Keen, Depression Cause of Ills, He States.

GALVESTON, Tex., Nov. 13 (AP).—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, believes there is nothing wrong with the game except "depression."

"Steel, factories, railroads, newspapers, agriculture, live stock, baseball—we all rode down together and we'll all ride back together," he said today.

Landis arrived here for the annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues and was met by W. G. Bramham, of Durham, N. C., president, and members of the executive committee of the association. They all echoed his belief that baseball's troubles would end as soon as the ills of business and industry are remedied.

Interest Still Keen.

"A man can't go to a baseball game when he doesn't have any money," Landis said. "He can't have any money as long as he doesn't have a job."

The baseball commissioner cited instances of capacity crowds turning out to games last season when the gates were thrown open without charge, or admission prices were reduced to a nominal figure on special occasions.

"That shows," Landis said, "that the American people still love the great game of baseball. Many of them now are peering over the fence or through it and they will return as a paid customer as soon as they have any money."

The commissioner declared other sports were not cutting into the baseball attendance.

"Golf is in the same boat with us," he said. "Memberships in fashionable clubs which once cost $5,000 now are down to $250.

"One sport isn't hurt by an increase in popularity of another sport. We like to see other games prosper. When a man takes a liking to one sport, it usually enhances his liking for all of them."

League presidents, club officials, scout and players from every section of the Nation came to discuss their own future and that of the game. The convention proper will not open until Wednesday, but the executive committee already had started consideration of questions before it and planned to meet again tomorrow.

Landis was host at a luncheon to Bramham, Alvin Gardner, of Dallas; Warren O. Giles, of Rochester, and Dale Gear, of Topeka, presidents, respectively, of the Texas, International and Western Leagues, and members of the executive committee.

The committeemen said nothing of particular importance was discussed.

Ralph Altenhof Dead.

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 13 (AP).—Ralph Augustus Altenhof, 34, former Penn State football player, died at his home here today. The body will be taken to Pittsburgh for burial. He is survived by the widow, Harriet; a daughter, Marjorie Lou in Tucson, and his mother and three brothers, in Pittsburgh.

U. S. Elevens Hit New Low In Scoring

Average of 12.09 Points Per Game Is Run Up; .74 Less Than '32.

Argument Defense Has Gained Upper Hand Aided by Figures.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (AP).—College football scoring, on the basis of performances thus far this season by teams representative of the entire country, has set a new low record, thereby adding weight today to the arguments of coaches that the defense has gained the upper hand and, in effect, pretty well throttled the offense.

Despite the fact that most of the high-scoring "breather" games are over, and only tight, low point battles lie ahead, average scores of 164 teams have dropped to 12.09 points a game. Over the entire season of 1932 159 elevens averaged 12.83 points per game, a mark that was 1.17 points under the lowest previous average in the 11 years the Associated Press has kept such records.

Rule Change Cited.

The downward trend is all the more interesting in view of last winter's major rule change, specifically devised to aid the offense and eliminating the necessity for wasting a down to carry the ball outside after it had lodged close to the sidelines. Under this season's code the ball automatically comes in 10 yards whenever it is downed closer than that distance to the boundary.

Inasmuch as the major elevens with the stubborn late November and early December games still ahead, scarcely can hope to average two touchdowns per Saturday, there seems every likelihood of a further drop in the averages over the full season, and a corresponding increase in agitation this winter for more rule changes.

Dead Ball Attacked.

Already Lou Little, of Columbia, chairman of the coaches' advisory committee that meets with the rules committee, has opened the drive for further changes with the suggestion that football eliminate the "dead ball" provisions on fumbles and blocked kicks. Columbia has averaged 18.33 points per game so far this season.

Little had suggested, and several other head coaches have joined in the movement, returning to the old regulations, where fumbles and blocked kicks were free balls and could be picked up and advanced. Little believes that the "dead ball" rule, devised to aid the offense by increasing the use of the lateral pass through a decrease in the penalty for fumbling on this type of play, has not attained its objective and has resulted only in complications for officials and players.

Three Major Controversies.

So far this season, at least three major controversies arose over official rulings on blocked kicks and fumbles, where referees either allowed the ball to be advanced, or hesitated long enough in their decisions to spike offensive threats.

On the other hand, many coaches believe the "dead ball" rule not only is desirable from the standpoint of fairness to the side losing possession, but that it has encouraged the offense to take more chances than it would under the old "recover and run" regulations.

Scoring averages have shown a steady downward trend from the high of a 19-point average set in 1922, when figures were kept on only 63 teams. By 1930 this average had dropped to 16 points per game and to 14 in 1931.

Notre Dame Off.

The outstanding scoring failure this year has been Notre Dame, with only 12 points in six games, all counted against Indiana. Last year at this time the South Bend machine had piled up 222 points.

Michigan State, with a total of 220 in eight games last year, has made 73 in seven this season, while Texas Christian, with 283 for eleven contests, is down to 93 in eight so far this fall. Colgate, with 264, and Auburn with 255, both totals for nine games last year, have set a much slower pace, the former dropping to 151 points in six matches; Auburn to 98 in seven.

Zaharias Disqualified, Paul Boesch Is Victor

Baltimore, Nov. 13 (AP).—Paul Boesch, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was awarded the main bout here tonight when his opponent, George Zaharias, of Pueblo, Colo., was disqualified for roughness after 43 minutes of wrestling.

Boesch weighed 204 pounds and Zaharias 229.

Boston U. Captain Flays Coach, Students Protest After Injury

BOSTON, Nov. 13 (U.P.).—The tempest in the Boston University football beanpot continued to rage tonight despite the statement of university authorities that nothing, after all, was wrong.

It began with the declaration of Capt. Alfonso Aliberti, of Portland, Me., that football Coach John M. Harmon was 'thoroughly inefficient and unrespected." The immediate cause of Aliberti's statement was a brain concussion suffered by Billy Whelton, substitute quarter back, in Saturday's Tufts game, the last of the season for B. U.

Whelton played the game with an injured collarbone and, according to one version, had been warned that his participation might mean further injury. Whelton said he was unwilling to play, but had been advised by Coach Harmon that he was suffering from "nerves."

University officials today issued a statement over the signature of Dr. Welman Christie, the football squad's physician, denying he had pronounced Whelton unfit to play. After the statement had been issued Dr. Christie denied he had any knowledge of it. He said he had told Whelton that if he played it would be on the youth's "own responsibility."

Students tonight were barred from issuing a protest statement through the student publication, The News, and planned a mass meeting tomorrow. Harmon refused to comment on the incident.

G. U. Plans New Plays Against Carnegie

Line of Invaders Is One of Best in Nation, Says Coach Hagerty.

AFTER reading all available newspaper clippings describing the prowess of the 1933 Carnegie Tech Football Team, Coach Jack Hagerty, of Georgetown, went out to Lansing, Mich., Saturday to see if the sports writers were working on space rates or actually knew what they were writing about. Hagerty saw Tech battle Michigan State to a scoreless tie, and he saw enough good football to satisfy himself that the press reports were all too true. Carnegie's good, as Georgetown probably will discover when the two clash Saturday at Griffith Stadium.

The Georgetown mentor had nothing but praise for Tech's line, which he rates one of the best in the Nation. In Carl Stewart, captain and end, Hagerty thinks Coach Harpster has a budding All-American. Stewart covers receivers like a hawk on punts. Big and fast, Stewart is not only a tower of strength on the defense but also a good pass receiver and fine blocker.

Croft Also Praised.

But Tech has another lineman that merited lavish praise from Hagerty, Steve Croft, a 220-pound tackle, who also does the kicking. Croft it was who saved Carnegie from being tied by little Xavier with a field goal in the last three minutes of play. Croft is without a peer within the 20-yard line.

Ed Perebus, a 150-pound half back, is, in Hagerty's opinion, the Pittsburghers' most dangerous ball carrier. Perebus has the drive and power of a much larger man and can take an unlimited amount of punishment. He'll be the man Georgetown must stop Saturday if it is to hold the visitors to a low score.

Mack Stanley reported back to the Georgetown squad yesterday and will be available for duty Saturday. His return gives the team a dependable kicker, something it has not had since the Canisius game. The roster is at full strength, where Hagerty hopes to keep it with a no-scrimmage rule. Every man will be needed against Carnegie.

The Hilltoppers will be worked hard this week, much harder than usual. Hagerty and his brain trust are busy doping out new plays for the game, plays which it is hoped will take the confident invaders by surprise.

Closer Sox Fences Not Simmons' Idea

Did Not Ask Change to Aid Homer Hitting, Says Al.

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP).—Al Simmons came back to town today and told the startled reporters it wasn't his idea to make the fences at Comisky Park, home of the White Sox, closer to home plate.

The playing area of the park is being reduced with the home plate moved out 14 feet toward center field with the announced purpose of giving Al an easier target for his home run smashes.

"I'll tell you what's wrong out there," Al snorted as he denied he had asked Owner Lou Comiskey to shorten the playing area. It's those darn breezes from Lake Michigan that whip across the playing field and give outfielders plenty of time to camp under long drives that would go for homers in the average park, but I'll hit in any park."

"This report certainly puts me on the spot—this report that I wanted the playing area reduced," he added. "Fans will expect me to hit 35 or 40 home runs. I deeply regret the implication that I requested the change."

Willard Pleads Not Guilty

Asks Jury Trial of Truck Driver's Charges That Ex-Champ Used Fists on Him.

Glendale, Calif., Nov. 13 (AP).—Jess Willard, former heavyweight boxing champion, pleaded not guilty today in police court to a charge of battery, preferred against him by Joe Legrego, truck driver.

Willard asked for a trial by jury and the trial date was set for December 5. Bail of $100 was continued.

Legrego filed the battery charge against the former pugilist following a traffic accident. Legrego said Williard used his fists to express his views of Legrego's driving ability. Willard declined to discuss the fight.

ON the threshold of its first District scholastic championship since 1920, Central High School, formerly the parennial title holder, today faces its last barrier in the form of a Western eleven that is assuming threatening proportions.

Today's game, which two weeks ago had all the appearance of a mere formality for Central, now takes the form of a mild menace to the Mount Pleasant team's title aspirations. Western is showing unmistakable signs of power.

Hope to Be at Peak.

Western went into high gear in its most recent series game against Roosevelt, winning by a 32-0 score and showing vast improvement both in the line and the back field. Throughout the week, the Western lads have been practicing diligently under McCarver and figure to be at their peak.

On past performances, Central with the dangerous Kocsis lugging the ball, will go into the fray a heavy favorite. The Mount Pleasant team showed a stolid defense against Tech in scoring the 7-0 victory that put it in line for the title, barring a defeat today.

On the sidelines, Eastern players and coaches will be supporting Western. A defeat for Central in today's game will put Eastern in a tie with Central for the title.

Three Big Threats.

Western has three big threats to hurl at Central in Jimmy Corcoran, all-around back field ace; Bob Gamage, as fine a tackle as has graced the series in recent years, and Capt Wynne, one of the District's better scholastic ends.

No series foe has yet been able to stop the explosive smashes of big Frank Kocsis of Central, and therein lies Central's edge.

G. W. and Temple Negotiate for 1934

Only Settlement of Date Stands in Way.

If George Washington and Temple University can arrive at a mutually satisfactory date they will meet in football next year, it was learned yesterday. The two have agreed on terms for the contest, but Temple already has a game listed the day G. W. wants to play.

Three games have been scheduled by the Colonials for 1934, North Dakota, Tulsa and Oklahoma. Overtures have been made to Syracuse, Colgate and Fordham, but with a view to booking them in 1935 since the majority of Eastern schools already have arranged their schedules for next season.

George Washington also is looking hopefully to the Big Ten Conference as a source of future opponents, and feelers are out in that direction. However, indications are that conference schools will play in their own backyard.

Rosenbloom to Fight 'Pa' Stribling Charge

Houston, Tex., Nov. 13 (U.P.). Maxie Rosenbloom, light-heavyweight boxing champion, who recently defended his title against Mickey Walker, has been matched for a nontitle bout here November 28 with Clyde Chastain, member of "Pa" Stribling's string of boxers.

It will be Rosenbloom's second appearance here since boxing was legalized in September. In his first fight he lost a 10-round decision to the late W. L. (Young) Stribling. It was Stribling's last fight.

Chastain has never fought here, but is known to North Texas fans and has been in a number of bouts in this section recently.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

CANNY Connie Mack is still withholding details of the trades that will send Lefty Grove, Rube Walberg, Max Bishop, Mickey Cochrane and George Earnshaw to other ports in the American League, but it is significant that he has not seen fit to pooh-pooh the reports now that Sunday baseball in Philly has been legalized.

Sunday baseball or no Sunday baseball, Mack is determined to cash in on his valuable chattels, and from Boston there comes word that Eddie Collins is more hopeful than ever of corralling some of the A's stars for the Red Sox.

Mack has steadfastly refused to traffic in deals with the leading contenders in the league, namely, the Nats, Yankees and Indians, but with the Red Sox and the Tigers foremost in the market for his stars, the A's venerable pilot may be more kindly disposed to trade and sell. Another week is expected to bring announcement of the transfer of Grove, Walberg and Bishop to Boston.

Still Has High Hope.

It is significant, too, that Collins, during the past week, has been in conference at Philadelphia with Mack, his former boss, and there may be a bit of fire concealed beneath the smoke at Boston, where Collins is quoted as follows:

"I can't see where a club like the Athletics, which finished third and didn't draw many more people than did our Red Sox, who finished seventh, should go on losing money heavily to please a group of fans who won't support the team by paying at the gate. With brilliant young pitchers like Cain and Marcum developing, Connie may take a chance and let a pitcher or two go. That's where our hopes seem to lie. At least we haven't given up hope."

Player-Manager Vogue.

The baseball cycle has again revolved to the point where player-managers are popular with the magnates, who are now showing a pronounced trend toward the combination of the two jobs, and, incidentally, of the two salaries.

After the failures of Bucky Harris in his late years in Washington, Sisler at St. Louis, Hornsby with the Braves, Cobb and Speaker with the Tigers and Indians, player-managers fell into more or less disrepute and the bench managers such as McCarthy at Chicago and New York, Mack at Philadelphia and McKechnie at St. Louis and Pittsburgh were the recognized leaders of managerial trade.

But, with Joe Cronin and Bill Terry piloting their teams into the 1933 flags in the role of player-managers, magnates again are seeking out active pilots. Donie

Burl, in Fine Form, May Upset Milling in 10-Round Bout at Portner's Tonight

Hard to Beat When in His Best Trim

Believed to Be at Peak Against Sarron Due to Harder Grind.

Genaro Given Edge Over Knowles; Caesar Will Battle Clarke.

EDDIE BURL, Jacksonville club fighter, who mixes it with Varias Milling, Filipino club fighter, in the 10-round main event at Portner's tonight, has achieved one of those rare stages of good physical condition for him, which usually presages an upset. In top form, Burl is one of the most difficult featherweights in the ring to subdue, but out of shape he is an easy target for fighters who have no business fighting semifinals to his top bouts.

Burl, in his past performances, has given ample indication of the effect condition has on his fighting. His first bout with Le Roy Dougan was a walk-away. The second encounter found Burl, who accepted the fight on only a few hours' notice, far out of condition and the recipient of a thorough shellacking. For their third encounter, Burl whipped himself into splendid shape, and disposed of the Arkansas toy bulldog handily.

Works Hard for Sarron.

Many are of the opinion that Pete Sarron is able to make no better showing against Burl than he does because the Jacksonville plugger, who is none too fond of Sarron personally, works very hard to reach proper condition before fighting him.

Varias Milling is generally rated several notches ahead of Burl, but, under the circumstances, there is always the possibility of an upset at the expense of the Filipino flash. Both contestants are inclined to keep throwing fists at any cost and neither is in the habit of backing up, no matter how rough the going becomes. There is a distinct possibility that Burl's punches may land more effectively than his opponent's—and if that happens, the ringworms probably will be treated to a ringside view of an overturned apple cart.

Mickey Genaro will pit his craft and experience against the vicious fighting instinct of "Chief" Perry Knowles in an eight-round semifinal. Genaro, one of the most ringwise, if not the best featherweight hereabouts, may find the do-or-die spirit of the Indian more than he can handle, but the majority are conceding him a slight edge.

Three fours will round out the bill. Ernie Ceasar will meet Soldier Clarke in the most promising of these prelims. Joe Green, who recently deserted the simon-pure ranks, will tackle Ralph De Pelt in another and Harry Slaughter will raise the curtain against Tom Wright.

"Y" Swimming Club Lists Meet Saturday

The Y. M. C. A. Swimming Club will stage its first meet of the winter season Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the men's pool. The affair is sanctioned by the District A. A. U. and is open to all registered natators.

Three races and low board fancy diving will comprise the program. A 50-yard free style swim will inaugurate the program. It will be followed by 220-yard free style, 100-yard back stroke and the diving.

Entries should be submitted to J. Dallas Shirley or Robert M. Carrico, at the Central Branch of the "Y" on or before 10:30 p. m., Thursday. Officials for the meet will be James Sprigman, Jerome Shear, Dick Newby, Carl Knight, H. M. McCrahan, and Carl Ahlenfeld.

Admission will be free and the public is invited.

Official of C. U. Game Clarifies Fumble Ruling

Denial that officials at the Catholic University-Detroit game "pulled a boner," as reported in The Post, was entered yesterday by Dr. E. J. Cummings, umpire of the game, who clarified the ruling made on a play in the second period when C. U. was given the ball after an apparent Detroit fumble.

Slipping to the ground after catching a C. U. punt, Capt. Marsh, of Detroit, arose and hurled the ball onto the ground in a gesture of disgust. Three C. U. players fell on it. Opinion in the press box was unanimous in agreeing that the ball was dead the moment Marsh touched the ground. According to Cummings, C. U. was given possession of the ball not on the recovered fumble, but because Nott, another Detroit player, had clipped McGann, C. U. end, while the ball was still in the air. Thus Detroit forfeited possession.

Marions Drill Tonight.

Heavy work is scheduled tonight for the Marion gridders who will practice at 7:30 o'clock at Fairlawn. Prof. "Bottle" Cox will be in command of the team Sunday the Marions tangle with the Maryland A. C. at Griffith Stadium for the championship of the National Capital League.

Basket Ball Practice.

Saranac A. C. will hold its first basket ball practice of the season tonight at 9:30 o'clock at Central High School. Bob Smith, Jack Moulton, Ed and Mike Scanlon, Ware Wheeler, Knocky Thomas, Bill Burke, Joe Judson, Bill Woodward, L. and G. Askin and B. Parsons are requested to report.

Stewart's Pet Dog Makes G. W. Team Again; Even Goes to Class, Listens Very Intently

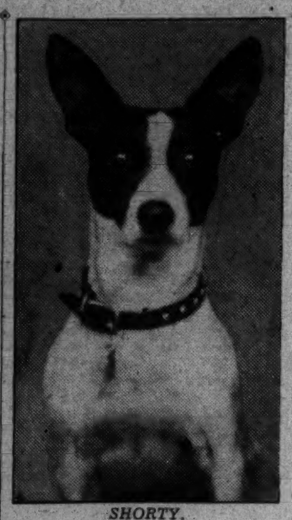
Once, Under Knife, Bore Up Well While Master Passed Out Cold.



SHORTY.

FOUR years ago, a little black and white mongrel dog whimpered in the death cell of a Dallas dog pound. Today, he proudly occupies a place of honor on the football squad of George Washington University.

In 1929, Stewart visited a friend of his, the superintendent of the pound at Dallas, Tex. Passing by the long line of pens, he saw a mangy, flea-bitten, half-starved pup, looking up at him with pricked ears and a mournful take-me-out-of-here expression.

"I don't know why," Stewart says in puzzlement even now, "he was just a no-account dog. But I wasn't going to leave him there!"

Ever since, Shorty has tagged Zu Zu's heels. In 1931, they came to George Washington University. Zu made the football team in a big way. So did Shorty!

Mascot Three Years.

For three years he has been the team's mascot—Coach Pixlee's lucky piece. He lives at the Varsity House, 1609 K street, sleeping nights at the foot of Stewart's bed. He eats from the training table. When Pixlee lectures to the boys on pigskin tactics, Shorty sits on Zu's lap and listens as hard as the rest.

But Shorty's real moments of glory come with the sound of the starting whistle. It is his duty to follow his team from the sidelines—play by play, up and down the white chalk marks. Only for unforeseen emergencies does he forsake his post. One day, it was to chase from the field an inquisitive police dog, triple his size.

A seasoned traveler, Shorty has made train trips half across the United States. But this year, on the team's trip to Grand Forks, N. Dak., Shorty nearly missed connections. He was taking a stroll with his master when the train began to pull out. Stewart scooped him up only to fumble in the scramble to get aboard. But Shorty's stumpy legs kept streaking down the tracks until he was close enough to be hauled back.

Between games, Shorty absorbs a university education. He attends class with Zu Zu. George Washington professors smile when Shorty takes "time out" for a flea hunt during lectures. And it was Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, who gave Shorty his nickname of "Free-Wheeling" due to his famed practice of loping off the gridiron on only three legs.

Only one thing bores Shorty—crowds, admiring female ones especially. Reserved and aloof, Shorty is very much a man's dog. In fact, he recognizes only one girl friend—Mary Brooks Haley, "Toots," on the G. W. campus. She lives at 2308 Wisconsin avenue. When Zu Zu worked as life guard at the Airport Swimming Pool last summer, Toots took care of Shorty.

Placed Under Knife.

It is really to Zu Zu and Toots that Shorty owes his life. Several months ago, Shorty crossed swords with a police dog late one evening. A great gash was torn in his neck. They rushed him to the George Washington University Hospital and persuaded a staff doctor to operate.

"Will he make any noise?" Stewart was asked.

"No!" said Zu Zu with tight lips.

The doctor and two nurses began work on the bleeding bundle of fur. Not a whimper came from Shorty. But Zu Zu, brawny veteran of many gridiron tussles, injured dozens of times himself, saw the needle cut through Shorty's flesh—and passed out cold.

Practice Today At C. U. for Manhattan

YESTERDAY was black and blue Monday at Catholic University, and all spirits were at half mast as the Cardinals mourned the loss of Saturday's homecoming game to Detroit. Coach "Dutch" Bergman was just as crestfallen as any of his players, and he elected to give everybody the day off to help forget the incident. Today Catholic will begin preparations for its game with Manhattan Saturday at Ebbett's Field, Brooklyn. The Brooklanders figure to top the Jaspers by a comfortable margin, even though Manhattan showed surprising strength against Holy Cross last week.

Gross Ready Saturday.

All of the Cardinals felt the effects of their gruelling struggle with Detroit, but Phil Gross was the most badly injured of the lot. Gross was knocked silly on the first play, but later returned to action. He will be ready to resume business at the old tackle stand Saturday.

Catholic's secondary defense men, too, were still a bit dizzy from attempting to follow Doug Nott's unending stream of passes, but Bergman believes they will be in good physical trim for the Manhattan affair. The coach plans to let all back field men hold a ball several hours every day to restore their evaporating confidence, which began to wane when Nott buzzed those passes around their ears.

G. U. Preps Win Handily From St. John's

THE strong Georegtown Prep team buried St. John's under an avalanche of five touchdowns at Garrett Park yesterday afternoon. The final score was 33-0.

Tommy Keating, star half back on the Little Hoya eleven, was the individual star of the afternoon, scoring a pair of touchdowns after 45 and 20 yard runs, respectively, and working the ball into touchdown territory on two other occasions.

Flanagan Scores on Nice Run.

Flanagan, a substitute for Hedges, who in turn was a substitute for Anderson, Hoyette left half, scored from the St. John's 25-yard line after a nice wide end run. The second score of the inning was Keating's 45-yard gallop.

Two other scores were chalked up in the third stanza when Keating scored on an off-tackle thrust from the St. John's 20-yard line. And the final 6-pointer of the afternoon was put across by Scatourchio, Prep right end, who nabbed Tommy Keating's 35-yard pass and sped the remaining 10 yards for the goal.

Four D. C. Pros In Tourney at Pinehurst

Houghton, Diffenbaugh, Shorey, Spencer Seek Midsouth Honors.

FOUR District professionals, headed by its leading money winner, Al Houghton, of Kenwood, are in Pinehurst, N. C., today competing in the professional best-ball championship that precedes the annual Midsouth open golf championship tomorrow.

Other local pros entered are Mel Shorey, of East Potomac; George Diffenbaugh, of Indian Spring, and Cliff Spencer, of Beaver Dam. Houghton, who tied for third place in the National Capital open, will team with Tony Manero, Greensboro, N. C., pro, while Shorey will have Tom O'Connor, of Bloomfied, N. J., as his partner. Diffenbaugh and Spencer have not selected their partners.

Mackenzie to Compete.

Tommy Armour and Al Watrous won the event last year with 68—63—131 and will team again. Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., pro, fresh from a $600 victory in the National Capital open, and Willie MacFarlane loom as outstanding contestants.

Tomorrow in the Midsouth championship, Houghton will find himself in the role of cosharer of the 1932 title. Last season he tied with Watrous and Henry Picard with a 36-hole total of 143, splitting $750.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

THE Harrison brothers gave an exhibition of their pin-spilling ability at the Patterson alleys in Baltimore Sunday night in a special five game match against Andy Cook and Walter Miller, of the home drives, running away with the match with a margin of 104 pins. Joe Harrison was the individual star, pounding out a five-game total of 659, being followed closely by Brother Joe, who clicked for a 632 set.

P. Harrison....	124	113	125	151	119	632

						1,187

The bottom of the league came to the front in the Federal Men's league at the Arcadia drives last night, when Bill Miller (Investigation) annexed high individual set honors with 393 and the Internal Revenue team cashed in with a 607 set. Crowden, leading for high individual game honors with 145, aiding Government Printing Office in rolling up a 1,785 set, the best team effort for the night.

George Wilson (Standard No. 1) was the individual star of the Petroleum League at the Columbia Alleys, smashing the maples for a high game of 165 and a 372 set. Standard No. 1 in taking the odd game from Amoco, captured both high team game and team set with 568 and 1,654, respectively. Shell took two from Lucky Service and Chapman downed Standard No. 2 for the odd game.

League records fell in the Methodist Protestant Church League at Arcadia, when Will Kline, Rhode Island Avenue No. 1 star, scattered the maples to the tune of a 152 game and a 415 set. The existing high team set mark was shattered when Rhode Island Avenue No. 1, aided by a 589 game, compiled a total pinfall of 1,687 ducks.

Howard Campbell and Charlie Bell offer the bowlers of the District their last chance to cop an entry in the Dixie Sweepstakes, which opens here Saturday, announcing a sweepstakes at the Convention Hall alleys on Thursday, following the rolling in the District League and Friday at Lucky Strike, after the matches in the National Capital League. Both of the events should receive quite a bit of patronage as the best bowlers in Washington, who have not already won an entry, will be expected to compete.

Tom Bradford (Jumbo Bread) has been consistently mauling the maples in the Sanico League at Convention Hall, again carrying away high individual honors, with a 145 game and 396 set. Sanico Cakes with a 578 game and a 1,699 set took team honors.

The Mount Pleasant Bowlers were the outstanding performers in the Odd Fellows League at Convention Hall, annexing both game and set honors with 591 and 1568, respectivity; Norman Groff (Mount Pleasant) had a 126 game and Claggett, rolling with the second-place Eastern team, banged out a 341 set.

Lebanon's team game of 522 and Harmony's 1430 team set were the best efforts in the Eastern Star Ladies League on the Convention Hall drives, last night. Owen (Washington Centennial), rolling a 117 game and a 316 set, was the outstanding star of the night.

Moran (Research) and Suschine (Transportation) crashed out a 141 game apiece to tie for honors in the Ladies Commerce League at Convention Hall. Transportation's 508 game and 1424 set, were unsurpassed.

Cards Planning Winter Sports Program

Court, Ring, Track and Tank Teams to See Plenty of Action.

AN elaborate winter sports program, including basket ball, boxing, swimming and track, has been scheduled by Catholic University, it was learned by The Post yesterday. The entire program will be announced at the conclusion of the football season.

Catholic's annual invitation indoor track carnival, which was not held last season, will feature the activities. The games will be held February 24, and all of the outstanding collegiate and club runners of the East and Midwest will be invited to compete.

Coach Dorsey Griffith will take the C. U. track squad to Morgantown, W. Va., February 13, for the University of West Virginia games, and the team will run again either in the Millrose games, February 3, or New York Athletic Club games, February 17, in addition to its own school's meet.

Seven Outdoor Meets.

Outdoor meets have been scheduled with Gallaudet, Johns Hopkins, St. Joseph's, Maryland, V. M. I., Washington and Lee and V. P. I. The annual District A. A. U. championship games, June 5, at C. U., will climax the season.

Neither the varsity boxing or basket ball cards have been completed, but the tossers will play approximately 20 games, and the mittmen box a half dozen opponents. Eddie LaFond, boxing instructor, definitely has arranged matches with Western Maryland, V. M. I., V. P. I., North Carolina State, and Loyla, and one is pending with M. I. T.

While there is an abundance of good basket ball material available at the Brookland school, athletics in other branches of sport are scarce. LaFond has one or two promising leatherpushers, and a flock of green but willing youngsters. Griffith has only two lettermen for track, Ed Brennan and Bob Connor. They will serve as co-captains of the team, the first time in C. U. history that any athletic team has been led by two men. Connor is the former District champion bicycle racer.

Montreal to Seek Major Franchise

Montreal, Nov. 13 (U.P.).—Montreal interests will make a bid for a major league baseball franchise at next month's meeting of the major club owners in Chicago, it was learned tonight.

Hector Racine and Charles Trudeau, president and vice president of Montreal's International League Club, announced they will attend the Chicago convention with hopes of obtaining a satisfactory price on a major franchse.

It is understood here that the St. Louis Browns of the American League and the Cincinnati Reds of the National League will place their franchises on the market.

Maj. Patton Captures Cup at Horse Show

New York, Nov. 13 (Spl.).—Maj. G. S. Patton, jr., of Washington, D. C., today won the Charles L. Scott Challenge Cup, an event confined strictly to jumpers owned by an officer of the United States Army Reserve or National Guard, in the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden.

Maj. Patton gave a splendid exhibition of riding on Kukupu to take the event. Lieut. J. W. Wofford, of West Point, up on Diplomat, won the Reserve Ribbon.

Pro Tilt Nets $8,941 For Mrs. Cavanaugh

New York, Nov. 13 (AP).—A check for $8,941.87 was in the mail tonight to Mrs. Frank Cavanaugh, widow of the "iron major," the contribution of professional football to the family of the former head coach of Dartmouth, Boston College and Fordham.

The sum represented 40 per cent of the net receipts of the memorial game played yesterday between the New York Giants and the Boston Redskins.

Post to Give Army-Navy Seats To Postilion Contest Winners

Highly gratified by the response that has greeted The Postilion Football Contest, The Post is offering as the prizes to the winners of the fourth of the weekly contests nine choice seats to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia one week from Saturday.

Thus fans competing in the current contest will have the added incentive of an opportunity to obtain absolutely free two, three or four seats to the outstanding classic of college football.

The Postilion Contest is based on 40 of next Saturday's games, selected from the schedule by Shirley L. Povich, Sports Editor of The Post. It is being presented in conjunction with The Postilion's daily broadcast over Station WMAL by Harris B. Hull.

Each fan is invited to test his own prowess as a football expert by selecting the winners. To the fan selecting the greatest number of winning teams, The Post will award four choice seats to the Army-Navy game. Three choice seats will be presented the second-place contestant and two choice seats will go to the third-place entry.

The coupon below is for your convenience, although it is not necessary to use The Post chart. In the left-hand column, headed "Your Selection," fans are invited to submit their scores. On Saturday night The Postilion announcer will broadcast the results in the same order. The "Result" column provides you with a convenient form on which to record the final scores as they are broadcast.

Each fan is limited to one entry. Priority of receipts will govern in case of ties.

Week May See Clinching Of 3 Major Grid Crowns

NEW YORK, Nov. 13 (U.P.).—This week's football schedule will be devoted almost entirely to heavy regional fighting on all fronts, with only two important intersectional clashes slated. Three of the Nation's remaining eight major sectional titles may be clinched before the dust settles.

Situations in the various battle sectors may be sketched as follows:

Big Six.

Nebraska won the crown by beating Kansas, 12-0, so this week Kansas State and Oklahoma fight for second-place honors, while Kansas meets Iowa State, and Missouri meets Washington of St. Louis outside.

Pacific Coast.

Oregon can clinch the title by beating Southern California. A victory over the Trojans might also assure the Webfoots of participating in the Rose Bowl classic for the first time since 1920. If Oregon loses and Stanford beats Montana, Oregon will still lead, but Stanford will be a dangerous contender, with the Trojans still in the running. California plays Idaho, and Washington meets U. C. L. A.

Big Ten.

Michigan can nail down its fourth consecutive crown by downing Minnesota if, at the same time, Iowa defeats Purdue. After Iowa's showing against Michigan, and Purdue's power display against Notre Dame, both games should be hammer-and-tong affairs. Bernie Bierman's Gophers are primed for the Wolevrines, after a week's rest. Other Big Ten games bring together Illinois-Chicago, and Wisconsin-Ohio State. Northwestern tries to give Notre Dame its fifth straight defeat, and Indiana meets Xavier.

Missouri Valley.

Oklahoma A. & M. can tie up the title by defeating or tying Creighton. The Aggies eliminated Drake with a 21-0 beating last week.

East.

The two Eastern leaders, Army and Princeton, meet Pennsylvania Military and Navy, respectively, and neither appears likely to have its perfect record shattered. Accordingly, Eastern interest is centered on the two big intersectional clashes, in which Nebraska makes its bid for National honors against the Pitt Panthers at Pittsburgh, and Oregon State's invasion of the Fordham Rams at New York.

Other interesting Eastern encounters pair Harvard-Brown, Dartmouth-Cornell, Columbia-Lafayette, Syracuse-Colgate, Pennsylvania-Penn State and Carnegie Tech-Georgetown, while Tulsa marches on George Washington. Yale takes a rest.

Southern.

Duke, South Carolina and North Carolina are still unbeaten and untied in conference games. Duke and North Carolina battle it out at Durham, while South Carolina tackles Furman on the outside. Virginia plays Virginia Poly.

Southeastern.

Unbeaten and untied Georgia heads the conference, although Alabama is a menacing contender, Georgia meets Auburn, while Alabama tangles with Georgia Tech. Other conference games bring together Tennessee-Vanderbilt, both strong contenders; Tulane-Kentucky, and Mississippi-Sewanee.

Southwest.

The pacesetter, Arkansas, was upset by Rice, leaving Texas in a threatening position. Arkansas meets Hendrix outside, while Texas may tie for the lead by beating Texas Christian. Rice meets Texas A. and M., and Baylor tackles Texas Tech, on Friday.

Rocky Mountain.

Utah leads the conference, with Denver and the Colorado Aggies still menacing. The Utah Utes and Denver collide Saturday, while the Aggies have an open date. Colorado College meets Colorado Mines, and Utah State plays Brigham Young.

Axtell Shoots 71 to Top at Rock Creek

PAT AXTELL, 21-year-old transplanted Texan, shot a 71, four over par, yesterday at Rock Creek's course, virtually to assure himself medal honors in the annual Rock Creek turkey golf tournament.

Although a number of golfers, including such municipal stars as Bob Marks, Andy Oliveri and Ralph Bean, will play their qualifying rounds today, Axtell's 18-hole score is not in any great danger.

Outside Axtell's 35—36—71, the scoring was not particularly good. Out of a field of 65, only four managed to break 80. Nick Altrock, comedian-coach of the Washington baseball club, scored a 37—39—76 to tie for second place with Russell J. Hoag, who went out in 36, and soared to 40 on the second nine. One stroke behind them followed B. Harry Graham, popular Rock Creek course manager, who shot 40—37—77.

Shoots Hole-in-One.

It remained for Merrell Whittlesey, tall 18-year-old blonde, to furnish the day's sensation with his hole-in-one on the 159-yard seventeenth, an island hole, flanked by traps, with a ravine guarding the entrance to the carpet.

Playing with Louis O. Fagan and C. L. Angel, Whittlesey spanked a No. 4 iron to the left of the green, hole high, the ball trickling into the cup, much to the amazement of all three golfers. This ace enabled Whittlesey to shoot the last nine in 38 and tie for fourth place at 80 with John Connelly. Connelly had a 41—39.

Going from the sublime to the ridiculous in scoring, Herman R. Allen, newly-crowned West Potomac champion and outstanding first-flight player, went beserk on the first hole and used up 14 strokes, setting what is believed to be a new first-hole record in tournament play at Rock Creek. In addition to losing a ball in the woods, Allen was trapped at least four times, finally reaching the green in 11 strokes. In sharp contrast to his 55 for the first nine was his fine 38 of the second. He probably will make the third flight.

Matches Tomorrow.

First round matches will begin tomorrow and continue through Sunday.

A women's Turkey tournament, open to all club and unattached players, will be sponsored by the Manor Golf Club on Monday, November 27, Mrs. David M. McPherson last night announced.

The tournament will be 18 holes medal play with handicap. There will be no entrance fee. Play will be in two classes—A, handicaps from 1 to 16, and, B, handicaps from 17 to 27.

Turkeys will be given the winners.

Bowie Opens Tomorrow for 14-Day Meeting, With All 1,225 Stalls Occupied

New Devices Are Added At Plant

Boyle - Lynch Starting Gate Is Included in Improvements.

Bryan-O'Hara Handicap Heads Four Usual Stake Races.

WHEN the toot of the bugle summons the first field to the barrier at a dressed-up Bowie tomorrow, the Prince Georges track will be literally bulging to overflowing with horseflesh for the 14-day fall meet. All of the 1,225 stalls in the Bowie plant have been assigned and arrangements have been made to quarter the overflow at Laurel and Marlboro.

The many improvements which will receive their initial workouts at the meet starting tomorrow are believed in most quarters to be largely responsible for the heavy influx of thoroughbreds. One of the most important of the new devices is the Boyle-Lynch starting gate, similar in construction to the one in use at Pimlico, but declared superior in several important respects.

More Room for Horses.

The Boyle-Lynch contraption is lighter, the compartments wider and the partitions higher off the ground, giving the horse more room to move while in the gate. Trainers who have tried the device in schooling practice have expressed great satisfaction with its operation in every particular.

Another improvement that has met with wide-spread approval among horsemen is the high pressure pumping system, which has supplanted the old tank that once supplied water for all of the barns.

From the customers' standpoint, the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association will be much the same—only brightened up considerably. Buckets and buckets of whitewash have been applied to all dark spots in the pearl-like settings and the evergreens in front of the grand stands have been carefully tended to lend that certain something that can be lent only by evergreens at a race track.

The lawns surrounding the stands and in the infield have been manicured in preparation for the opening and much work has been done on the running surface, which has been whipped into excellent condition for the opening day. Barring stormy weather, the track should be lightning fast for the curtain-raising performances.

Stake Purses Reduced.

Only in the stakes has a policy of retrenchment been followed by the organization governing the plant, but such a policy is in keeping with the practices being followed at all tracks without serious detriment to the programs.

All four of the usual stake races have been retained and as usual are headed by the Bryan-O'Hara Memorial Handicap to be run November 25. This event, named after the founders of the track, is for 3-year-olds and upward over a mile and one-sixteenth distance. The stake for the Bryan-O'Hara affair is $5,000 and a trophy, which must be won three times, not necessarily in succession, for permanent possession.

Thanksgiving Day will find the usual Thanksgiving Day Handicap being run for 3-year-olds over a mile and sixteenth for a $2,500 purse. The Endurance for juveniles, will be run over the same distance for the same amount on November 28. The first feature in the meet is $2,500 Prince Georges Handicap, for 3-year-olds, which is to be run at a mile and sixteenth Saturday.

Man o' War Get Good.

Grandchildren of matrons claiming the super-horse Man o'War as their daddy have covered themselves with glory to a marked degree in the season drawing to a close at Bowie. Among a number of ordinary purse winners, stake winners such as Mata Hari, Jabot, Black Buddy, Signalman, Kings Minstrel, Red Badge and Willow King can boast of such a distinguished pedigree.

Mata Hari, being proclaimed in the Midwest the best 2-year-old of the season by virtue of wins in the Breeders' Futurity and Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, is a daughter of Peter Hastings and War Woman—the latter an offspring of Man o'War.

Jabot, which defeated the formidable Bazaar in the Selma renewal at Laurel after having won a juvenile handicap at Rockingham Park, is a daughter of Frilette, which is a daughter of Man o' War and Frillery. Many are expecting Jabot to develop into the 3-year-old champion of 1934.

Black Budd, Won Two Stakes.

The super horse's daughter, Siren, was responsible for Black Buddy, which won the fifty-seventh juvenile at Belmont Park June 3 and a week later romped home in the twenty-first national stallion, another 5-furlong dash.

Signalman is from the Man o' War mare, Sister Ship, and is also expected to produce big results next season. King's Minstrel, by Royal Minstrel; Red Badge, by Bubbling Over, and Willow King, by Sickle, are from the Man o' War mares, Armada, Edith Cavell and War Darling.

At different times Samuel D. Riddle has turned down offers of $261,000, $400,000 and $500,000 for Man o' War. The last bid came from W. T. Waggoner, the Texas oil king, who has just opened the Arlington Downs plant in the Lone Star State.

Meridians Will Practice.

Meridian A. C. football team will practice tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Sixteenth Street Reservoir in preparation for Sunday's game with the Brentwood Hawks.

Strange as it seems, the business of making hand-made nails is not extinct. Although the nailsmith almost became a forgotten tradesman, there still remains a little demand for hand-fashioned nails. Strangely enough, the last nailsmith in England is a woman. She is Mrs. Brettell, of Worcestershire, who still fills the infrequent orders for hand-made nails. She learned her trade from her mother, who in turn learned it from her mother, making Mrs. Brettell the third generation of women nailsmiths in her family.

No one today would believe himself in China when, in fact, he was wandering through the countryside of Michigan. Three hundred years ago, however, it was a pardonable error—an error made by no less a person than the famous Frenchman, Jean Nicolet. Nicolet, believing himself in China, donned a highly colored Chinese coat when he greeted some American Indians. It must have surprised the Indians as much then as it would a Michigan farmer today.

Prisons in the past have been infamous for their high mortality rate, but the greatest toll was that taken by the prison in Calcutta, which became known as the Black Hole of Calcutta. In it were confined 146 English prisoners for only one night—but in the morning only 23 had survived the night. The rest died from lack of air and excessive heat.

Harvard Team Is Shaken Up For Brown

Capt. Dean May Not Play; Regulars of Most Elevens Idle.

(Associated Press.)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 13. Eddie Casey shook up his Harvard varsity for the Brown game, making three changes in the line and two in the back field. The newcomers were Dave Creek at end, Bill Francisco, tackle; Frank Schumann, guard; Harry Wells, left half back; and Chester Litman, right half.

Litman replaces the injured Francis Lane. The only other casualty of the Army game was Capt. Johnny Dean, whose shoulder injury may keep him out of the battle with Brown.

Holiday at Dartmouth.

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 13.—Jackson Cannell gave Dartmouth's football squad its first holiday of the season. Two inches of snow blanketed the practice field and this, together with the fact Cannell was pleased with the Indians' work against Princeton, influenced him in giving the players the day off. Dartmouth meets Cornell Saturday.

Cann Praises N. Y. A.

New York, Nov. 13.—Howard Cann praised his New York University eleven for its fine showing against Fordham and then dismissed the players after brief limbering up exercises. Intensive work for the Rutgers contest will begin tomorrow.

Scrimmage at Princeton.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 13.—All Tigers who played more than half of last week's game against Dartmouth were given a holiday by Fritz Crisler, Princeton coach, but the rest were given a long drill in passing and kicking. An eleven composed of reserve material and scrubs was coached in the Notre Dame style of offense used by Navy and will scrimmage against the varsity, starting tomorrow.

Army Drills Indoors.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 13.—After starting a light practice Army's football team, which meets a breather rival, Penn Military College, next, was driven indoors by a heavy rainstorm. Lieut. Gar Davidson will concentrate on developing a defense for the Navy game next week.

Columbia Regulars Idle.

New York, Nov. 13.—Columbia's regulars were excused from practice, but the second and third teams were drilled for an hour on fundamentals and wound up with a half hour of scrimmage.

"Big Ten" Coaches Speak

Some Might Feel Like Leaving the Conference, Professor Says, Because of Great Success This Year in Playing Outside Teams.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 (AP).—No sooner had the old professor obtained order in his Monday morning coach's class than Bob Zuppke, of Illinios, his face beaming once more, jumped out of his seat and took the floor.

"Before we get down to business," spoke up the Flying Dutchman from Illinois, "I move we send Amos Alonzo Stagg our congratulations on his coaching his little College of the Pacific team so well that it held St. Mary's, 7 to 0. That was a remarkable showing, considering the difference in material."

Three Last Week.

Professor—"Well, we have a lot of business to discuss. I know most of you coaches feel like deserting the conference inasmuch as Big Ten teams have won 19 outside games this year—three last week—but Michigan hasn't been stopped and it's up to Minnesota now."

Harry Kipke, Michigan—Just the thought of Minnesota gives me the jitters, professor. We know Bierman's squad will be set after two weeks' layoff. Our boys did well against Iowa and deserved a holiday today. I have no complaints about our defense and our attack looked good while Dutch Everhardus and Bill Renner were in there."

Ossie Solem, Iowa—"I've got to reassemble my forces before we can think of Purdue. Today, I have a bunch of old soldiers. That Michigan game was the most bruising one I've ever seen. My boys fought their hearts out, but Michigan had a great team and deserved to win."

Professor—"Bernie, you scouted that Michigan-Iowa game. How are Minnesota's chances Saturday?"

Bernie Bierman, Minnesota—"No, I didn't get to the Michigan game. My plane was forced down at South Bend and I saw the Chicago-Indiana battle. Michigan has a great football team in every way. We may have a chance if we're lucky."

11-Man Victory.

Noble Kizer, Purdue — "Well, here's wishing you luck. We lost a share of the title last year by a tie and that's enough tough luck for us. Our victory over Notre Dame was a 11-man victory with well coordinated backs and a forward wall that pleased me immensely by stopping Notre Dame's threats. Iowa looks like another tough team, capable of winning in any league."

Zuppke broke in again.

"Dick Hanley has done a swell job in developing the stiffest defense Illinois has met—don't forget we met probably the best two teams in the country, in Michigan and the Army. Dick ought to feel good about Stanford beating Southern California for Northwestern tied Stanford, which shows again what a tough league this is."

Hanley — "Beynon's quick kicks and our continued inability to cover kicks lost us that Illinois game. Zuppke, you have proved a contention of mine that I've been hammering for four years."

Hanley—"Beynon's quick kicks and our continued inability to cover kicks lost us that Illinois game. Zuppke, you have proved a contention of mine that I've been hammering for four years and that is that you are some football coach. Professor, Zup needs more than a popgun to fight battleships, but he has better material this year and has done wonders."

Kept Up Reputation.

Professor—"If someone will only beat Michigan now, this will be the loveliest class I ever had. Well, we kept up our reputation against the outsiders last week. Ohio State, Wisconsin, and Purdue won their games."

Sam Willaman, Ohio State—"We're well satisfied with last Saturday's game against Pennsylvania, but we can't afford to take Wisconsin lightly. Several of our players are battered, but we can't ease up as the Badgers have one extra good game in their system."

Doc Spears, Wisconsin—"Wisconsin looked all right against West Virginia and I was satisfied with our pass defense. West Virginia has a good team, but lacked reserves."

Coach E. C. Hayes, of Indiana, looked over Noble Kizer's way as he recited: "I sure was glad to get my cripples, Veller, Huffman and Walker, into the Chicago game. They were not up to form but should improve this week against Xavier and reach their peak for Purdue. Both Chicago and Indiana had good and bad spots Saturday."

Shaughnessy—"We're getting better. Indiana has a good football team, I don't care what the records show, and we're lucky we didn't get beat. Illinois? Don't let Zuppke kid you. We haven't a chance against them. They're too old and experienced for us."

Irish Defeats Puzzling to Anderson

'We Gain Yards, But Can't Soore,' He Says; Giving Regulars a Rest.

(Associated Press.)

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 13.—Monday was a day of rest for the battered Notre Dame regulars, who suffered their fourth consecutive shutout at the hands of Purdue Saturday. Nick Lukats, left half back, and Hugh Devore, right end, were badly bruised in the game, and will not report for practice before Thursday.

Coach Hunk Anderson had little to say regarding the latest defeat.

"My boys just seem to be playing against a jinx," he said. "We gain the yards, but can't score. It's beyond me to explain."

New Plays for Illinois.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 13.—Returning uninjured from the Northwestern victory, the Illinois regulars went through a short workout today and then deserted the field in favor of the reserves, who scrimmaged during the balance of the bill. Coach Bob Zuppke taught the varsity two new plays, which will be employed against Chicago Saturday. Although the Illini are rated as favorites, Chicago, traditional foe of the Illini, will be battling to avenge last year's 13-to-7 defeat and to even the all-time standing of the rivals at 17 games each since 1892.

Ohio State Rests.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 13.—Ohio State's varsity gridders rested today from Saturday's 20-7 victory over Penn, but a frosh squad was drilled in Wisconsin formation, which they will use against the first team in a secret practice tomorrow. Dick Heekin, half back, was treated for back and hip injuries, which trainers said would come around in time to let him practice by mid-week.

Indiana In Long Drill.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 13 (AP). Bundled in heavy shirts, Indiana Varsity football players engaged in a long but light drill in freezing weather today as their errors of the Chicago game were reviewed. Heavy work in preparation for Saturday's visit to Xavier University at Cincinnati will start tomorrow.

Chalk Talk at Purdue.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 13 (AP).—Purdue's football regulars who defeated Notre Dame Saturday were given a rest today, but listened to a short chalk talk in the gymnasium. All players, including Duane Purvis and Fred Hecker, who have been hampered by injuries, were expected to be in good condition for the Iowa game Saturday.

Michigan Near Peak.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 13.—The Michigan football squad was given the afternoon off today to nurse bruises acquired in Saturday's battle with Iowa and to rest up for the practice sessions scheduled in preparation for the crucial game with Minnesota here next week-end. Coach Harry Kipke and other members of the coaching staff said today they believed the Wolverines were near their playing peake. It is expected that they can be brought into topnotch form for Minnesota with a minimum amount of drilling this week.

New Deal Mat Show Lists Six Bouts

All Types of Rasslers to Perform at Auditorium Thursday.

ALTHOUGH President Roosevelt's "new deal" ideas became effective when he took oath of office last March 4, the news has just reached the offices of Mons. Joe Turner, Washington's rassling impresario. So he has announced a "new deal" rassle show to be staged at the Auditorium Thursday and he is taking the idea so seriously that he not only has ordered that a brand-new flock of agony boys be lined up for the show, but he also has listed an extra bout, making six, all told.

A glance at the program makes the rassle fans' mouths water and they hardly can wait for Thursday to arrive. The fact is, the card offers a little bit of everything—good rasslers, poor rasslers, funny rasslers, clean rasslers and a couple of wrestlers.

Old Favorites in Main Go.

Sandor Szabo, the Hungarian Adonis, and Ernie Dusek, of the Nebraska Duseks, meet in the final and these former favorites here promise a ding-dong bout. Both are scientific, give and take punishment, and they appear to be well matched.

Jumping Joe Savoldi, the reformed Notre Dame grid star, gets a place in the semifinal, meeting Roland Kirchmeyer, a perfectly proportioned 6 foot 7 inch Giant. Savoldi's "drop-kick," a new hold he has uncovered, has the fans guessing. It is a variation of Abe Coleman's kangaroo kick, but the latter is allowed to use this because it looks to the mat authorities like it is a missed flying scissors. Savoldi, however, has been told that his "drop-kick" is out as far as New York and Pennsylvania are concerned. He can use it here, though, and probably will for the edification of D. C. fans.

"Man Mountain" Dean, the 301-pound Georgia hillbilly, is quite a sensation in Gotham these days and he shows here against Bull Komar, a poor rassler, but a good actor. These boys may put on quite a show, with the "Man Mountain's" wife and manager helping out by acting as his second.

Marylanders Practice.

The Maryland A. C. will hold a workout tonight at Griffith Stadium in preparation for the game Sunday with the Marion A. C. All players are requested to be present.

Madiera Reds Win; Keep Slate Clean

Final Tryouts on Thursday for Hockey Team.

Madiera Reds came through the final game in the Inter-Private-School hockey series, the only undefeated team of the eight color groups. Their last game was played with the Mount Vernon Whites, Saturday, at the Mount Vernon Field.

On the same day, the Madiera Whites tied the Mount Vernon Yellows, at Madiera; the National Cathedral Purples beat the Holton-Arms Whites, and the Holton-Arms Blues beat the National Cathedral Golds, in a double-header at National Cathedral Field.

Final tryouts for the Inter-Private-School Honorary Hockey Team will be held next Thursday at National Cathedral Field, at 4 p. m. The selection committee of the Washington Field Hockey Association will make last selections for the Allied Members Honorary Team at that time, the names to be announced at the general meeting Friday night.

Beginning Friday, November 24, and continuing through Sunday, the Southeast tournament will be held at Philadelphia. A feature of this series will be a game on Sunday between the returning All-American Touring Team and a team to be selected later.

Two Unbeaten Teams Next For Navy

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 13 (Spl.). The football board of strategy at the Naval Academy today began shaping plans for herculean tasks that climax the local season. The Middies are booked to clash with two unbeaten teams in the race for national championship honors, Princeton next Saturday and Army a week later.

To whip Army is, of course, the objective of the whole season, for that would mean a successful campaign regardless of what has gone before. But the Naval contingent also is anxious to defeat the Tigers, who have been moving along so serenely. Princeton, however, did not undertake as heavy a schedule as Navy. Head Coach Rip Miller and his assistants intend to do some special pointing of their charges for each succeeding game.

No Breather on Card.

There has not been a "breather" game on the whole schedule. On the contrary, the Tars were extended to the limit to win five of the seven contests. So the impending situation is whether the mentors will decide to "shoot the works" in an effort to tame the Tigers or adopt a conservation program in view of the battle with Army. There are those in the Navy camp who would relish a victory over the Jungaleers, yet it is realized that possibility of injuries to one or more outstanding players would be disaster indeed.

At any rate, Head Coach Miller deviated from his Monday program in launching plans for the Princeton argument. Instead of giving the regulars a complete lay-off, and confining activities to a lecture on the merits and demerits of their work against Columbia, he had the entire squad jogging around for a brief period. Rain set in this afternoon and Miller wanted his proteges to gain more experience in handling a wet ball.

Harford to Stage Hunt Races Today

Meet Listed at Pleasant Valley, Near Baltimore.

Baltimore, Nov. 13 (AP).—The Harford Hunt races, six steeplechase and flat events, are to be held at the Pleasant Valley Farm of Harvey Ladew, near here, tomorrow.

Five events were originally scheduled, but today a sixth, called the Owners Up, for gentleman-owners over a 2½-mile brush course was scheduled.

The fourth race is the feature of the card. It will be a contest for the $5,000 Foxhall Farm Challenge Cup. This is for teams of three horses at a distance of 3 miles over timber.

Other races include the Harford Hunt Hurdle, 1¾ miles for 3-year-olds and upward; the Alligator, named for a famous jumper, 3½ miles over timber, for 4-year-olds and upward; the Sergeant Murphy Cup Steeplechase, for 3-year-olds and upward, and the Little Gunpowder, 1½ miles on the flat for 3-year-olds and upward.

The races are expected to attract a large delegation of Eastern society.

9-Yr.-Old Seth's Hope Winner at Tanforan

San Bruno, Calif., Nov. 13 (AP). Given a hustling ride by Mose Helm, young apprentice, Seth's Hope, an old time stake horse now running with the selling platers, won today's feature race at Tanforan track.

The 9-year-old gelding, favorite in the betting, came from behind to win without difficulty. Time for the mile and one-sixteenth was 1:46 1-5.

Three years ago here, Seth's Hope captured the $10,000 San Francisco handicap. The race today was a claiming affair and Steve O'Donnel, old time rider, now a trainer and owner, took over the winner.

Dark Ayress ran second and Skipsea third. Seth's Hope paid $4.20 $3.20 and $2.80; Drk Ayress, $4.40 and $3.20 and Skipsea, $8.40 to show.

Hull-Kingston Wins.

Huddersfield, England, Nov. 13 (AP).—Hull-Kingston today defeated Huddersfield, 20-3, in a semifinal match of the competition for the rugby league's Yorkshire Cup.

Stuart Jr. High Wins To Near Soccer Title

Stuart Junior High virtually clinched the junior high soccer series yesterday, when it shut out its strongest rival, Eliot, 1 to 0. Although the closing minutes of the game was played in a heavy downpour play was fast. De Gulian scored the goal and Stasulli starred.

Marines, Baltimore Fire Elevens Meet

Headed by a band, and backed up by the entire command at Quantico, the Quantico Marines, will journey to Baltimore Saturday for their annual game with the Baltimore Fire Department. Because of troubles in Cuba which called many of the Marines away, for a time there was some doubt whether or not the Leathernecks would be able to organize an eleven this season, but they finally molded such players as were left into a team.

The Marines played their first engagement with a weak Fort Humphreys eleven, which they defeated 37-0. Shess, Bell and Wood starred in the back field and McGann, Boswell and Gunn did well in the line. The Quantico team is coached by Joe Burger, formerly of the University of Maryland, who is assisted by Howard Golden, erstwhile all-Marine star.

West Potomac Golf Title Won by Allen

Herman R. Allen won the West Potomac Golf Championship by defeating Paul McMillan, 5 and 3, in the finals of the annual tournament held over the week-end. In the semifinals, Allen eliminated J. W. Messick, 1 up, after being forced to shoot a birdie deuce on the nineteenthhole. Allen succeeds S. C. Wimsatt as champion.

In the semifinals of the women's championship yesterday, Hope Wilkinson defeated Betty Keeler, 1 up, and will meet Mrs. Hill for the title.

Marions Practice.

The Marions will hold four practices this week in preparation for their game with the Maryland A. C. at Griffith Stadium Sunday. Tonight and Thursday the team will work out at Seaman Gunner's Field at 7:30 and tomorrow and Friday they will indulge in blackboard drill at the Hine Junior High at 7 o'clock.

Baltimoreans Defeat Landon School Eleven

Landon lost to the McDonough School of Baltimore on the Tidal Basin Field yesterday afternoon, 14-0.

After holding the Baltimoreans scoreless in the first two periods, the Landon defense cracked and McDonough scored a touchdown through the air, Tearre to Shaler. The other score occurred after a sustained march down the field with Bonner, a substitute, carrying the ball over through the center of the line.

McDonough rolled up eight first downs to Landon's three.

Harpster Called A Coach on Team

Steffan, the Chicago judge and coach of the Carnegie Tech Plaid teams, resigned after 20 years in the saddle. Tech athletic officials had but 20 miles to go for their coach. Harpster resided near the Geneva campus at Beaver Falls, Pa. He was signed for the job—the youngest major college coach today.

Aside from football, Howard Harpster was an ace all-round athlete, winning letters in basket ball and track for three years. Incidentally, he has nine "C" gray sweaters.

Won Class Awards.

Harpster also was active in campus activities which won for him the coveted class awards of Druid in his sophomore year, through Dragon in his senior year as well as president of his class each year.

During the off-season he resides in Pittsburgh, but his native city is Akron, Ohio.

Harp thinks Wally Steffan the greatest coach in the world. To prove this he has taken to wearing the same characteristic headgear of the Chicago henchman—a black derby.

The new Carnegie coach takes very little credit, if any, for the success of his team. Commenting on his Tech's win over Notre Dame in a newspaper article, he stated that all the success of the team should go to the Carnegie Tech line and the line coach, Don Lovewell, his able assistant throughout his coaching career, teammate, roommate, fraternity brother and classmate.

Sinc[illegible] Faces Inqu[illegible] Today On [illegible] Pool

Senators [illegible] Who Got 1928-[illegible] Profits of $1[illegible],000.

Harry F. Sinclair today will be called by the Senate Banking Committee to tell who got the $12,000,000 profits from the 1928-29 pool in his Consolidated Oil Corporation stock.

The wealthy oil operator, whose illness prevented his appearance last week, will be asked particularly about $300,000 received by W. S. Fitzpatrick, head of the Prairie Oil Co., former competitor of Sinclair's.

Fitzpatrick received 2½ per cent of the profits, Arthur Cutten, Chicago trader, told the committee last week. Cutten did not know why the money went to Fitzpatrick. He said he knew of no interest the oil man had in the pool.

Books of E. F. Hutton & Co., through which Cutten managed the pool, have been asked for by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel. Willard F. Tompkins, counsel for the brokerage house, again will be asked to testify. Counsel for Sinclair will be G. T. Stanford.

Meantime, Chairman Fletcher is making every effort to hurry the inquiry so his committee can draft its report next month for presentation to Congress. Hereafter, hearings will run from Monday through Friday.

The syndicate agreement bore date of April 26. Washington Gas Light Co. stock was put up as security for the loans.

Committee records also revealed three large syndicates, aggregating $6,549,000 in Seaboard Airline Railway stock in 1929-30, before the company went into receivership. Harvey C. Couch, a R. F. C. director, was said to have figured in two of the syndicates. One was said to be managed by Norman H. Davis, American Ambassador at Large.

Harley Clarke, president of the General Theaters Equipment Corporation, tomorrow will be questioned about theater equipment financing in which Albert H. Wiggin, retired Chase National Bank head, played an important role.

Akron New Site Of 'Strato' Hop

Settle Hopes for Better Weather Conditions in Ohio City.

Chicago, Nov. 13 (AP).—Lieut. Com. T. G. W. Settle, of the United States Navy, announced late today that he would attempt to make his projected stratosphere balloon ascension from Akron, Ohio, any time prior to December 1 that weather conditions are suitable.

Settle made his announcement after a conference with backers of the flight and said that because of the lateness of the season and general meteorological conditions at Chicago he decided that Akron likely would offer more favorable opportunities for a takeoff.

Last August Settle made an unsuccessful attempt to reach the stratosphere for a scientific study of cosmic and X-rays. His huge balloon eased to earth, however, when a hydogen gas valve line fouled, permitting the gas to escape. For several weeks Settle awaited favorable weather here but high winds prevented inflation of the balloon.

The balloon and gondola with its scientific equipment will be shipped to Akron immediately, Settle said. The contemplated takeoff is planned from the Goodyear air dock in that city.

Three Say Towner Fell Before He Died

Police Investigate Death of Man at Game.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 13 (AP).—Princeton police were told today that Jay F. Towner 3d, of Perryman, Md., was seen to fall down the concrete steps of Palmer Stadium during the Princeton-Dartmouth football game a few hours before he was found, mysteriously dead, on the Princeton campus.

At the height of the excitement, when Princeton scored the only touchdown of the game, Towner was seen to rise from his seat, stumble and fall down five concrete steps, landing on his hands. Other spectators, it is reported, helped him to his seat, apparently unhurt.

Picture of Gang Killing Given Court

Witness Picks Accused as Killer.

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 13 (AP).—A vivid picture of a gangster killing was painted in common pleas court here today by the testimony of a man who accidentally saw Jackie Kennedy, beer operator, shot to death last July in what officers said was part of an underworld war.

The witness, Harry Craig, 25, was testifying in the murder trial of Joseph English, known to Toledo police as a member of the Thomas Licavoli gang.

Pointing out English as one of the two trigger men in the killing, Craig told how he and Robert Schwaite, unseen by the killers, witnessed the slaying.

2 Lose Mail Fraud Appeals.

St. Louis, Nov. 13 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals today affirmed conviction and sentencing of Wilbur B. Foshay and Henry H. Henley, of Minneapolis, for using the mails to defraud.

Navy Officer Plunges From Apartment Window on Honeymoon.

Foley and his bride, who were married two weeks ago in Seattle, were guests of Lieut. Eric Hoag, who said he believed the accident resulted from Foley walking in his sleep.

Lieut. Foley has been assigned to the Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Montpelier, Vt.

OKAY! WHAT A CHUMP WALSH IS.
HAM FISHER

Walt Mason, Himself

No Specialist.

The old-time doctor strove to please by methods broad and fair; he'd tackle every known disease, and never sweat a hair. He always had a word of hope in answer to a sigh, and gave his patients bitter dope that made them glad to die. He went abroad on stormy morns to treat the ailing crew; and one would have a case of corns, another had the flu. When ailing people sought his door he did his best to cure; and no physician can do more, which fact is plain and sure. No matter what the trouble was, he'd take the case in hand, and feed his pills or ply his saws, and toil to beat the band. He wouldn't say, "Your fell disease is quite outside my line; you ought to visit Dr. Wheeze, that specialist so fine. In such a case he never fails, so you should have no fears; he's studied up ingrowing nails for 57 years. The man who to this doctor goes will find it quite a scheme; it is the only thing he knows, but there he is supreme." He wouldn't say, "You're plagued with boils, and they are not my game; just trot around to Dr. Hoyle's—a specialist of fame." The old-time doctor used to fight whatever came along; his patients lived if he was right, and died if he was wrong.

Thrifton Takes Fight on Bonds Over County

Circulars Show Reasons; Board Will Consider Matter Today.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

A circular labeled "Bond Issue Opposed" was distributed throughout Arlington County yesterday by the Thrifton Village Improvement League. The circular, signed by George E. H. Goodner, president, and the special committee—H. A. Spilman, chairman; E. D. Jones, T. C. Johnson, H. C. Roberts and P. E. Schaub—gives the league's reasons for opposing a $2,500,000 sewer bond issue.

The announcement says the bond issue means a blanket mortgage on all property equivalent to 10 per cent of the total assessed valuation for county tax purposes—an indebtedness declared too heavy to assume when the long-time indebtedness on July 1 of this year was already $2,237,742, and the current indebtedness was $57,541.26, or a total of $2,295,283.56.

Long Debts Cited.

Another reason given is because under existing tax levies, the county is unable to reduce its long-term indebtedness. It is reminded that with the $350,000 received from the Ball bondsmen and $60,050 included in the budget for debt reduction, total $410,050, the total debt reduction was only $252,666.66.

Another reason claimed is, if the issue is approved, the county will be so in debt it will be deprived for many years of adequate school facilities, a new jail, a new courthouse, a paid fire department, an adequately paid police department, improved streets and many other needed improvements.

Lyman M. Kelley, member of the county board, announced that at the meeting today he will introduce the following resolution:

"All churches in the county shall be relieved of any assessment of installation of sewers to their property."

The board will meet with Thrifton Village Improvement League officials to seek some understanding on the bond issue.

Fire Auxiliary to Meet.

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Clarendon Volunteer Fire Department will meet tonight at the home of Mrs. H. O. Kale, 29 Morton street, Lyon Village.

The annual drive for Thanksgiving baskets for the needy of Arlington County started yesterday at the Washington-Lee High School. The students bring canned goods and vegetables for baskets which the school has distributed among the needy for many years.

The Lyon Village Woman's Club will meet tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. S. Groome Eareckson, 211 North Oak street, Lyon Village.

Vanderslice to Speak.

S. P. Vanderslice, principal of Washington-Lee High School, will address the Parent-Teacher Association of Patrick Henry School, Arlington, tonight on "Standard and Superior Requirements in Organization." The children of Cherrydale School will present a pageant, "A Little Child Shall Lead Them."

The Virginia Parent-Teacher Association will hold its annual meeting in Richmond, November 27-28, according to Mrs. Gladys I. Monroe, executive committee member.

Fire Election Due In Cabin John Park

Directors Will Be Chosen From 10 Nominees.

Directors for the Cabin John Park Volunteer Fire Department will be elected Thursday at the firehouse.

Ten persons have been nominated and the seven receiving most votes will be elected. The ten nominated are: C. H. Godbold, George P. Lemm, C. C. Magruder, E. N. Maxim, Ralph Scott, Capt. Ira Sheetz, Charles R. Smith, Charles Sullivan, James Taylor and Hugh E. White.

The nominating committee and judges of election are: Capt. Ira Sheetz, chairman; Henry Johnson and A. A. Potter.

Mt. Rainier Firemen Call Session Tonight

The Mount Rainier Volunteer Fire Department will meet tonight at 8 o'clock. Chief Karl A. Young will preside. Action is to be taken on a proposed amendment to the department's by-laws.

A successor to John Earnest, who resigned as secretary, will be selected.

Upper Marlboro Man Seizes Burglar at Till

Entering his gasoline station yesterday, William Buck, Upper Marlboro, discovered a man rifling the cash register. He held the intruder and called police. The man was identified as Gus Simmons, colored, 22, of Marlboro. He was held without bond on housebreaking charges.

Local Option Meeting Called.

Local option for Montgomery County will be discussed at a mass meeting in the Gaithersburg Masonic Hall tomorrow at 8 p. m. Herman Wilson is chairman of the committee in charge. A musical program will be given by the Gaithersburg High School Orchestra and a mixed quartet.

Alexandria Reservists Meet.

Col. Clarence Deems, jr., retired, will address the George Washington Chapter, Reserve Officers Association, tonight in Alexandria. A War Department training film will be shown by Lieut. Roland Barrett, who filmed the picture at Fort Humphreys.

Radio Waves and Ripples

ABOUT WOL studios yesterday there were unmistakable signs that the day of a new chain program service for the Leroy Mark Station is at hand.

Program Director-Announcer Ted Ostenkamp was getting rid of some of the local talent shows he was so ardent in collecting last week to make way for the Philadelphia and New York entertainment that's coming. And it did seem that an unusual number of phonograph records were neatly tucked away in their files.

Moreover, President Mark was in solemn conference with radio minds from New York, Philadelphia and points South. A lot of tight-lipped gentlemen, they were, which is a favorable sign in itself.

As a matter of fact, there doesn't seem to be doubt anywhere but that the southern half of the former Ed Wynn chain will form itself into another network. All that remains to be decided is how and when. Another mind meeting is scheduled for Wilmington next Monday.

Meanwhile, WOL continues to air Philadelphia and New York offerings. For instance, tonight from 7 to 7:20, former Madrillon and Wardman Park bandman, Fred Gordon, puts music through the microphone from Philadelphia's Pennsylvania Hotel. Morris Service's orchestra and Meyer Davis' string ensemble also will be heard before the station goes to bed.

Whitecaps.

WRC—American Arbitration Association luncheon, NRA Deputy Administrator Malcolm Muir's address, 1:30 p. m.; Blackstone Plantation, Julia Sanderson and Frank Crummit duets, "I Wanna Know All About You" and "Back in Your Own Back Yard," 8 p. m.; the Fire Chief, 9:30 p. m.

WMAL—National Advisory Council on Radio in Education, "The Crisis in Municipal Finance—Borrowing for Current Needs," Investment Bankers Association's E. F. Dunstan and University of Michigan's Prof. Thomas H. Reed, speakers, 7:15 p. m.; dinner honoring Bishop James Hugh Ryan, Catholic University, Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop Curley and Alfred E. Smith, speakers, 10 p. m.; Master Pianists, concert by Egon Petri, Alexandrea Silotti and Sigizmunde Stayowski, 10:30 p. m.; special program by old-timers of stage, including the Fred Stones, Fritzi Scheff, George M. Cohan, Pat Rooney, Joe Weber, 11:15 p. m.; Lucrezia Bori, Dino Borgioli, Alfred Gandolfi and Louis D'Angelo in the third act of "Manon," 12:30 a. m. Wednesday.

WJSV—Parade of Champions, Helen Morgan in a version of "The Man I Love," Willard Robison's Orchestra, 9:15 p. m.; Tenor Nino Martini concert, Pergolesi's "Nina," Gorney's "Troubadour," the Neapolitan melody, "Santa Lucia Lontana," and Toselli's "Serenade," 9:30 p. m.; Gertrude Niesen, 11:15 p. m.

WOL—Fred Gordon's Orchestra, 7 p. m.; Stamp Club, 7:45 p. m.; the Virginians, quartet, 8:45 p. m.

Dress rehearsal in "Little Italy"—assembled at the bed of Nick, played by Ned Weaver, are Ruth Yorke as Mrs. Marino (seated), Alfred Corn in the part of Tony (standing, left), Hiram Brown playing Papa Marino, and Rose Keane as Beatrice Marino. The show goes on again tonight at 6:45.

In Dolly Allen, Baltimore-Washington socialite, daughter of John Tottle, five-and-ten-cent-store man, WJSV believes it has found the blues singer extraordinary.

Mrs. Allen went on the air for the first time during the WJSV broadcast for DX fans early yesterday when Production Director Al Chance heard her, made up his mind that with little coaching from him she'd do very well, indeed.

Answering questions concerning age, weight, length of hair, color of eyes, &c., of radio personalities will be Announcer Robert Longstreet's job as "Radio Reporter," new WJSV show.

Where the minds wanted to use a series of recordings which somehow found their way into N. B. C. hands, WJSV has spotted the Dinkledorfers, dialectic comedy act, beginning tonight at 7:30. The Dinkledorfers, Mr. and Mrs. George Elliott and dachshund, got a reputation for being funny when entertaining beer conventions before prohibition.

Helene Smith, sister of Kate, came up to WJSV for a lady announcer audition the other day with a serious case of mike fright.

Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop Michael Joseph Curley and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York will be broadcast by N. B. C. from a dinner in honor of Bishop James Hugh Ryan, rector and trustee of Catholic University, in the Mayflower Hotel tonight. The talks start at 10 o'clock.

In broadcasting the first of a series of conferences on phases of the President's industrial recovery program, National brings Deputy NRA Administrator Malcolm Muir to a microphone at 1:30 p. m. today in a talk called "Industrial Self-Government Under the Codes." He will be introduced by Henry Morgenthau, sr., former Ambassador to Turkey, and will be followed by James F. Hodgson, New York regional code compliance director.

Memorial Tribute Paid Edwin Booth

Bel Air, Md., New York and Baltimore Honor Actor.

Bel Air, Md., Nov. 13 (AP).—The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Edwin Booth, the famous tragedian, was observed simultaneously today here, in Baltimore and in New York.

Market Pact Boosts Milk At Richmond

Cent Increase Approved by Tugwell; Agreement Up to Producers.

Retail milk prices in Richmond, Va., were fixed at 12 cents a quart and 7 cents a pint, an increase of 1 cent in each instance, under a milk-marketing agreement approved tentatively yesterday by Rexford G. Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture.

The agreement was sent to Richmond for consideratoin by producers, distributors and producer-distributors in the city and in Henrico, Hanover, Goochland, Powhatan and Amelia Counties and such other districts where permits are held to ship milk into Richmond.

At the same time, the Farm Administration revoked the licenses of F. S. Miley, of Ephrata, Pa., and Stanley R. McCoy, of Hagerstown, Md., on charges that they violated the agreement covering the Philadelphia milkshed. It was charged they bought and sold milk below the agreed prices.

Up to Wallace Next.

If the Richmond agreement is returned unchanged, it will be approved by Secretary Wallace and become effective.

The prices fixed include Class 1 milk at $3.02 per hundred pounds to producers, f. o. b. Richmond. This is described as 3.7 market milk. Class 2 milk at $1.85 per hundred pounds. This includes all whole milk shipped out of the area and all local cream and chocolate milk sales. Class 3 milk prices to consumers are based on butter fat content. It will be diverted to manufacturing channels.

It was estimated the new prices will increase revenues to producers $15,000 a month. The average daily receipts from 300 producers in this territory are 14,000 gallons.

Enforcers Provided.

The agreement will be enforced by a committee of five, two named by the Richmond Cooperative Milk Producers Association, two by the distributors and one by the director of extension of Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Payments of not over 1 cent per hundred pounds will be made by producers to sustain this board.

The license revocations in Pennsylvania and Maryland are the first of their kind under the milk agreements. The orders become effective November 20, and if the two distributors do not obtain reinstatement they will be subject to a fine of $1,000 for each day's operation without a license.

Dealer to See Lawyer.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 13 (AP).—D. Angle Wolfinger, attorney for Stanley R. McCoy, whose milk distributing license was revoked today by the Farm Administration, tonight said he did not know what his client would do concerning the order.

McCoy, who lives on a farm a short distance from Hagerstown, could not be reached.

Wolfinger said McCoy would come to his office tomorrow and they would determine what course the milk dealer would take.

Mrs. Ernest Cory Heads Christmas Seal Drive

Mrs. Ernest N. Cory, of College Park, has been appointed chairman for Prince Georges County for the twenty-seventh annual Christmas seal sale of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association.

Announcement was made by William B. Matthews, managing director of the State association. The campaign will start Thanksgiving Day and continue until Christmas. Maryland's allotment has been set at 30,000,000 seals.

Counsel Seeks Strong Guard For Crawford

Has Seen no Hostility, But Is Avoiding Danger; Alibi Claimed.

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 13 (Spl.).—Admitting he had seen no hostile demonstrations in Loudoun County toward George Crawford, Charles H. Houston, chief defense counsel, nevertheless says he will ask for his client the same guard that attended him at the hearing on the overruled motion to quash the indictment.

Houston said he had seen only curiosity in the crowds that came near the Negro, accused of killing Mrs. Agnes B. Ilsley and her maid, Mrs. Nina Buckner. Crawford's guard at the hearing was composed of 25 State police, equipped with riot guns and tear gas bombs.

Alibi Claimed.

An alibi will be the chief defense plea of Crawford's attorneys when he is brought to trial in the Loudoun court December 12. It is understood that witnesses will be brought here from Boston to claim that Crawford was in that city when the crimes were committed. The State will put on the stand witnesses who will swear that Crawford was at the time in or near Middlesburg. Commonwealth's Attorney John Galleher is now examining those whom he expects to put on the stand.

Girl Friend Held.

Bertie De Neal, sweetheart of Crawford, is being held in the Loudoun County Jail as a material witness. It was she who said she recognized the writing on a piece of paper found in Mrs. Ilsley's abandoned car, near Key Bridge, the morning following the murder as that of Crawford.

Houston will have associated with him at the trial Edward P. Lovett and James G. Tyson, of the District of Columbia bar, and Leon A. Ramson, assistant professor at Howard University.

Capt. Frank Wray, Commonwealth's attorney of Clarke County, will assist John Galleher in the prosecution. Judge James L. McLemore, of Suffolk, will hear the case.

Takoma Park Dinner Planned.

A turkey dinner will be served by the Women's Auxiliary to the Takoma Park Volunteer Fire Department, Thursday at 5:30 at the firehouse, Carroll and Denwood avenues, Takoma Park. Mrs. Arthur L. Reynolds, president, will have charge.

Mildred Lee Elected 4-H Council President

Mildred Lee, Beltsville, Md., has been elected president of the Senior 4-H Club Council of Prince Georges County. Stanleigh Jenkins, of Hyattsville, was chosen vice president; William McNamara, of Oxon Hill, secretary, and Francis Underwood, of Oxon Hill, treasurer.

The council has passed a resolution calling upon the Southern Maryland Fair Association to provide better facilities for 4-H Club exhibits at the Marlboro Fair. Plans were laid for a four-county social event this winter.

West, Edgar Reed and Joseph H. Bodine.

In his charge to the jury Judge Woodward said: "We want a clean county and want all kinds of crime kept down."

Members of the petit jury are Thomas D. Lewis, Lewis Keiser, George D. Willard, Frank Etter, Walter B. Wallich, Hugh Carter, Arthur B. Joseph, Charles J. Green, Richard S. Hayes, Urban N. Wagner, Frank Marsden, jr., Douglas B. Diamond, Frank E. Cubitt, Claude Hobbs, Harry Riley, Howard A. Plummer, Atlee I. Burroughs, Morgan J. Boteler, George L. Tolson, Roger W. Darby, Clay T. Carlin, Ward Savage, Stephen C. Cromwell, Bernard R. Gannon, Charles E. White.

The court will hear civil cases and criminal appeals from police court while the grand jury is deliberating.

$300,000 Share Of Grant Asked By Alexandria

Road and School Projects Listed in Application for Federal Funds.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The City of Alexandria, through City Manager Wallace Lawrence, has applied for a $300,000 fee grant for public works, in connection with the Government's appropriation to put 4,000,000 men to work throughout the United States. The application was filed through William A. Smith, executive director of the State Emergency Relief.

Among the projects planned are removal of car tracks on King street, now considered a menace to traffic, since abandonement by the railway company; improvement of Washington avenue from the State highway No. 7 to No. 9, improvement of road connecting U. S. Route No. 50 with State highway No. 9, grade and surface work and improvement of U. S. Route 50 to a line under bridge on Route No. 50 over Hooffs Run, widening bridge in Janneys lane, widening shoulders on State highway No. 7, sewer in Rosemont avenue, Hooffs Run to Russell road; erection of six-room elementary school for colored children, grading and beautification of school grounds, sewer across dump at Washington street eastward to main outlet. Jobs will be provided for 150 to 175 men.

Another plan listed for which an estimate has not been made is the erection of a concrete bulkhead on the Alexandria waterfront in accord with plans outlined by the Alexandria Park and Planning Commission.

City Manager Lawrence in his application stated that in the past 35 years the city has expended $2,000,000 for street and sewer work and in that time only $20,000 has been let out to contract.

Women's Club Meets Tonight.

The Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club will hold a supper meeting tonight. Miss Elizabeth M. Ramey, president, will preside.
